If It Happened Here
Love and Money
Another Great Chain
Mayor Walker's Tube

TOMORROW KING GEORGE WILL HAND the seals of office to Ramsay MacDonald, Laborite and Socialist, confirming his authority as head of the British Empire.

Our high finance should hold its breath and cross its fingers at that terrible moment.

British Tories and Liberals, not much worried, wonder how they can thwart MacDonald and prevent his doing anything out of the regular routine.

The Labor Premier threatens, if Tories and Liberals obstruct, to "go to the people," demand a new election, and with a bigger vote, emphasize his authority.

Imagine this country with such a situation on its hands, a Socialist in power over every department of the Government. What do you think would happen in Wall Street?

In New York a man killed himself. The reason:

"I've lost my money."

In Chicago a young English woman, 28, jumped to death from a 12-story window. Her message:

"I love Ed Page, 1209 Astor st."

Shakespeare's "Men have died, and worms have eaten them, but not for love," is not true of women. Men die for money, women for love.

A number of chain stores report much increased earnings and decrease in profits in May.

On the horizon looms another gigantic chain, to be organized and financed, it is said, by the powerful J. P. Morgan. It would combine many tobacco and drug companies, with capitalization of hundreds of millions as a starter.

Mr. Morgan's father organized United States Steel Corporation, buying out Carnegie and others.

The success of that company will arouse interest in the new suggestion, to include Canadian, and possibly European enterprises, and obliterate the present fierce price-cutting competition.

Mayor Walker plans a real traffic problem attack that will interest other cities and mayors. He will spend $103,000,000, which New York can easily afford, on a gigantic tube under the city, connecting the center of old New York with Brooklyn and Queens.

Along the Canadian border prohibition isn't a drink question; it's a business question.

Border business men report that, on the American side, no business is done on Saturday; everybody is away in Canada drinking beer.

Border cigar stores complain that they might as well close up on Saturdays and Sundays.

One American tobacco concern, transferring real estate and commercial activities from the United States to the Canadian side, has recently opened nearly 100 new stores on Canadian territory.

An English lady said, "The war has ceased to be a joke," when she couldn't get the right dog biscuit for her poodle. American business will say prohibition ceases to be a joke when they find it takes American moneyspenders and American real estate money to Canada.

In New York "under-cover men" issued warrants yesterday for forty men, including owners of warehouses, truck lines, and a distinguished French nobleman, Comte Francis de Maxence de Polignac.

Under the new Jones law, these men run the risk of five years in prison and $10,000 fine.

"Under-cover men" say prohibition will work better with its new set of teeth, contributed by the Jones law.

Senator Glass would tax five per cent all stocks bought on margin and sold within sixty days.

Such buying and selling is gambling, says the senator, and "the way to discourage vice is to make it expensive."

Wall Street says the tax would discourage speculation, ruin many brokers. It certainly would reduce considerably the value of a stock exchange seat.

TWOHIG IS UNDER BAN IN HOUSE

In one of the stormiest sessions ever witnessed on Beacon Hill, Rep. James T. Twohig of South Boston, "stormy petrel" of the Boston Elevated controversy, was "gagged" in the House today by Speaker Saltonstall and stands virtually shorn of his privileges as a member.

The drastic action of Speaker Saltonstall followed refusal of Twohig to remain seated on orders from the chair, his disobedience aggravated by several unsuccessful attempts to debate from the floor the deliberations of the Senate and House conference committee on the Elevated problem.

The "naming" of Twohig ch-

18,000 Hub Cadets in Review

Through lanes of girl-waved pennants, Boston's 18,000 school cadets marched today in the schoolboy annual parade.

More than 50,000 spectators lined the three-mile route, and from hundreds of pennants, balloons and vari-colored shakers in the throng it was apparent that nearly all the feminine enrollment in the schools had turned out in support of the youthful soldiers.

Starting at Clarendon st. and Columbus ave., the parade followed Stuart st., Columbus ave. to Park sq. through Boylston st., Tremont and Park sts., Beacon st. to Boston Common, out again into Charles st. to Beacon and Arlington sts., through Marlborough and Dart-

RUTH VERY SICK, SAYS HIS WIFE

New York, June 7 (AP)—Babe Ruth is "very ill," his wife and bride of less than two months told the Associated Press when asked about published reports that the home run king would be out of the Yankee lineup for at least a month, and maybe longer, due to a weak heart.

The Evening World says today that an overtaxed and weakened heart will keep Ruth out of the Yankees' lineup for at least a month and possibly for the remainder of the season.

The homerun king was described as "a pretty sick man," a stubborn congestion is taxing his strength and he is fretting over the physician's ruling that he avoid all excitement. He is not allowed to drive his automobile and he has been refused permission to attend baseball games.

The paper says Ruth's doctor has been visiting him two or three times

Says Eugene O'Neill Is in Good Health

New York, June 7 (AP)—London reports that Eugene O'Neill, American playwright, was ill of tuberculosis in Switzerland, were denied today by Harry Weinberger, attorney for the playwright. O'Neill is not in Switzerland," the attorney said, "and I am not at liberty to disclose where he is, nor is he ill, as I have heard from him within the last few days."

Soviet Leader Quits to Go on Vacation

Moscow, June 7 (AP)—Official announcement published today said that Alexis Rykoff, president of the council of people's commissars of the Soviet Union, "has left for a vacation on advice of physicians." Vice-Presidents Rudzutak and Schmidt will take over his duties during his absence.

CALLED 'THIEF' BY READING

The charge that the words "embezzlement" and "larceny" were used by Arthur K. Reading while attorney-general, in connection with Louise A. Wolfe, was made for the first time in the Reading disbarment proceedings in Supreme Court today.

Clarence A. Thompson of New York, former vice-president of the L. A. W., said he was present in Reading's office when the attorney-general charged Wolfe directly with embezzlement, larceny and misuse of funds.

He said Reading referred to a telephone call from District Attorney Rugg of Worcester, and that he had difficulty in holding Rugg off from starting an investigation of the L. A. W.

Under cross examination Thompson was asked if he knew of any person who testified that the words embezzlement and larceny were used, and replied he did not know what other witnesses had testified to.

Q—Do you want to make it appear that

Two Towns Fight Randolph Woods Fire

Fire departments of Randolph and Stoughton, together with state employes, were today battling a woods fire that had spread over four square miles in Randolph.

The flames roared through the woods and underbrush all night, threatening a summer colony of 30 houses, some occupied, in "Spotless Town," North Randolph. The state fire fighting forces were called out.

Farm Relief Report Taken Up in House

METHUEN WIFE BEATEN AND HOUSE SET ABLAZE, THE POLICE DECLARE

Methuen, June 7—First hammered into unconsciousness, Mrs. Carolina Breton, 29, was murdered today when her assailant set afire the bed on which she was lying.

The fire in the Breton home at 12½ Barker st. did slight property damage, but Mrs. Breton died soon after reaching Lawrence General Hospital.

No foul play was suspected until Medical Examiner Victor A. Reed examined the body and found that her head had been hammered by a blunt instrument.

Dr. Reed said that the woman probably was beaten unconscious with a hammer before death, but that it was the fire that ultimately killed her.

HUSBAND'S STORY.

Police Chief Harry Nimmo, following the medical examiner's report, questioned the dead woman's husband, George Breton, a night worker at the Arlington mills.

Breton said that he arrived home from work at 6 A. M., cooked and ate his breakfast and then went to bed in a room adjoining that of his wife.

Three hours later, he said, he was awakened by smoke in his room, rushed into his wife's bedroom and made an unsuccessful effort to save her.

Breton then rushed into the street and sounded a fire alarm, he told the police chief.

BLOOD ON PILLOW

When the firemen arrived they dragged the woman from the blazing bed and rushed her to Lawrence General Hospital.

The nature of the fire, which burned only the bed and scorched the wall slightly, led to an investigation by fire officials.

Almost simultaneously with Medical Examiner Reed's discovery of the head injuries, firemen at the house came upon blood stains on the pillow where Mrs. Breton's head had rested. This was taken in charge by police.

LIGHT BILL NOW GOES TO ALLEN

Accepted without debate by the Senate, the municipal lighting bill as drawn up by a second conference committee and passed by the House earlier in the day, will now go to Governor Allen for his signature or veto.

In the House considerable sharp debate preceded the vote to accept the committee's report. Representative Leo M. Birmingham of Brighton, minority party leader, accused "work for the interests of the power trust."

The Democratic chief continued: "Notice has now been served on the

Aviation Subsidy Plan Frowned On

Washington, June 7 (INS)—The plan of a group of civil aviation enthusiasts to have Congress enact legislation authorizing expenditure of government money in the aid of civil aeronautical progress will receive scant favor.

Senators interested in the progress of American aviation expressed the opinion the juvenile industry is standing on sturdy feet and any sort of subsidy will tend to retard its progress rather than stimulate it.

FIRE DESTROYS 'BUG' LIGHT

The Narrow's Light, commonly known as "Bug Light," in Boston Harbor, was destroyed by fire today, despite attempts to save it by the keeper, Thomas Small, who risked his life fighting the fire from a narrow landing beside the structure until the heat forced him to take to his boat and row away.

The fire started when Small was burning paint off the side of the little shack which is his home during his long vigils in the harbor. A spark blown into the eaves, ignited dry timbers and in a moment the upper structure was a blazing beacon.

Fireboats and a crew from the Hull coast guard station rushed to the lighthouse, but by the time they arrived the structure was a smouldering ruin. The damage is estimated at $12000 by George M. Eaton, superintendent of the lighthouse service.

Thousands of persons ashore watched the fire.

Small reported to Eaton that he battled the blaze until he could no longer remain on the lighthouse. At high tide the island on which the lighthouse stands is submerged and only the metal platform around the structure affords a place to stand.

Small lived alone at the lighthouse, his wife and son living ashore so the boy may attend school.

WHY ENGLAND PUT LABOR IN POWER

The great unemployment in England was the principal reason why the people voted to place the Labor Party in power.

Throwing men out of work and replacing them by machines was one of the strong arguments used.

In this country if manufacturers continue to replace men by machines tremendous unemployment must come.

The Elcho Cigar refuses to use machines—and continues to give men the opportunity to keep working—by making all its cigars by hand.

Skilled hand workmanship plus 100% choice Havana filler—that's why hand made Elcho cigars are better than machine made cigars—and yet they cost the smoker no more.

Elcho cigars are mild—fragrant—burn evenly—and draw freely.

DEFENDANT OPENS HIS DEFENSE

pear that at the State House conference it was possible some persons couldn't hear everything that was said? A—I want nothing to appear but the truth.

The witness said he noticed at the conference that Joseph G. Lincoln was sleeping, adding this was not unusual in conference or outside. He also admitted that he drew a $20,000 salary from the New York office. He said he had no knowledge of any criminal act by any officer of the L. A. W.

Under redirect examination, the witness was asked:

"But you heard Mr. Reading accuse Wolfe of criminal actions?"

"I did," was the answer.

READING OPENS DEFENCE.

Ralph A. Alexander and Kenneth R. Beckman, both of the Boston Better Business Bureau, testified they called on Reading in July of 1927 in regard to the L. A. W. They testified they called his attention to a similar practice. Both testified Reading said he had investigated the organization and found it all right.

Reading then opened his defense, calling as his first witness Aaron E. Grout of Burlington, Vt. formerly Secretary of State, who resigned to give his entire attention to the Vermont L. A. W. He is now treasurer and manager of the Vermont Acceptance Corporation, successor to the L. A. W. After all the evidence in the L. A. W. case is in on both sides Prosecutor Frederick W. Mansfield will take up the Decime Club.

Grout said he was present at the famous City Club conference and knew of no one being charged with crime at that meeting.

NO TALK OF IMMUNITY.

He added there was no talk of immunity by Reading at that conference.

The witness said he was also present at the conference of James B. Wood, detective, on November 16. He said he heard Public Accountant Pride telephone to the attorney-general, and denied previous testimony that Pride said, "There is a $50,000 shortage and I've got enough on Wolfe already to put him in jail."

Under cross-examination Grout said that at the first meeting to which he was summoned by Lincoln there was no talk of crooked work by Wolfe or any officer of the company. He said Reading was called to the meeting merely because he was a director of the Beacon company.

He admitted there was some discussion as to whether Reading should be acquainted with the situation in view of his official position. Grout said there was a discussion as to Reading's duty if crime was discovered. He admitted there was talk of Reading's impetuosity and the danger he would fly off the handle.

ADMITS INDEX CHANGES.

Q—And you didn't want any adverse publicity? A—No.

Q—Many of the things you discussed and many of the things Lincoln complained about were consistent with crime, were they not? A—Yes.

Q—Did anyone say that if crime developed Reading would be in an embarrassing position? A—No.

Grout admitted that changes in the card index, which were discovered, constituted a statutory crime. He also admitted that former Asst. Atty.-Gen. Phillips of Rhode Island was truculent, and said: "I'll have what I do with Wolfe if I had him in Rhode Island."

Q—And you as former state attorney of Vermont knew what you'd do with Wolfe if you had him in Vermont? A—Yes.

LINDY AND HIS BRIDE HEADED FOR PORTLAND

Portland, Me., June 7—Col. Lindbergh and his bride, on the yacht Mouette, this morning passed Fletcher's Point apparently headed for this city, after having left York Harbor sometime earlier. It is believed he is coming here for food supplies and water.

York, Me., June 7—With shy Anne still below deck and invisible, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh chugged his cabin cruiser out of York Harbor today, apparently headed for North Haven and the Morrow summer home.

Boston Yacht Club to Elect Lindy Honorary Member

Because of his cruises on the honeymoon yacht Mouette, the name of Col Charles A Lindbergh will be submitted for honorary membership of the Boston Yacht Club, it was announced today.

George H. Voter, commodore of the Massachusetts Bay Yachting Clubs Association, will submit Lindy's name at a meeting of the executive committee of the Boston Yacht Club next year.

REPARATIONS SETTLEMENT PACT SIGNED

Paris, June 7 (AP)—The experts' report, liquidating the long controversial reparations problem that has troubled the peace of Europe for the last 10 years was signed at the Hotel George V today.

The signature to the document, which fixes payments Germany must make to the allied creditors for the next 59 years, were affixed at 11:30 a. m. eastern standard time in the Japanese tearoom of the hotel while cameras clicked.

With the four months' negotiations that at times threatened to break down now settled, the next step is up to the governments involved, ratification of the experts recommendations being necessary as well as plans for working out the details.

BASED ON YOUNG'S PLANS

By the settlement the German experts gave their approval to the annuities suggested by Owen D. Young, American financial expert, whose labors to find some sort of an agreement are now crowned with success.

The experts' report to teh reparations commission as signed recommends reduction of the reparations annuities in the next 37 years from $600,000,000 to an average of approximately $492,000,000.

It recommends annuities of approximately $408,500,000 for the first 22 years subject to profits of the international bank to be created and an arrangement for amortization in which the creditors will participate.

EASES GERMAN BURDEN.

The report dwells upon the following advantages: Decreasing the burden for Germany, taking of the reparations question out of politics and putting it into an organization of orderly business, elimination of outside organizations that exercise a control in Germany, and early mobilization of a considerable part of the first 37 annuities to give the creditor powers important sums available for reduction of their own interior debts.

The annuities are divisible into postponable and non-postponable parts, but there is no distinction in the report between the part of the annuities applicable to reparations and the part attributed to payments of the creditors' war debts.

WESTFIELD NEEDS FENCED LOT

Westfield, June 7—Sunday professional sports were legalized here at a meeting of the City Council, when second reading was given an ordinance legalizing professional sports on the Sabbath.

The ordinance has a concealed joker in it, in that there is no enclosed athletic field in this city where admission charges may be collected, and the only baseball field in use is on the Whitney public playground.

The provisions of the gift of the late Milton A. Whitney of this tract of land was that it should be for the children of the city and that no admission fees should be charged or collections taken.

WILL HELP SMALLER INDUSTRY

expansion because of the difficulty in obtaining the necessary additional capital to enlarge.

"Commercial banks seldom make capital loans, and, for the most part, the good investment banks can handle nothing under $1,000,000 for public financing.

HAS TWO CHOICES.

"This leaves to the small manufacturer two choices: Raising financial help from his friends, which is difficult because most of them are likely to be men using all their surplus capital in their own businesses; dealing with third or fourth rate security houses which almost always charge excessively for capital and are certain to insist on acquiring control of the company through common stock issues.

"Two years ago the research committee of the council, then under the chairmanship of A. Lincoln Filene, undertook to find a solution of this problem, and the New England Industries, Inc., is the result. Its capital structure is 50,000 shares of no par value common stock.

WILL RAISE $500,000.

"At the beginning $500,000 will be raised through the sale of 25,000 shares. None of this will be offered at public sale until the project has proved to be practical. This $500,000 will be immediately invested in standard income-bearing securities, to be used as collateral in borrowing money to finance the corporation's clients.

"The corporation policies will be under control of a voting trust of three men. The board of directors will be composed of leading business men from each of the six New England states. A basic policy of the corporation will be to retain in the companies seeking its services the highest possible measure of independent self-direction."

Survey Shows Gains in N. E. Industries

Manchester Vt., June 7—Pessimistic prophets of the future of New England industries were silenced by the cosy reports of industrial growth submitted today to the 15th quarterly meeting of the New England Council, in session here at the Equinox House.

A survey of the migration of industry in New England over the past year, conducted by John F. Tinsley of Worcester, chairman of the Council's community development committee, showed a net gain of 167 industries and 5437 employes, as compared with a net gain of 136 industries and 3637 employes for 1927.

The following five conclusions concerning the condition, future growth and development of New England industries were presented to the meeting by Tinsley:

1—New England is maintaining a favorable balance in the exchange of industries with the rest of the United States.

2—The development of new undertakings and the acquisition of branch plants and industries from other communities leave a net gain in both the number of plants and number of employes after taking into account those industries which have suspended operations or moved to other communities.

3—The growth of industry in New England can best be promoted by local enterprises financed by local capital.

4—The greater part of the migration of New England industry is from one New England community to another.

5—The industrial communities should devote more attention to the welfare of their established industries.

maxed a furious debate on the report of the conference committee urging its own discharge and the appointment of a new committee.

Twohigh, arguing against the report, declared it was a move "to play a trick on the people of metropolitan Boston," and asserted the deadlock in the committee resulted from the refusal of a "master mind" to break it.

"I will have my say if it costs me my seat," retorted Twohig to an admonition from Speaker Saltonstall that the discussion of the conference committee were not debatable on the floor of the House.

Saltonstall ordered Twohig to be seated, but the fiery South Boston member yelled "I will not be seated," and made another attempt to introduce the subject of the conference committee deliberations.

Twohig finally sat down and when comparative peace had been restored several supporters of and objectors to the adoption of the committee report took the floor.

Representatives Roland D. Sawyer, Thomas R. Bateman of Winchester, chairman of the conference committee, and Martin Hays of Brighton joined in urging acceptance of the report and the appointment of a new committee.

Twohig at this point leaped to his feet, yelling "Mr. Speaker." The chair informed him he could not be recognized, having been once seated, "you entitled to be heard," shouted the South Boston member, and Speaker Saltonstall then declared, "I name Representative James J. Twohig of Boston." The Speaker announced the next business in order was the selection of a committee of three to take action on the "naming" of Twohig by the chair.

Representative Jewett, House whip, made a motion for the selection of this committee, which was still pending when the House recessed.

VESUVIUS IN NEW ERUPTION

Naples, June 7 (AP)—Renewed spasms, deep within the crater of Vesuvius, today disquieted residents of the villages about its base.

The villagers late yesterday returned to their homes and erected thanksgiving tabernacles for their patron saints on street corners.

The Vesuvius Observatory had reported the lava flow stopped and that the peaks of white hot rock were rapidly congealing when the new subterranean tumult was felt.

The explosions within the volcano then shook the ground so that doors and windows miles away rattled. Little fountains of liquid fire sprang up within the crater and lasted for several minutes and many lumps of molten lava and boulders were flung up from the cone.

Justice Rebukes Cleric in Tirade Against Court

Augusta, Me., June 7—Associate Justice Frank G. Farrington of the Maine Supreme Court interrupted the speaker as the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club to tell the Rev. Carl F. Garland, Methodist minister, that he ought to be ashamed of himself.

The minister, speaking on "Profit and Privilege," declared that "law was originally founded by men in power for men in power. And I believe that law is still used for men in power by men in power. It is difficult for the common people to get protection by law."

At this point Justice Farrington jumped to his feet and said: "The court objects to any such doctrine." As Garland resumed, he interrupted: "You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

mouth sts. to Copley sq., the disbanding point.

Mayor Nichols, his sons, Clark and Dexter, and guests reviewed the parade from a stand in Tremont st., opposite the new B. F. Keith Theater.

In front of the State House, Governor Allen, his staff and guests reviewed, and a third review was in Copley sq., by the school committee.

Differing from other years, no exercises were held on Boston Common this year, the parade merely winding through and continuing on to Copley sq.

Commanding the cadets, who took an hour and a half to pass a given point, was Cadet Col. J. Leslie Rickard of Brighton high school.

Cols. Joseph W. Dolan of Public Latin school, Evelyn Killilea of Hyde Park high, William E. Adler of Public Latin and William F. Rand of English high commanded the first, second, third and fourth brigades, respectively.

At the parade proceeded up Tremont st. the watching throngs were treated to the spectacle of an iron worker, high up on the skeleton of a new building, rising to his feet on the approach of each flag in the line and standing at salute 100 feet above the street.

Another diversion came when the Jamaica Plain cadets were passing the mayor's reviewing stand and Clark and Dexter, recognizing some of their "pals," hailed them excitedly.

The boy who received the greatest measure of applause among all the 18,000 cadets was also the smallest in the entire parade. He was a youth from East Boston high school, four feet 10 inches tall, and, carrying a guidon, he strode sturdily along beside a youth who towered more than six feet.

During the march, five regular army officers under Capt. C. O. Ashton, attached to the 101st Infantry, M. N. G., judged the cadets at various points.

HONORS AWARDED.

In the high school division the 14th Regiment, Hyde Park high school, scored 255½ points out of a possible 300; the 11th Regiment, Brighton high, was second with 254 points; 17th Regiment, Boston Trade, was third with 232¼ points, and the 18th Regiment, Mechanic Arts high, fourth with 232 points.

In the intermediate division, the Washington Irving school scored 220.2 points, Henry L. Pierce school 216, Michael Angelo school 215, E. G. Shaw school 214.7, and F. V. Thompson school 213.7.

The judging was on posture, soldierly appearance, discipline and marching, the winners in each division being awarded flags.

power trust that protective legislation for the people has started.

The conference clarified the wording of the bill and amendments and rejected the Goodwin amendment to allow the Supreme Court to review price-fixing by the Public Utilities Commission.

This agreement today was reached as the result of a second conference. Friends of the bill were not entirely satisfied with all details, but were willing to accept the major proposals as a constructive step forward toward legislation.

The rejected Goodwin amendment would allow the price fixed on private plants by the Public Utilities Commission to be reviewed in law and fact by the court. This was hailed by the commission as making the bill worse than the present system.

In the Senate amendments which were clarified as to their language and meaning, the bill will specify that all property used in manufacturing electricity must be taken over completely and not in part, if a city buys a private lighting plant. Many legislators had favored a policy of buying only parts of such plants, but the agreement settled that otherwise.

The understanding was reached, however, that in cities where there are separate gas and light companies, the community need not buy the gas plant in order to achieve the light system.

LOCKS HIS DOOR TO FAMILY

Because he locked his wife and three daughters out of the house when they went to the movies last night against his wishes, Felipe Calaifarno of Clifton st., North Cambridge, was before Judge Stone in the East Cambridge District Court on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Patrolman Joseph Bouget told the court he had been called to the house and found a large group of neighbors in the street in their night-clothes. They said the wife and children had been locked out. After much pounding on the door, the patrolman aroused the husband and let the family into the building.

Calaifarno defended himself by saying he was a hard working laborer who retired at 8 o'clock and believed his family should do the same. The judge placed him on probation on a promise not to lock the family out again.

Henry A. Bishop to Take Bride

New York, June 7 (AP)—Henry A. Bishop, Jr., former husband of Gloria Gould Bishop, today obtained a license to marry Edith L. Wead, an interior decorator, of Norwalk, Ct. The Bishops were divorced in Reno last January 31.

COMPLETE TREATY AT VATICAN

Vatican City, June 7 (AP)—All Rome resounded to the pealing of joyous church bells today as Premier Mussolini and Cardinal Gasparri solemnly exchanged ratifications of the historic Lateran Treaty, bringing to an end the 60-year-old strife between church and state in Italy.

There were no speeches, and the ceremony was brief and simple. One of its most striking and symbolical moments was when the great bronze doors opening out upon the colonnade of St. Peter's sq., which had remained half shut for 59 years, were once more opened wide.

Premier Mussolini entered the Vatican—for the first time in his life—shortly before 11 o'clock.

He was dressed in his uniform as a minister instead of the usual cutaway which he wore when he signed the treaty on February 11.

At 11:30 a. m. he sped out in his automobile, his machine being followed by four others at breakneck speed.

POPE BLESSES DUCE

The crowd gave him a hearty handclapping interspersed with cheers and then rushed across St. Peter's sq. to see the opening of the bronze doors which was to symbolize the coming to an end of the voluntary imprisonment of the Pontiff.

At the conclusion of the signing, Cardinal Gasparri, who is papal secretary of state, read a letter from the Pope in which he said his first act would be to send a telegram of benediction to King Victor Emmanuel blessing him and his consort and all the members of the royal family and bearing a special benediction upon "Chevalier Mussolini."

Grouped about the venerable cardinal were various ecclesiastics attached to his office including Msgr. Francis J. Spellman of Whitman, Mass.

Although the popular enthusiasm was not so tremendous as when the treaties were first signed at the Lateran Palace, the joy of the populace was shown by the cheering crowds outside St. Peter's when the Premier entered and left the Vatican grounds.

CABINET PRESENT.

The Premier spent three-quarters of an hour within the Vatican. He was accompanied by members of his cabinet, including the ministers of justice and finance, several undersecretaries, the chief of the Government press bureau and his personal secretary.

He was received by Msgr. Giuseppe Pizzardo, undersecretary of state, and Prof. Francesco Pacelli, Pope Pius' lawyer, who took a large part in the negotiations of the treaty.

The Premier was then escorted by Monsignor Borgongini Duca to the Hall of Congregations, where Cardinal Gasparri was waiting. Here an exchange was made of the texts of the treaty, the Italian one having been signed by King Victor Emmanuel and the church one by Pope Pius XI.

Premier Mussolini and Cardinal Gasparri composed a proces verbal in which they stated their reciprocally loyal and sincere wish to observe the letter and spirit of the Lateran accords.

The proces recognizes the Pope's sovereignty and the status of Catholicism as the state religion of Italy.

Cardinal Gasparri signed this and then Premier Mussolini, after which they talked together for 15 minutes.

Finance Minister Mosconi then gave Cardinal Gasparri a check on the Bank of Italy for 750,000,000 lire (about $39,000,000), representing the first payment of the financial convention arranged at the time that the treaty was drawn up.

From the moment of the exchange the Lateran treaties entered into full vigor and effect. The new Governor of Vatican City, Commendatore Camillo Serafini, entered officially upon his duties and the Swiss Guard took up posts at the entrances to the Vatican territory.

'This Dissolves Latest Clouds," Says Mussolini

Rome, June 7 (INS)—"Fine, splendid! This document dissolves the latest clouds," exclaimed Premier Mussolini after receiving the Pope's message at the exchange of ratifications of the Lateran treaties.

Pope Extends His Blessings to All The World

Vatican City, June 7 (INS)—Pope Pius XI extended his blessing to the entire world today. A message to King Victor Emmanuel read:

"The first telegram we send from the Vatican City postoffice after the exchange of ratifications of the Lateran conventions is to thank God that the ratifications are now an accomplished fact; also, to impart with a whole heart the great fatherly apostolic blessing upon Your Majesty, the Queen, the royal family, Italy and the world."

HARVARD HEIR FLOUTS DAD TO WRITE JAZZ

Music hath charms beyond the lure of crackling bonds—and so today John W. Green, son of wealth and a Harvard graduate last June, followed in the footsteps of Roger Wolff Kahn, who resigned a lucrative Wall st. post and entered In New York's "Tin Pan Alley."

John W. Green

For his life's work, he declared, he will labor with sharps and flats, with clefs and crescendos with lilt and with lullaby.

His announcement was matched with one by his father, a New York realty operator, that as a song writer his son must support himself.

Green went his dad one up on announcements, however, when he calmly announced his engagement to marry Miss Carol Falk of New York, who, he says, knows he will make good in a musical way.

Young Green while at Harvard was noted for his musical ability and his song writing, one of his numbers, "Jazz Lullaby," proving a decided hit among the students.

On several occasions he was the featured player in Boston benefit performances, giving a rogram of his own songs and those of other writers.

He is a close friend of George Gershwin, noted composer, and has been guided considerably by Gershwin's counsel, according to his friends.

59 Cars a Minute at Somerville Spot

Fifty-nine automobiles passed Washington st. and the Northern Artery, Somerville, every minute, according to a check made by police under direction of Traffic Sergt. Thomas M. Sharry. During 12 hours, Patrolmen Phillips, Souza, Small and Sniers were stationed ther and they counted 43,125 autos. There were 7002 cars going west in Washington st. and 10,873 east in the same street, while 14,485 went south on the Northern artery and 10,764 north.

Jail Tea Room Man in Contempt Case

Frank A. Richardson, Jr., treasurer of Parks, Inc., a tea room at Coolidge Corner, today was sentenced to five days in Charles st. jail by Judge Wait of Supreme court in failing to file a report on the financial condition of the company.

The matter was brought to attention of the court by Roger Clapp, assistant attorney-general, in behalf of Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long.

FIVE WITNESSES BACK ROLFE'S ALIBI PLEA

After a two and a half-hour session at the State prison in Charlestown today, the State Board of Advisory Pardons, of which Frank A. Brooks is chairman, continued the hearing on the petition of William Rolfe for pardon until June 22.

Rolfe is serving a 25 to 30 years sentence for robbery while armed in Malden and Wakefield in November, 1925.

Spectators at the hearing were Mrs. Esther M. Andrews of the governor's council, Mrs. Glendower Evans and the Rev. Roland Sawyer, a member of the Legislature.

Five witnesses were heard, three of whom said that Rolfe was in his sister's house, Mrs. Rena Williams, in South Boston, on the evening of November 21, the night of the two holdups. Atty. Thomas H. Brennahan, in his opening statement, said the petition was made on the grounds of the man's innocence and that they would produce witnesses to prove an alibi. Asst. Dist. Atty. Crafts of Middlesex County said these witnesses were available at the time a motion was made for a new trial, which was refused, and there was really nothing new.

John Morgan testified that on the afternoon and early evening of November 21, Rolfe helped Rolfe work about an automobile at his sister's home in South Boston. Mrs. Maxwell Jones of Cambridge told of visiting the home of Mrs. Williams on the evening of November 21, and that Rolfe came there with a woman about 8:30 o'clock, sat around, played the piano and left about 9:30 o'clock. David Williams also testified to Rolfe being at the house.

McManus' Release Is Upheld by Court

New York, June 7 (AP)—The appellate division of the Supreme Court today unanimously affirmed the order of Justice Levy ordering in $50,000 bail George A. McManus, accused of the murder of Arnold Rothstein, gambler.

McManus had been held in the tombs without bail for four months before Justice Levy ordered his release under a habeas corpus writ on last March 3.

Revolt Looms in Eastern Turkey

London, June 7 (AP)—A dispatch from Jerusalem to the Jewish Telegraph Agency today said grave political unrest throughout eastern Turkey was reported by anti-Kemalists arriving from Angora via Beirut. It stated Kazim Karabekir Pasha was leading the agitation which was assuming proportions of a widespread revolt.

Train Crushes Off Workman's Feet

STEFFENS SUED FOR DIVORCE AS 'CRUEL'

Salinas, Cal., June 7 (AP)—A rift in the marital happiness of the Hospital Carmel, Cal., home of Joseph Lincoln Steffens, author and lecturer, was revealed today in a suit for divorce filed here by Mrs. Steffens, whose pen name is Ella Winters.

Mrs. Steffens charged extreme cruelty and said her husband objected to her attending dances or having other social relations. She also asserted Steffens informed her he did not care for her.

The Steffens have lived in the artists' colony of Carmel in semi-retirement, with their young son, Peter. They were married in Paris in 1924. Recently rumors of an impending divorce were heard, but met prompt denial from friends of the couple.

Steffens is 65 years old, several months ago he write a magazine article on "How it feels to be a father at 60."

Mrs. Steffens, who is said to be in her 30's, replied the following month with an article entitled "How it feels to be married to an old man."

3 SENTENCED FOR TAKING AN AUTO

James Lane, 17; John J. O'Connor, 20, and Donald R. Martin, 17, were found guilty by Judge M. E. Stuntevant in Somerville court today of using an automobile without the authority of the owner. They were sentenced to two months in the House of Correction. They appealed.

Patrolman John J. Courtney arrested the youths in the car of Frank Higgins of 22 Leland st., Somerville, soon after Higgins had reported it stolen from in front of a theater on Highland ave.

Lane was fined $20 for operating an automobile without a license. Lane on appeal was held in $3600 and the other two in $300 bail each.

Manchester, N. H., June 7—William P. Riley of West Somerville, told Judge Charles A. Perkins in municipal court that he was ordered by his physicians to drink liquor, and pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated.

The judge failed to be impressed by the physicians' advice, however, and ordered a fine of $100 and costs.

DOCTORS OF 30 COUNTRIES IN CITY A DAY

Nearly 60 delegates from 30 countries were guests of Boston today as part of their tour of the country in connection with the First International Hospital Congress, which will assemble in Atlantic City next Thursday.

With Dr. Rene Sand of Paris, secretary of the International Red Cross Societies, as their spokesman, the delegates, including several women, were received by Governor Allen and by Mayor Nichols.

The visit to City Hall followed an inspection visit at City hospital. In reply to an address of welcome by Mayor Nichols, Dr. Sand voiced his appreciation of the hospitality extended by the mayor and congratulated the city government for its efficiency in keeping pace with modern requirements at City hospital and for its "lavish display of human sympathy in the care of those who go in the hospital at patients."

The delegation arrived by boat from New York this morning and went to the Hotel Statler. Tonight they go to Montreal, following visits at the Massachusetts General hospital, Forsyth Dental infirmary and Harvard Medical school.

Find Body of Man in Boston-Made Suit

Old Saybrook, Ct., June 7 (INS)—An undertaker has charge today of the body of a well-dressed man, about 35, that was picked up by the captain of the Cornfield Point light ship and brought here. The man's suit, made in Boston, bore the name "D. Eastman." In a pocket was a ticket for the steamboat Lexington of the Colonial Navigation Company, dated June 2.

SUES FATHER'S ESTATE FOR $150,000

Roger W. Montgomery of Los Angeles, Cal., is asking $150,000 from the estate of his father, David Henry Montgomery, historian, who lived in Cambridge. He claims his father left a will when he agreed to die intestate or without one.

Montgomery states, in his suit filed in the Suffolk Superior Court, that his father agreed if he would relinquish all rights to the copyrights on his father's books to Harvard University, he would not make any will and thus the son would inherit the entire estate outside of the copyrights.

Montgomery, senior, died May 28, 1928, leaving a will. The son now asserts that his father was possessed of a considerable property on Nov. 30, 1910, received from the including copyrights of school histories. Prior to this time, the son says, he rendered valuable service to his father, day and night, in compiling, editing, revising and proof reading the histories without compensation but believing and relying upon certain promises of his father that he would be paid and would be the sole heir of his father.

RUM NEAR DRUG STORE; NAB 1

Charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale, Frank H. Sullivan, 34, of Hartford st., Dorchester, was arrested today by Sergt. William McKenzie at the drug store of Frank B. Kellogg in Dudley st., Roxbury.

McKenzie said he found seven gallons of alcohol in an adjoining building entered by a passkey from the cellar of the store. The sergeant charged Sullivan attempted to destroy a gallon of alcohol in his presence, by smashing a jug into a drain that poured on to a coal pile in the cellar. The officer was able to soak up about four ounces spilled on the floor.

Washington, June 7 (AP)—C. C. Merrill, executive secretary of the Federal Power Commission, today submitted his resignation, effective July 4.

MISSING GIRL MYSTERY IS SOLVED

Lawrence, June 7—A suicide for love, the body of Miss Louise J. Douglass, 22-year-old teacher, was found today in the south canal of the Merrimack river.

The girl had been missing since Monday, when she mailed a letter indicating suicide, to a married man in Gray, Me., her home town, which she had visited over the week-end.

Medical Examiner Victor A. Reed, after viewing the body and being told by police about her apparent unhappy love affair, returned a verdict of suicidal drowning. He said there would be no autopsy.

The body was sighted by a laborer on his way to work. He notified police and it was brought ashore.

An hour after the discovery, positive identification was made by Edward D. McIntosh, principal of Cannon a Commercial College, where the girl was a teacher.

The find was made even while Lawrence police were securing the aid of police departments as far north as Gray, Me., the girl's home town. She had just returned from a week-end visit to her parents at Gray when she vanished.

It had been thought that she was headed back toward Gray, principally because George Leighton, superintendent of the Massachusetts Northeastern Street Railway, told of seeing a girl of her description on Hampton River bridge between Hampton and Seabrook beaches in New Hampshire.

The girl asked Leighton the way to Portsmouth and he gave her directions. She did not ask for a ride, however, and Leighton drove on in his automobile.

Because of a letter written by the girl to a man in Maine and falling into the hands of authorities, police and the family were fearful that she intended suicide.

The letter was couched in terms that could have been interpreted as indicating an intent to take her life.

Miss Douglass addressed the letter to Victor J. Leach, a married man, of Gray, and Police Inspector William A. Heffernan said today that he had intended questioning Leach upon reaching the girl's home town.

RAIL CROSSING PROBE DENIED WINCHESTER

The petition of the selectmen of Winchester for appointment of a commission investigating crossings, with a view to elimination of Boston & Maine Railroad crossings in that town, was denied today by Middlesex court by Judge Greenhalge.

The judge stated that he did not believe he had the right to appoint a new commission on the motion. Even if he conceived it to be his duty to appoint a local commission, he said, he felt it would be highly inadvisable for that commission to proceed in view of the fact that the legislature had provided for a recess commission to study the whole problem of crossing elimination in Massachusetts.

BALLOT ROW IN HIGHEST COURT

Judge Wait of the Supreme Court today referred to the full bench the mixup arising from an error on the ballot at the annual town meeting of Adams, in which the term of office for which one selectman was to be elected was for one year only instead of three years.

The matter was brought before Judge Wait through a petition filed by Leander Parrott for a writ of mandamus to compel Theodore R. Plunkett and Harry E. Davis, selectmen of Adams, to recognize him as a member of the board. Parrott received 1648 votes at the election and Robert Groves 1537. Parrott claimed that Plunkett and Davis have prevented him from acting as a member of the board, and Groves as a holdover claims he is entitled to participate with the other selectmen in the affairs of the town.

GOVERNOR SIGNS TEXTILE BILL

Governor Allen today signed a resolve providing for an investigation by the Massachusetts Industrial Commission of conditions affecting the textile industry and of the problem of unemployment in that and other industries.

He also signed a bill providing for the disposal of sewage and for a water supply for the Middlesex County Tuberculosis Hospital in Lexington and Waltham.

Jones Urges More Dry Law Judges

Washington, June 7 (AP)—Appointment of a number of judges whose duties would be confined almost exclusively to prohibition enforcement cases has been proposed by Sen. Jones (R.), Washington, the author of the new dry law. Sen. Jones has introduced a bill authorizing the President to appoint as many as two "associate district judges" for any district whenever the volume of business demands it.

BALDWIN GIVES UP SEALS FOR M'DONALD

Windsor, Eng., June 7 (AP)—The state ceremony of handing over the seals of office by members of the retiring government, impressive enough under ordinary circumstances, but acquiring unusual interest because of the peculiar conditions necessitated by King George's illness, took place at Windsor Castle this afternoon.

The members of the Baldwin Cabinet traveled from London in a special train and were met at the station here by five state carriages in which they rode to the castle, where the King was awaiting them. The retiring ministers were in morning dress with silk hats. They were conducted into the castle by equerries.

KISS THE KING'S HAND.

Mr. Baldwin motored from Chequers Court and reached the castle about 20 minutes after his ministers had arrived.

The entire party was then conducted into the King's bedroom. The monarch received them while seated in a chair. The errand of surrendering the tokens of office was quickly concluded and the ministers kissed the sovereign's hand ceremoniously as they took their leave.

NEW CABINET NAMED.

Tomorrow the seals will be turned over by the King to the new premier and his cabinet. Ramsay Macdonald, leader of the Labor Party, is premier and first lord of the treasury in the cabinet officially appointed today. Other appointments are: Chancellor of the Exchequer, Philip Snowden; foreign secretary, Arthur Henderson; secretary of dominions, Sydney Webb; secretary for India, Widgewood Benn; lord privy seal, J. H. Thomas; lord president of the council, Lord Parmoor; lord chancellor, Sir John Sankey; secretary for Scotland, W. Adamson.

Others are: Home affairs, Clynes; air secretary, Lord Thomson; secretary for war, Jos. Shaw; first commissioner of public works, George Lansbury; minister of health, A. Greenwood; minister of labor, Miss Margaret Bondfield; minister of agriculture, Noel Buxton; president of the board of education, Sir C. P. Trevelyan; president of the board of trade, William Graham.

DAWES' JOB NO 'PIPE'; FACES 2 BIG ISSUES

Washington, June 7 (AP) — Charles G. Dawes, new American ambassador to Great Britain, who is sailing today from New York for England to enter the diplomatic field for the first time, will be confronted with two of the most knotty international problems of recent years—naval armament reduction and settlement of inter-allied World War debts.

On both questions the new British prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, has indicated he will press for action as major policies of the Labor party's administration. So Ambassador Dawes in the opinion of State department officials, will, upon taking over his first diplomatic post, represent the United States at a time of paramount significance in this nation's relations with Great Britain.

The large supply of his noted underclung jaws which Mr. Dawes is taking to London probably will be called into frequent use as the new ambassador meditates on his new tasks, for beside the naval and debt questions a number of other important Anglo-American matters will face him. Among these will be the British attitude toward the new tariff measure. England already has submitted to this government a number of documents from its trade organizations expressing dissatisfaction with many of the new duties.

CANDY MAN WHO HIT BOY GETS 30 DAYS

Known to the boy he injured as the "candy man," Francis F. Flynn, an engineer for the Boston & Maine Railroad, of Hartford st., Dorchester, was sentenced in East Cambridge District Court by Judge Stone today to one month in the House of Correction as an alleged "hit-and-run" driver.

Flynn appealed and was placed under $100 bonds. He explained that on May 23 on Middlesex st. in North Cambridge, Walter Richard, eight years old, dashed in front of Flynn's automobile. Flynn stopped and made the boy take off the shoes and stockings to see if he were badly injured, although he says the boy kept insisting he was not hurt.

After giving the boy a dollar to buy candy with, Flynn continued on his way. Neighbors reported his license number to the police, and today he was found technically guilty of leaving an accident scene without reporting to authorities.

$25,000 Fire in South Billerica Ruins Farm

South Billerica, June 7 (AP)—Fire starting in a barn destroyed a 12-room house and a group of smaller adjoining buildings on the farm of Isadore L. Johnson, milk producer here, causing loss estimated at $25,000. Firemen, laying more than 3000 feet of hose, were unable to get water to the burning buildings.

Dog Case Too Much for Chief of Police

Buffalo, June 7 (AP)—Police Chief John Warnick of Blasdell, Erie county, has turned in his badge. Dogs have been his undoing.

The law says every dog, to be in good standing, must have an official tag on its neck, and Warnick decided it was a good law and should be enforced, so he called upon a couple of assistants and started out to get 'em.

In the roundup Warnick seized a dog owned by village trustee Harry Grinder, who is Warnick's brother-in-law. Grinder protested vigorously. Warnick spoke no soft words and the pair repaired to a designated spot and settled the matter with justice-by-fists.

Warnick got his badge. Grinder got the cuffs. The chief of police outwalloped the trustee.

Grinder, with a broken nose and other evidence to support his charge, secured a warrant for first degree assault and the chief was arraigned before a police justice at Hamburg, N. Y., and fined $50.

Warnick quit his job. Urged to stay by supporters, Warnick replied that arresting lawbreakers would be too hard if they could throw this incident up at him.

MRS. ADAMS IN PRISON GARB

Hartford, June 7 (AP)—Mrs. Clive E. Adams, who confessed killing her husband, Harry, Government meteorologist, today began her term of one to 10 years at Wethersfield. Both Mrs. Adams and her husband came from Stoneham, Mass.

The woman who was allowed to plead guilty to manslaughter charge and immediately sentenced was, in half an hour after her arrival at the prison, in prison garb of blue gingham dress and black cotton stockings. Tomorrow she will begin the light laundry work and the making of sheets and pillowcases.

Mrs. Adams, a direct descendant of the noted Massachusetts jurist, Joseph Storey, admitted placing a chloroform saturated handkerchief over his face as he lay asleep. In her confession she told a story of extreme cruelty on her husband's part.

FOUR GUILTY IN RUM TRIAL

Sentence will be imposed July 3 on the remaining four defendants adjudged guilty by a jury in the U. S. District Court, on rum-running charges at Cape Cod. They are David Rosen, Boston; Alec Levy, New Bedford; Charles J. Campbell, New Bedford, and George Hoerman, Fall River.

When the trial opened there were 13 defendants charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws. On the third day of the trial, Judge Hale directed a verdict in favor of nine of the defendants, who were promptly discharged.

The charges involved landing of liquor near Falmouth between April and December, 1928.

Following the verdict, Asst. U. S. Dist.-Atty. Hubert C. Thompson, in charge of the Government's case, was congratulated by his chief, U. S. Dist.-Atty. Frederick H. Tarr. Deputy Collector Thomas F. Finnegan and Owen P. McKenna took an active part in building up the case for the Government.

BROOKLINE HIGH STUDENTS IN CLASS DAY

The annual commencement exercises of the Brookline High school began today with class day exercises of the seniors at Cypress st. playgrounds and in the school auditorium. The program comprised classical numbers and athletic and military features.

Events opened with the march of the students from the school to the greensward, where they were grouped by classes. While the senior girls decorated the class numerals and initials the regimental drill was given by the boys of the four classes.

The students then marched to the school steps where the initials and numerals were raised in front of the building and the usual cheering followed.

The indoor program follows: Processional of the class of 1929; address of welcome by Chandler Hagen-Borger, President of Class; dedication, Arthur Stern; class history, Henry Humphries; class oration, Robert Levi; class poem, Melvin Anshen; selection, high school band; class prophecy, Josiah Lewis and Jacquelyn Denton; class will, Elliott Hurwitz; handing down the colors, presentation by the Brookline Aero Club, George Megson, Arthur Horn, Alfred Lo Cascio; class song, words by Ruth Quinby, music by Marguerite Stein.

Filene's Cold Storage for FURS

To girls who bought their FIRST fur coat LAST season:

Remember what a kick you got out of it? How you said to yourself, "I'm going to take good care of it, so I'll have it a long time—and get every last dollar's worth of wear from it."

Your furs are different from your other clothes. They need special care from you—and expert attention periodically.

You should start right with your first fur coat, learning the things it requires if you are to have the maximum of pleasure and wear. Right now, that means STORAGE.

Dangers threaten your furs if you keep them at home all summer—moths, fire, heat, dampness, theft—any one of which might leave your coat a complete loss.

So we, as fur experts, advise you to bring your coat to Filene fur storage now. For a charge of 3% of valuation, with reasonable minimums, we will clean your coat with blown air to remove dust and moth eggs, store it in freezing cold, dry, dustless vaults, and deliver it to you in the Fall, at your home, in the Fur Shop, fifth floor, or at the vaults in our Cambridge Building where you may get it while you wait if you're in a hurry.

FEAR GIRL MET FOUL PLAY IN CAMBRIDGE

Fearing her daughter, Ida, has been abducted or has met with foul play, Mrs. Mary Rego of 11 Marney st., East Cambridge, has asked the police to investigate as the girl was never before away from home overnight.

The girl is described as being 15 years old and large for her age. She wore a sleeveless orchid dress, with dark-brown trimmings, black hat, with silver lining, black shoes and fawn-colored stockings when she vanished.

According to Mrs. Rego's story to the police, the girl left home Wednesday night, saying she was going to the store to buy something. Police learned she visited a store near her home and talked to several persons, one of whom is said to have been a strange man.

Mention of a "strange man" being seen in the vicinity of Marney st. talking to little girls in that neighborhood has set the police guessing as to whether or not he is the same person who appeared in East Cambridge section more than a year ago and enticed a 16-year-old girl to accompany him to New York.

Mrs. Rego is on the verge of a nervous breakdown as a result of her daughter's disappearance.

South Boston Man Wins Naval Honor

William James O'Neil of South Boston has just been named by the commandant of the Naval Training Station at Newport, R. I., as the "Honor Man" of his company. This distinction has come to O'Neil after eight weeks' competition with 100 other selected men, and it carries the privilege of choosing an appointment to one of the navy trade schools or navy aviation schools, to further his advancement in the navy.

W. J. O'Neil

O'Neil makes his home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. O'Neil of 111 East Fifth st., South Boston.

Dies Suddenly on Eve of Visit to Sweden

East Longmeadow, June 7—John Peterson, 59, of Park pl. died suddenly in his home. Peterson was stricken while returning from the Union Station after expressing some trunks to New York. He and his wife were preparing to leave Saturday on a four months' vacation in Sweden.

Is Appointed

Eileen Franchon Millard of Newton, who has been appointed a teacher in the Boston schools. (Photo by J. E. Purdy.)

Miss Eileen Franchon Millard, of the graduating class of the Lesley School in Cambridge, has been appointed a teacher in the Boston schools.

Miss Millard is a native of Tamaqueuche, N. S., where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Millard now reside. She has made her home for many years, however, with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Cousens of Shornecliffe rd., Newton.

In addition to her diploma from the Lesley school, Miss Millard is a graduate of the Faelten School of Music in Boston. Her early schooling was obtained in the Newton grammar and high schools.

WINS FIGHT FOR HIS DAUGHTER

Judge Wait of the Supreme Court today granted the petition of Benjamin P. Bakewell of Pittsburg, for a writ of madamus to secure the custody of his daughter, Barbara, 6, who was brought from Pittsburgh by her mother Estelle B. Bakewell and now is with the latter at Wellesley.

Counsel for Bakewell and for Mrs. Bakewell had a conference with Judge Wait in the lobby, and as a result of it it is believed an arrangement was made whereby Barbara should be surrended to her father without being brought into court.

JAIL DRUG SELLER FOR ONE YEAR

Gong Say of New York with several aliases, arrested at a downtown hotel some time ago, in municipal court today pleaded guilty to have 40 cans of morphine in his possession with intent to sell. He was sentenced to one year in Charles st. jail.

At the time of his arrest Inspr. Sergt. Robert Caverly and Special Officer Daniel Curran of the narcotic unit, Say had a quantity of photographs and forged immigration papers. He was later indicted by a federal grand jury and is awaiting trial.

11 ALIENS AND SHIP CREW JAILED

Providence, June 7 (AP)—Skipper John J. Barros, 37, and mate of the Cape Verde schooner John R. Manta which brought 11 paying passengers here Wednesday, went to Providence County jail this morning. With them were the stowaways and another passenger. All are accused of conspiring to violate the immigration laws by bringing in aliens not accounted for by any quota.

They will be given a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Archibald C. Mattison at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The 11 Cape Verdeans, technically are held in $500 bail apiece, but as the stowaways have no legal status in this country, it is not believed that they would be released even if bail were offered, which is highly improbable.

HUNT WILD DOG PACK THROUGH SWAMPS

Taunton, June 7—Plans were being made today for an invasion into the swampland near Seekonk, where the "Killers" notorious pack of wild dogs have renewed their attacks on the livestock in the vicinity.

The gravity of the menace of the dogs was impressed on town authorities here when the Bristol County Commissioners approved the claims of George Ryan, of Seekonk, for $600 for the loss of 21 pigs which died of rabies.

Chairman Ellis P. Wescott of the Board of Selectmen of Seekonk, in connection with the case, appeared before the County Commissioners in this city and explained that some months ago George Ryan of that town had been paid money for pigs killed by dogs.

MEXICO-CHURCH PARLEY NEAR

Mexico City, June 7 (AP)—Actual negotiations for settlement of Mexico's church [illegible] are expected to begin here Monday between Monsignor Leopoldo Ruiz Y Flores, archbishop of Michoacan, Bishop Manuel Diaz of Tabasco, and government officials. Authoritative sources revealed the two prelates, former [illegible] whom was understood to have received a special papal commission for the task, were expected to arrive here tomorrow. There was a possibility that a basis of settlement would be announced before the end of next week.

Steering Gear Is Cause of Death

Northampton, June 7—Howard B. Clifford of Suffield, Conn., driver of a coupe which crashed into a tree on the Hatfield-Greenfield highway, May 28, fatally injuring his infant son and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Etta Newell, 57, was acquitted of negligent driving in District Court here. Testimony was given to show that a break in the steering gear caused the accident. Clifford and his wife escaped with minor injuries.

HOTEL GIRL IS FOUND SLAIN

Detroit, June 7 (INS)—Gagged and bound with her battered head wrapped in a towel, Patricia Fe Khirr, pretty 22-year-old cigar counter clerk, was found dead early today on an iron grating in an alley beside the hotel where she worked.

Police believe the girl was murdered as she left the hotel. Blood stains near the scene indicated that her body had been dragged some distance.

Two men were seen moving away from the body by Arthur Rowland, a guest in the hotel.

Memorial Day for Waltham Firemen

The members of the Waltham fire department will observe their annual memorial day Sunday. Delegations from the force will visit Grove Hill, Calvary, Mt. Auburn and the two Watertown cemeteries in the morning and decorate graves of departed members.

In the afternoon they will assemble at the central fire station and march to Mt. Feake Cemetery, where exercises will be held at the firemen's lot. The mayor and members of the city government will be present.

Yale's "Tap Day" Is Called "Barbarous"

New Haven, Ct., June 7 (AP)—Yale's historic "tap day" is described in the Yale Alumni Weekly today as "a barbarous practice of the older and more primitive Yale College, and as one that should go into the discard along with other "outworn Yale traditions."

"Tap day" is a day set aside annually for the election of members of senior societies from the junior class. The selected men are slapped between the shoulders by the seniors composing the existing membership.

At one time, says the weekly, election to the senior societies was an honor, for it "meant recognition of leadership and distinguished performance in the undergraduate world, plus character. But a change has come." This change is attributed partly to the rise of junior fraternities and the mixing of all classes of students in classrooms.

The weekly points out that there is much criticism and dissatisfaction among undergraduates with the "tap day" exercises, and suggests that if social lines are the only basis for fraternity election, the societies should admit it, "for no one can object if that is their only avowed policy."

Waltham Nurses in Memorial Fund

Waltham Graduate Nurses' Association has voted to establish a fund for care of sick nurses, in memory of the late Miss Helen E. Bullinger, who, a member of the association, was assistant to the superintendent of the Waltham Hospital Training School for Nurses.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

HOP DELAYED BY LACK OF FUNDS

London, June 7 (AP)—An Exchange telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen says the projected transatlantic flight of Capt. Albin Ahrenberg, Swedish airman, is being delayed by lack of funds to finance the trip.

Advices received at Copenhagen say Capt. Ahrenberg had announced he would not start unless in the course of the day, he received a further loan of about $6,000.

The captain had been planning to start tomorrow, making stops at Bergen, Iceland, Greenland and Belle Island in the St. Lawrence.

100 Hogs Lost in Fire at Weston

One hundred hogs were burned to death and 100 others with three horses and two cows were saved at an early morning fire in the old town farm barn in Conant road, Weston, today. The fire was discovered by a passing autoist. Chief Franklin C. Mulock and Weston fire department prevented the entire loss of the animals. The farm is owned by L. W. Dean, who lives some distance from the scene. The loss is estimated at $5000.

GREETERS HEAD FOR DETROIT

Sixty members of the New England Hotel Greeters Association will leave in a caravan of automobiles from a Springfield headquarters tomorrow morning to attend the national convention in Detroit. Large signs have been made which will be attached to each car to proclaim the virtues of New England.

Hotel executives of the Statler, Ritz Carlton, Copley-Plaza, Lenox, Brunswick, Parker House, Westminster and Empire leave Boston today after a farewell luncheon given by the Hotel Statler.

All along the route they will be guests of the chambers of commerce in the various cities. At Windsor, Ontario, Canada, they will be joined by 120 Greeters, and escorted to Detroit by five cars from that city.

Alf Deball of the Union Square Hotel, Somerville, is in charge of the arrangements committee until leaving Springfield; James T. Worthy of the Hotel Worthy, Springfield, is the general chairman of the caravan committee; Rodney W. Seymour of the Hotel Statler, vice president of the Greeters association, will act as president during the excursion.

Plan for "Night Before" Banquet

An important meeting of the "Night Before" the 17th of June banquet committee of Bunker Hill Council, Knights of Columbus, will be held tonight in Supple Hall of the council clubhouse on High st., Charlestown. David B. Shaw, charter member of the council and chairman of the banquet committee, will preside. For years the "Night Before" banquet of the Knights of Columbus has been a feature of the day's celebration.

BRANDEIS AND HOLMES SEEN AS PARTNERS

Washington, June 7 (AP)—One of the most notable "partnerships" in the history of the American judiciary, exemplified by the line "Justices Holmes and Brandeis dissent" —has been more closely welded by their participation in the Supreme Court term just ended.

The two Massachusetts justices, who throughout their tenure on the nation's highest bench have been noted for their agreement on constructional questions, wound up their work for the recent session with disagreements from the majority view in two cases of outstanding importance, the O'Fallon Railway case and the fight for citizenship by Rosika Schwimmer, Chicago pacifist.

Holmes has been a member of the court since 1902. He is the senior in point of service and his 88 years make him the oldest man who has ever held a place on that bench. Brandeis is 73 and has been an associate justice since 1916.

Added to the notable frequency with which both justices have dissented vigorously from majority opinions of the court is their reputation for clarity and style in presenting their views, whether speaking for the majority or as individuals.

The venerable Holmes, whose astonishing youthfulness and virility of expression has aroused amazement of men 50 years his junior, particularly is noted for his epigrammatic writings, or as he terms them, "fragments of my fleece that I have left upon the hedges of life."

GYPSY BUNCOES GIRL FOR $900

Providence, R. I., June 7—An ancient swindle is believed by police to have been worked on Miss Rose Jasus of Providence by a band of gypsies who came here from Worcester two weeks ago. They left, taking her bank savings of $900.

The girl had been worried over her mother's ill health. On the advice of the gypsies, she withdrew her $900 and allowed the fortune teller to wrap up the money with $18 of "blessed money" furnished by the Romany tribe. This money—so the girl thought was then locked up by her in a family trunk at home. She was solemnly warned that if she touched the money within two weeks, she and her mother would die.

The gypsies left two days in er and she unlocked her trunk. The $18 was there but the $900 had been cleverly palmed in the wrapping.

Molly Picon With Yiddish Operetta

Molly Picon and her company of Yiddish players will present an operetta entitled "Hello Molly," at the Arlington for an engagement of two nights beginning tonight. The score has been written by the veteran of Yiddish composers, Joseph Rumshinsky, book by R. S. Rimenff and lyrics by Miss Picon.

Molly Picon

Those who play important roles in support of Miss Picon, are: Sam Kasten, Max Wilner, Gertrude Bullman, Betty Semonoff, Rose Greenfield, Max Rosenblatt, Clara Honigman, Herman Sherotzky, Leon Charas and Sam Levin. The production has been staged by Jacob Kalich. After its engagement here the company will tour the principal cities, heading towards Chicago.

Public Bequests in Mayor Chapin's Will

Bangor, Me., June 7—Several Bangor institutions will eventually receive bequests in the will of Arthur Chapin, late Mayor, filed for probate.

The city of Bangor eventually receives a sixth of the estate as a trust fund for beautifying Chapin Park, to be forfeited to the other beneficiaries if the name is ever changed. One-sixth goes to the Bucksport Seminary, one-sixth to the Good Samaritan Home of Bangor, one-sixth to All Souls' Congregational Church, one-sixth to the Methodist Church at Orrington Centre as a memorial to the children of his cousin Harry B. Hincks.

Mrs. Garland Dies in Brooks Hospital

Harriet M. (Gifford) Garland wife of James P. Garland of Saco, Me., and sister of Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., died at Brooks Hospital, Brookline. Funeral services, which will be private and will be held in Saco Saturday, June 8, at 2 p. m. Mrs. Garland is survived by her husband and three children, and by three sisters and five brothers.

Shanghai, China, June 7 (AP)—The U. S. gunboat Luzon, which went aground Wednesday night at the breakwater at the mouth of the Hsang Pu river, was still aground today, several attempts to get her off having failed.

Bandits Get $5000

Bristol, Pa., June 7—Invading the Cornwell State Bank, three bandits held at bay four employes and a depositor, locked them in the vault, scooped up $5000 and sped away.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised duly in the For Rent columns.

You Gotta Have 12 Hats, Says Menjou

New York, June 7 (AP)—well-dressed gentlemen, in the opinion of Adolphe Menjou, should have a dozen hats, at the very least, and England has it all over the U. S. A. as the land of well-haired men.

I. C. C. Denies Plea to Reopen Coal Case

Washington, June 7 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today denied an application of the Western Pennsylvania Coal Traffic Bureau and the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad to reopen the Lake Cargo Coal case.

Rum Baron Slain in Mansion Driveway

Toledo, O., June 7 (INS)—While his 11-year-old daughter looked on, Earl S. Boarker, 38, alleged Toledo liquor baron, was shot and killed in the driveway to his fashionable residence by two men, police say, were rival gangsters.

BRITISH SCURRY FOR BERTHS ON AIR PALACES

London, June 7—Application for passage on the first long flights of the two new giant British dirigibles are pouring into the air ministry, even before the airships have been thoroughly tested.

At Howden, the R100, and at Cardington, the R101—trail blazers in a plan to link the empire by air—are undergoing last construction touches preparatory to the first test flights this month.

If the first ventures into the air are successful, the R100 will soar over the Atlantic to Canada this fall, while the R101 swings down into India and Egypt.

Offers of $5000 have been made for passage on the first flight of either air liner. Among the first applicants was Lady Drummond Hay, a passenger on the flight of the Graf Zeppelin.

The R100, controlled by a private concern, may carry passengers, but the R101, government built for technical and research purposes, probably will have only high officials aboard on its flight to Egypt and India.

Because of last-minute delays, the air ministry is withholding the date of the first trial flights of both ships. Short flights will be made over England before they will be ready to attempt the longer trips outlined by the air ministry.

Both dirigibles are built to carry fuel sufficient for a flying radius of 5000 miles.

WALTHAM TO BAR AUTO THUMBERS

Unless "thumbers" abandon Waltham as the place in which to seek a lift from motorists on the highways, they may make the lockup, according to orders issued by Chief Richard Currin.

For the time being, officers have been instructed to keep all "thumbers" from the roadway, and officials may decide to take further action, either on complaints of disturbance, or unnecessarily blocking traffic.

Activities in that line were once maintained from a position on the sidewalks, but now the "thumbers" walk a good way out onto the road to solicit a ride, the chief said.

Girl Is Bride of Jilter On Eve of Balm Suit

Miss Louise Forenski of West 6th st., South Boston, was being led to the altar by John Gudonis, a South Boston real estate operator, when process servers were preparing to serve the bridegroom with papers in a $25,000 breach of promise suit instituted by his bride. Gudonis, unaware of the suit and attachment of all his property in South Boston was receiving congratulations and with his bride, was being showered with confetti at almost the same moment that his bride's writ and declaration were being filed in Suffolk Superior Court.

James A. Vitelli, attorney for Miss Forenski, received a telephone call from his client, informing him that she had been married to the man she was suing. About a month ago, Miss Forenski, who is 22 and the daughter of Mrs. Josephine Forenski, asked her attorney to bring the suit. She claimed that Gudonis had courted her and failed to keep his agreement to marry her. The suit is now pending for trial.

HOOVER INSISTS ON SPEED TO DRY UP U. S.

Washington, June 7 (INS)—President Hoover demands speedy action in prohibition enforcement.

His impatience, because of existing conditions, and his unwillingness to wait two years while his civilian law enforcement commission studies the abstract question of what makes the American people so lawless, spurred him to call upon Congress to get busy, and he ordered the prohibition bureau to tighten up everywhere.

As a result, Congress had before it today Hoover's request to appoint a select committee to work during the summer so legislative wrenches may be applied to the enforcement machinery when Congress meets again in the fall, and the Treasury is engaged in another of its spectacular efforts to mop up the wringing wet Detroit sector.

In his request to Congress Mr. Hoover plain indicated he considered existing conditions deplorable. He said he wanted to secure "the utmost expedition in the reorganization" of enforcement activities.

The principal change contemplated is the transfer of prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to the Department of Justice.

COPS SAY SAMMY NOT ABUSED

Providence, June 7—The police commission and officials of Brown University will meet today to discuss the recent rioting of Brown freshmen and the clash between the students and police on the eve of Memorial Day when two persons were wounded by gunplay and scores of others injured by police sticks.

It is said the police commission is in possession of a written report from each of the 150 policemen, from chief down to patrolmen, who witnessed the series of disturbances.

It is said the commissioners are thoroughly equipped to present the police side to the extent of showing that "The police refrained from acting until they had endured all that was reasonably humanly expected they should."

Besides evidence that the police were egged and stoned, the commissioners claim to have evidence to show that Sam Flora, Brown athlete, who stated that he was maltreated while in a police station after his arrest, was no more roughly handled than was necessary to get him into a cell.

SEARCH SHIP FOR RUM

After a 15-minute chase, Coast Guard Patrol C. G. 2338 boarded the new motor yacht Malbo of Montreal, in search of contraband at T wharf. After search, the captain, Paul Meisner of Montreal, was ordered to report to immigration and customs authorities today.

The Malbo, flying a British naval reserve flag, left Montreal last Wednesday to outfit at Boston. Built at Shelburne, Nova Scotia, it is equipped with 100-horsepower Diesel engines and has a length of 80 feet, with a beam of 16. Captain Meisner said that after fitting out, he would await orders from the owner, George Hearn of Montreal. The craft carries a crew of nine with accomodations for 20, and is now equipped for swordfishing.

MISS MORROW TO BE GUEST HERE

Miss Guzine Ihsan of Turkey, student at Wellesley, will relate the impressions of a Near East student in Boston. Dr. Kathryn Newell Adams of Walpole, Mass., is president of the college, which now has some 500 graduates who are distinguished as physicians, journalists, librarians, lawyers and educators.

Gives $5 Bail When He Appeals $1 Fine

What is said to be the lowest bail ever imposed on anyone convicted in the municipal court of any offense, the sum of $5, was given by Antonio Cammarato of 115 Endicott st., barber and real estate agent, who appealed from a fine of $1, when convicted of assault and battery with a towel on a small boy.

Cammarato claimed he had been much annoyed by a group of boys playing about his door, and preventing him from properly doing his work.

Harmsworth Leaves $7,220,000 Estate

London, June 7—Sir Hildebrand Harmsworth, brother of Lord Rothemere and of the late Lord Northcliffe, who died recently, disposed of an estate of $7,220,000 in his will.

He bequeathed one-tenth of the entire to his alma mater, Merton College, Oxford, for the creation of five scholarships.

The scholarships are to be tenable for two years and are available only to British subjects who are Protestants and whose parents and paternal grandfather and great-grandfather were British-born Protestants.

Suicide Foiled for Second Time

For the second time in a few weeks Frank M. Cox, single, of 199 West Fifth st., South Boston, attempted suicide by inhaling illuminating gas in his room.

Matthew H. Darcy of 201 West Fifth st., smelled gas and traced it to Cox's room. Gas was flowing from a wall jet and Cox was unconscious on the floor. As in the previous case, police worked over Cox in the ambulance and revived him before he arrived at the hospital.

Tech Excellent Finishing School, Girl Advises

Miss Ruth Davies, Greater Boston's only girl to receive a degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is authority for the statement that Tech is an excellent finishing school for the young girl who desires to acquire poise.

With fluffy chestnut hair and big brown eyes, Miss Davies received her Bachelor of Science as one of the six young women to graduate from Tech and one of the two to receive tat particular degree in a class of 550 young men.

Miss Davies, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Davies of 80 Prince st., Jamaica Plain, has had all types of educational experience on which to base her conclusions. She admitted that she had had years at private boarding schools for girls, and yet she had acquired more poise in the smelly laboratories of Tech than at the teas and bridge parties of these schools.

"I learned how to act perfectly natural while reciting in a classroom filled with men and in which I was the only girl," Miss Davies declared. "One gets used to the men there. I went to Tech because I felt, that after so many years in girls' schools, I needed a few years there to acquire poise and dignity. It is hard at Tech and I don't know that I should advise a girl to go right there from preparatory school. Rather, it might be better to save Tech for graduate study."

After four years of chemistry, in which she took her degree, Miss Davies will now enter the field of music and matrimony. "I don't expect to do anything in chemistry, for I expect to be married in the fall. No, it is not a man in Tech, as you might suppose. After that I shall study music, for I can do that in the home."

SHRINERS PLAN TO OBSERVE ALL LAWS

Los Angeles, Cal., June 7.—Pledging hearty support to the law enforcement program of President Hoover, Leo V. Youngworth of Los Angeles was installed as imperial potentate as the 1929 shrine convention ended here.

Next year's convention city was not selected when the imperial council decided that the list of invitations was insufficient. The selection will be left to the imperial potentate and the hotel advisory committee. The imperial council announced that New Orleans and Toronto, Canada, were definitely under consideration as possible 1930 convention cities, but that no decision would be made for a matter of 30 days.

In a telegram to President Hoover, the imperial council said:

"The 600,000 nobles of this order are all devoted citizens, true to their President and loyal to the country's constitution and laws and their co-operation we trust may be most helpful to you in your efforts to re-establish a wholesome respect for law and order."

Mr. Youngworth succeeded Frank C. Jones of Houston, Tex., to the post of imperial potentate.

In addition to imperial potentate Youngworth, the council will be composed of 12 members including Dana S. Williams, Lewiston, Me., imperial first ceremonial master.

SENATE REBELS WIN TARIFF FIGHT

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.

Washington, June 8—How easily a progressive coalition made up of Democrats and Independent Republicans can, in an emergency, wrest control of the Senate from its reactionary Republican leaders is clearly shown by what happened in that body when it adopted more than a year ago the tariff resolution introduced by Senator McMaster of South Dakota.

Reciting the fact that "many of the rates in the existing tariff schedules are excessive," the McMaster resolution declared it to be the sense of the Senate:

1. "That the Senate favors an immediate revision, downward of such excessive rates, establishing a closer parity between agriculture and industry, believing it will result in the general benefit of all"; and

2. "That such tariff revision should be enacted during the present session of Congress."

Forty-two Democrats, with the assistance of 12 Progressive Republicans, forced the Senate to adopt this resolution by a vote of 54 to 32. And only two Democrats joined with reactionary Republicans in opposition to it—Senators Broussard of Louisiana and Kendrick of Wyoming.

Of the 54 senators who voted for the McMaster resolution, 48 are still in the Senate, 33 of whom are Democrats and 15 Republicans.

TEXAN A RECRUIT

Meantime, Senator Connally of Texas, who came to the Senate in place of Senator Mayfield, has already publicly protested against the excessive schedules in the new tariff bill as it passed the House. So it seems reasonable to expect that he will join the same progressive coalition that put the McMaster resolution through the Senate.

Only six Republicans with progressive tendencies went on record a year ago against the McMaster resolution. They were Senators Couzens of Michigan, Cutting of New Mexico, Johnson of California, Jones of Washington, McNary of Oregon and Schall of Minnesota.

How these six senators will vote when the House tariff bill comes up in the Senate is not yet known. But the organizers of a progressive coalition have hopes of enlisting the assistance of at least two of this group in an attempt to prevent the House bill from becoming a law.

NEW SENATORS TO AID

This would give the progressive coalition 48 votes to start with and it seems altogether reasonable that from the new senators elected last November that three or four additional votes can be obtained to give that combination the majority necessary to defeat the House bill and write a new tariff bill that will square with the demands of the McMaster resolution.

When a resolution similar to the McMaster resolution came before the House last year after the Senate had adopted the McMaster resolution it was referred to the committee on rules and was pigeonholed for the remainder of the session by the same reactionary leaders of that body who heard behind closed doors the lobbyists of special interests when they appeared before the ways and means committee and kept the doors of that committee closed until its Republican members had framed the Hawley bill and who then jammed that bill through the House with the assistance of "gag-rule" that shut off adequate debate.

"Coming events cast their shadows before them," and the pigeonhols by the House rules committee of a resolution calling for downward revision of excessive rates in the present tariff law, foreshadowed the passage of just such an indefensible tariff bill as the House has sent to the Senate.

Adoption by the Senate of the McMaster resolution would seem, therefore, to foreshadow the defeat by the Senate of a tariff bill that denies outright the demands of the McMaster resolution.

HUB MAN URGES VET SURVEY

Washington, June 7—On his last visit to the White House, Joseph H. Hanken of Boston, department commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, requested the President to appoint a commission to study the non-compensatable cases of war veterans, with a view to recommending legislation which may be necessary to care for these veterans adequately and fairly. Four million persons are involved, Hanken said.

The President expressed much interest in the matter and asked Hanken to file a brief with him.

Hanken was presented to the President by a group of Massachusetts members of Congress, including Mrs. Rogers, Rep. Underhill and Rep. Martin.

LUMBER FRAUD CHARGED

Washington, June 6—The Federal Trade Commission has issued complaints against 46 lumber companies in California, Oregon, New Mexico, Arizona and Nevada, charging misrepresentation in the sale of western yellow pine and white pine.

The companies include some of the largest lumber producers on the west coast. Hearings were set for July 5.

The lumber in question, the complaints declared, lacked many qualities of true white pine. The designation white pine was employed, the commission declared, to avoid market disadvantages from possible confusion in the minds of buyers of western yellow pine with southern yellow pine.

COOLIDGE GIVES REVIEW OF BOYHOOD

The first political experience of Calvin Coolidge in his long career climaxed by the Presidency was as a salesman of apples and popcorn, the ex-President details in the July issue of Hearst's International-Cosmopolitan Magazine

This, the latest installment of his autobiography, is the most interesting of any thus far published, and the setting is in Calvin Coolidge's native town of Plymouth, nesting just above the famous mountain notch in Vermont.

"I was accustomed to carry apples and popcorn balls to the town meeting to sell," relates the former chief executive of the nation, "mainly because my grandmother said my father had done so when he was a boy, and I was exceedingly anxious to grow up to be like him."

Throughout the installment, the son's devotion to the father, the late Col. John Coolidge, is evidenced strongly.

"As I went about with my father when he collected taxes," the former President writes, "I knew that when taxes were levied some one had to work to earn the money to pay them. I saw that public debt was a burden on all of the people in a community, and while it was necessary to meet the needs of a disaster, it cost much in interest and ough to be retired as soon as possible

"At home there were numerous law books. In this way I grew up with a working knowledge of the foundations of my State and Nation and a taste for history. My education began with a set of blocks which had on them the Roman numerals and the letters of the alphabet. It is not yet finished

"Country life does not always have breadth, but it has depth. It is neither artificial nor superficial, but is kept close to the realities.

"While I can think of many pleasures we did not have, and many niceties of culture with which we were unfamiliar, yet if I had the power to order my life anew I would not dare to change that period of it. If it did not afford me the best that there was it abundantly provided the best that there was for me."

Drastic Reductions To Clear Our Stocks

OPEN SATURDAY TILL 9 P. M.

As a doctor makes a diagnosis of a patient's condition, so do we as merchants make a diagnosis of our condition by taking inventory of our stock twice a year—July and December. We consider it good business logic to avoid a heavy stock condition on July 1st, stocktaking date. So, through the month of June, we offer store wide reductions to clear our stocks. A few Nationally Advertised price-restricted items excepted! Such an event should prove of tremendous importance, coming as it does right now, when thousands of Brides To Be and Brides of Other Days are having new furniture for their homes. If you would SAVE, then by all means be here during this SALE.

The Curious Quizzer

Somerville Folk Answer His Daily Question and Pose for Pictures

THE QUESTION

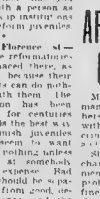
MRS. RUTH A. McLEAN, Arthur st.—Many children of both sexes seem to be born with unruly, unmanageable characteristics which cause them to be considered bad boys and girls by their neighborhoods. For such children as the parents have no control over, except in extreme cases I suggest that the children be sent to a trade school where they would learn a trade and leadership of kind instructors. If a growing child shows a tendency to wrongdoing, he should be talked to and punished in many ways by his parents. From what I have had called to my attention here in Somerville it is not humane in saving that confinement of boys in reformatories does more harm than it does good.

MRS. BERNICE E. RYDER, Arthur st.—Whipping children or [illegible] them to reformatories is not a proper method in correcting badness. The most children who do things they know to be wrong. Whipping them makes them vindictive and boys and girls sent away for months or for years to a state reformatory are worse when released than before they were sent away. The proper punishment should be dealt out to disobedient children by denying them pleasures they expect to enjoy. If the home punishment is advocated judiciously by the father or by the mother of such little rascals there would be need of fewer reformatories.

JAMES CULLEN, Perkins st.—The best way to make a bad boy become a good boy is not by sending him to a reformatory with other boys as bad as himself or worse, perhaps, than any of those boys place. Reformation is not in houses of confinement so called and only are [illegible] for long periods. When they have served their time they necessarily must have a purer type of [illegible] than they possessed before being sent away. Talk to a boy or a girl who is inclined to leave the straight and narrow path, in a sensible way. Use persuasion as you would in signing with a person as you as yourself. Lock up insane people are poor places to reform juveniles.

FRED JOSLE, Florence st.—Boys and girls in the reformatories are placed there, as a rule because their parents can do nothing with them. The question has been asked for centuries what is the best way to punish juveniles who seem to want doing nothing unless it is at somebody else's expense. Bad boys should be separated from good, decent ones, and the proper place for the bad ones is in institutions provided by the state. Some way has to be provided to punish wrong-doers, and for them the best place I know of is in a house of correction. When they come out again I think most of the juveniles will have shown improvement in the habits which caused them to be put away.



Smith Buys Home for Clubhouse

Northampton, June 7.—Smith College has purchased the large residence of the late Mrs. Alexander McCalmon, widow of the noted manufacturer, at 10 Prospect st, and will convert it into a students' clubhouse, it was announced today by Mrs. Laura W. L. Sekaes, warden of the college.

WANTS MISSING DAUGHTER TO RETURN

Manchester, N. H., June 7.—Pleading that his missing daughter return home, Herbert Yeaton of Holbrook asked police to broadcast word that the girl will be welcomed home.

"My daughter Leona expected a call down because she quit her job, but she will not be scolded if she will only come home. My wife and I want her home again and she will be welcome," Yeaton asserted.

In the meantime Manchester police were trying to find Earl N. Stuart of the latter's 14 days' friend of the girl. They desire to question him in regard to the girl's disappearance Tuesday night.

The police are also endeavoring to locate the girl.

Mr. Yeaton does not believe that his daughter, who is 16, contemplates marriage but that she left home because she was tired of work. She may, he said, be headed for relatives in Plattsburg, N. Y. or to others in Iowa, he believes.

ARRESTS ROB GIRL OF HER STATES

May Owens alias Ruth Whitman, 18, of Orleans, Vt., found herself today virtually "a girl without a State" because of a criminal record in her home State and another against her here.

She was arrested on a serious charge in a Pine Hill ave. apartment a few days ago placed on probation for a year with $100 fine suspended and given over to the probation officer attached to the Dorchester District Court for return to Vermont.

Interrogation among Orleans authorities disclosed that she is not wanted in Vermont.

She was re-arrested today at the Charles st. home on a charge of being idle and disorderly. In the court [illegible] again taken before Dorchester

Worcester Mayor Writes Goodwin

Worcester, June 7.—In a letter sent to Elliott H. Goodwin, civil service commissioner, Mayor O'Hara takes exceptions to a recent statement of Mr. Goodwin to the effect that medical examinations of [illegible] city laborers were started here at the request of the present mayor. Mayor O'Hara states that nearly a year ago in a letter to the secretary of the civil service committee, upon his request the opinion that unless there is a change for the better in conducting the physical examinations it might be better to [illegible] that medical examinations of [illegible] them altogether.

G. O. P. STORM BREWS OVER PATRONAGE

Washington, June 7 (AP)—The attitude of the Hoover administration toward selection of judges and district attorneys is brewing a storm in Senate Republican ranks.

Majority members for years have regarded their recommendations for appointees to federal bench and district attorneyships as final. It has been the practice of preceding administrations to accept Senatorial recommendations.

But President Hoover and Attorney Gen. Mitchell have indicated they intend to make a close study of all candidates and won't be bound by senatorial recommendations.

Mr. Hoover is understood to take the view that federal appointees are his responsibility and therefore he is determined to name men to the bench he regards as best qualified.

Atty.-General Mitchell has rejected some recommendations for district attorneys for the eastern district of Pennsylvania which were understood to have been sent to him by Senator-elect Vare.

FR. CORRIGAN IN DEFENSE OF YOUTH

The problem of the youth of America was placed squarely in the hands of the parents by the Rev. James L. J. Corrigan, S. T. L., professor of Sociology at Boston College, in an address before 500 members of the Boston Home and School Association in the assembly hall of the Girls Latin school, Huntington ave., Back Bay.

"America's youth is not corrupt or bad. That is a lie," Father Corrigan declared. "Any teacher who comes in contact with youth must testify that they are, as a whole, splendid, full of valor and have lofty ideals."

Father Corrigan was the principal speaker and as he made point after point home to his audience, stressing the duty of parents and the importance of home life, he was cheered roundly by the capacity audience.

Mrs. Nina M. Gould, retiring president of the association, presided. After several speakers had been heard and several annual reports read she introduced the Rev. Fr. Corrigan as one who needs no introduction to anyone in Boston or Massachusetts.

Father Corrigan began by saying the boys who [illegible] knew of no finer home than that in which the organ grinder and monkey brought the parents together to chat pleasantly discuss the problems of the children.

"There is certainly widespread alarm and concern about the conditions among our youth," he said. "No less a personage than our President has called attention to the dangers surrounding the youth of today and the committee he appointed lately will surely look into this problem.

"It is a ridiculous thing to say that 40 million young people in our schools are bad.

WARNS OF DANGER SPOTS

"Then there are those who take the attitude that nothing is wrong at all. I think that the true attitude is that there is nothing wrong with the mass but danger surrounds the group and our duty is to safeguard it, and it is high time that we took time to safeguard this asset of the nation.

"The symptoms are all around us. The criminal age has gone down. Thirty years ago the criminal age was from 35 to 40. Today judges tell us the criminal age is from 20 to 21. What does that indicate? There is something going on when boys and girls just out of high school are sent away to prison before they reach maturity.

"We are told of the daring conduct of young people. Some ascribe it to the prohibition law. I am told on good authority that some young women will not go out to a dance unless assured that the man is carrying a flask.

"If this is so, then surely our young people are in danger."

Father Corrigan then pointed out the three "symptoms" of the trouble. The new age, which he said, had gone ahead much more than spiritual control, the new teaching, which he denounced vigorously as being a doctrine taught in some schools and colleges which instructs the youth to think out their own lives and work out their problems without the aid of parents; and the new freedom, which he called the "age of the automobile," with parents unaware of the whereabouts of their children except when they are in school.

He said parents are showing tendency to throw the whole task of bringing up children and setting their feet in the right path on the schools and the teachers. He pointed out several instances where parents have neglected their children—let them roam at will without supervision—until a sour word and brought the fact to them too late.

TELLS PARENTS' DUTY

Five objectives were pointed out for parents to attain in their relationship with their children. They were preventive, positive, corrective, constructive and supplemental measures. Each of these is explained in detail.

The newly elected officers of the association are: Mrs. Jennie M. Stanley, president; Michael J. Downey, Walter C. Winston and Mrs. Cornelius G. McMahon, vice presidents; Miss A. Isabelle Timmons, secretary, and Allen H. Ryder, treasurer.

Mrs. Gould, who retired from the presidency after two years' service, was presented with a bouquet and a rising vote of thanks from the members of the association.

SOCIETY KEEN FOR BIG HORSE RACES ON COUNTRY CLUB TRACK

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dillon Coming From New York for Event

WHEREVER SOCIETY gathers these days one is certain to hear that eager, anxious question: "What box will you have for the races?" Not to secure one for the big Country Club races on June 15 and 17 would be almost a calamity in some fast families, one must, of course, entertain in traditional Boston manner and the seating chart therefore assumes special importance in many a fashionable house. Out of town guests are expected from every direction.

FROM BOX 23 ON THE TOP tier Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dillon of New York will have full view of the performances of the Essex stables which he and Ravard Tuckerman, Jr., own. Mr. and Mrs. Dillon are to be house guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Sharpe, recently moved into the old Palm Peabody estate, so to speak, on the Brookline side of the Longwood district, and the Sharpes have asked the Dillons to occupy the box next to the A. Henry Higginsons and the Reginald Birds. Mr. and Mrs. H. Wendell Endicott and Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Perkins have boxes near the center. Gen. Francis Peabody and his family will have their usual position in box 7. Mr. and Mrs. Phineas Sprague in box 9 are to have Mr. and Mrs. James F. Shaw and Mr. and Mrs. Terbell of New York as guests.

ONE DISCERNS ALREADY that these races are for everybody interested in the old time New England "sport of kings" revived three years ago by such enthusiasts as the Augustus P. Goodwins and the Sumner Pingrees of Piping House Farm. But society loses her informal dinners at The Country Club on such occasions. The reservations for these already include important ones being given by Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Mesere, Miss Marion Greeley, Dr. F. B. Talbot, Walter C. Baylies, Mrs. John T. Whitehead and several others. Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin are entertaining 150 guests there at dinner on the 17th.

MISS JULIET GREENE, WITH bags plentifully pasted with foreign labels, today tripped up the steps of her home, 293 Commonwealth ave., for the first time in two months. For Miss Greene is back from her Mediterranean cruise as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Windeler and their daughter, Miss Evelyn. The party spent some time in England after leaving the Riviera, cruising about the blue southern waters since the first of April. And the next pleasant thing on Juliet's calendar is choosing a summer home where she and her mother, Mrs. Bertram Greene, will spend the warm weather months.

THE CHURCH OF THE ADVENT is to receive another lovely society bride a week from tomorrow, when Miss Mattie Louise Gray of Commonwealth ave. and Henry F. Godfrey, Jr., of New York take their vows before its altar, at noon. Bishop Lawrence and the Rev. Endicott Peabody of Groton will officiate at the ceremony. Miss Edith Gray, a sister of the bride elect, will be her maid of honor. Miss Maude Williams of Richmond, Miss Katharine Clark of Philadelphia, Mrs. Hugh Fennell of New York, Miss Margaret West worth of Milton, Mrs. John Burrick of Concord, and Miss Virginia Curtin of Boston are to be Miss Gray's bridesmaids.

FROM DONGAN HILLS, Staten Island, will come Arthur Mills to act as best man for Mr. Godfrey, who is a Harvard '29 man. The usher corps will be George Tupper of Brookline, Kenneth Robinson, Ludlow Cramer and Henry Lewis of New York, Bowman MacArthur of Washington and Thomas Dunn of Bridgeport.

Miss Juliet Greene returned today from a two-month cruise on the Mediterranean as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Windeler and their daughter, Miss Evelyn. Miss Greene is the daughter of Mrs. Bertram Greene of Commonwealth ave.

Numerous Informal Dinners Planned for Out-of-Town Guests

A large reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Gray on Commonwealth ave. will follow the ceremony. A European honeymoon is planned. Oyster Bay, Long Island, has been chosen for the new home after October 1.

THERE'S AN OPEN DOOR AT Holiday Hill in Ipswich today, for Mr. and Mrs. Sigourney Thayer, erstwhile travellers abroad, have arrived at their summer abode. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bader, recently up from Florida, are at their Dover estate for the warm months. The travel oracle also discovers Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft in New York at the Ambassador and Mrs. Hartley M. Dodge (Geraldine Rockefeller) anticipating a visit to Bacon chapel. And Helen Hart, Mason of Beacon st. is to summer abroad.

A LEE OF THE NINTH GENERATION descended from Samuel Lee of Watertown has pledged his troth with a young woman of equally distinguished ancestry in New York. They are Cuthbert Lee, son of Dr. John C. Lee and Mrs. Lee, now of Gloucester, and Miss Josephine McClellan of 33 West Fifty-first st., New York. Miss McClellan is the daughter of the late Gen. and Mrs. John McClellan of Washington. She is the great-great-granddaughter of Theodoric Lee of Virginia, brother of Gen. Henry Henry Lee. The engaged couple are not related despite early Lee ancestors possessed by both.

SELLING CAKES AND CANDIES for sweet charity has its compensations for the debutantes who serve at the Longfellow fete until the last visitor has supped this evening. For when such fine duties are finished the young people are to have a smart dance in charge of Mrs. Harold Read. Miss Margaret Ford is directing the Junior League girls at the supper.

'400' FOLK MAY FACE JONES ACT TRIAL

New York, June 7. The lowly-sounding "five and ten" Jones law of five years and $10,000 fine for violating the Volstead act was scheduled to "crash" the social register in its first real coming out party.

Indictments against Count Maynce de Polignac and 33 others were planned today by federal authorities in connection with the alleged million-dollar society bootlegging ring, whose slogan was said to have been, "Better liquor for the best people."

Approximately 150 names of social registerites were in the hands of dry agents who swooped down on the Fifth ave. headquarters and arrested Count Polignac.

These society purchasers may be prosecuted, according to William J. Calhoun, who directed the 40 raiding agents, on one or all three charges procuring the commission of a crime, conspiring to violate the Volstead and Jones acts and having knowledge of a crime committed against Federal laws and failing to report it.

MORE ANIMALS FOR BOSTON ZOO

Whether Boston has more than its share of "blind tigers" or not, Mayor Nichols has instructed William P. Long, chairman of the board of park commissioners, to purchase for the Franklin zoo one male Bengal tiger, sound of wind and limb, appropriate stripes and good eyesight, priced at $1200.

The other additions, which in a communication to Secretary Edward Condon from Commissioner Long, will be added to the zoo "for the benefit of the public" are two large male Chacma baboons, one male black cockatoo, one large pig-tail male monkey, one pair vulturine guinea fowls, two medium green African monkeys, four Sooty mangabeys, two Mona monkeys, one large Gelada baboon.

New York, June 7 (AP). J. P. Morgan, senior member of the American delegation to the Paris reparations conference, returned today on the liner Mauretania, saying nothing about the conference, but breaking his custom as a sea traveler by posing for ship news photographers.

Women Plan Poppy Fields Along Highways

Colrain, June 7—The often dusty, and in some parts unsightly, highway from this town to Griswoldville promises to hold out unusual allurements for tourists this summer.

Members of the Colrain Women's Club have decided to make the roadsides attractive by turning them into fields of brilliantly colored poppies. The idea has been discussed for some time and permission of the State highway department to carry out the project was received.

SIXTEEN ARE AT PROTEST MEETING

A protest meeting at the Elks Hotel which was attended by 16 members of the Women's Democratic Club of Massachusetts, widened a split in the ranks of the membership.

The women claimed that they had not been notified of the meeting at which arrangements were made for the annual installation of officers, and furthermore that the meeting had not been called legally. But after discussing the matter the women voted to "be big enough and broad enough," to abide by the plans already made.

While the women were gathering, however, a hotel employe locked the door of the lounge because the Women's Democratic Club would not be responsible for the expenses.

Vincent P. Davey, a New York deaf mute who was arrested while offering contributions for its rescue was found guilty today in Municipal Court of vagrancy and given a suspended sentence on condition he leaves the State at once.

When Davey's case came up difficulty was experienced in finding an interpreter, but finally William F. Carey, in the dock for larceny, announced he understood the sign language, and he was pressed into service.

'TALKIE' FIGHT TO A FINISH IS ACTORS' PLAN

Los Angeles, Cal., June 7 (AP)—Frank Gillmore, president of the Actors' Equity Association today predicted a fight to a finish with the Association of Motion Picture Producers over contracts for talking pictures.

Two members of the Equity Association, Gillmore announced, have refused to sign motion picture contracts under the Producers terms. Gillmore declined to reveal the actors' names, but said Equity did not plan a walkout.

Equity, in asking for working agreements with the picture producers, demanded the producers hire only actors in good standing in the organization, and sought to establish a 48 hour week with double time for overtime.

Maintaining the demand was an attempt to force a virtual closed shop, the producers declined flatly to be restricted by Equity's demand.

FLAG WINNERS ENTERTAINED IN NEW YORK

New York, June 7—The flag champions touring the eastern part of the United States on a patriotic pilgrimage started their first day in New York with a visit to the Woolworth Building, lower Manhattan and other parts of civic and historic importance paid their respects to Mayor Jimmie Walker and wound up the session with a trip to Coney Island as guests of the New York American and the management of Luna Park.

The highlights of the parade were the reception by the Mayor and the fun at Coney Island. Arriving at the City Hall the champions were greeted by Mayor Walker who declared that the city and congressional men of their achievement of were the highest honors of the profession in the flag contests.

The mayor pointed out during his remarks that in New York City there are more than 1,200,000 boys and girls attending public school and added that if all of the adult population, the children in sectarian schools, and those too young to attend school in New York were at one time to leave the city, leaving only the students in the public school, that New York would at that moment still be the fourth largest city in the United States.

The mayor was introduced by Col. James A. Moss, president general of the United States Flag Association and father of the flag contest plan, who is traveling with the champions and is directing them in the more important phases of the pilgrimage.

Alma Grover of Ritzville (Ia.) and Chester Clifton, of Seattle, Wash., responded to the mayor's greeting and were both impressive in their speeches. Chester Clifton won the applause of the gathering in the mayor's office and the congratulations of Mayor Walker when he climaxed his speech with an expression of true loyalty to his native city, Seattle, Wash. In closing his remarks young Clifton said:

Today in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

Conferees Get Census Measure

Washington, June 7 (By wire)—The House, the Senate's reapportionment bill now goes to conference between the two houses, where it is expected differences will be speedily composed and the measure passed for the signature of President Hoover. Thus the tenacious fight to carry out the Constitutional mandate requiring seats in the House to be apportioned among the states to allow for increase and losses in population has been, roughly speaking, successful.

The bill provides for the addition of 52 members to the House, bringing the total membership to 483. Under the bill, Massachusetts loses one seat, as does Rhode Island, Connecticut, Vermont, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California. Each of these states will have one additional member.

Billie Dove to Be Lead in Night Club Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1929, by The Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, June 7—A prominent visitor to Hollywood recently said while watching one of our well-known stars rehearsing a talkie sequence over and over again: "I am told Miss X gets half a million dollars a year, but after watching her I believe she is underpaid."

These talkies are certainly strenuous and most of our screen favorites are exhausted after making a talking picture because they not only work all day but many of them work half the night. Billie Dove, who has just finished a First National picture, has gone to Catalina to recuperate and nurse a bad cold. She is going to rest a month before she begins work on her next picture.

Billie's next will probably require all of her strength. She plays a Texas Guinan type of character in "Girl in the Limelight." Fannie Hurst's story which is supposed to have been based on the life of the late Texas Guinan, Harriet Hagley is now writing the adaptation and Alexander Corda is slated to direct. Certainly the "Queen of the Night Club" didn't cause any ripple in the film pond. Queen of the Night Clubs was admitted not in the class with other Warner Brothers talkies.

THE two big issues of Hollywood the last few days have been the discussion of Equity contracts and the Shriners. The ultimatum sent out by Frank Gilmore at 10 o'clock stating working players could hope to return to the sets unless he lives up to his Equity contract has been the principal topic of discussion.

What with actors arriving every day, and the studios filled with Equity players, the situation is not one that can be ignored. Meanwhile, the producers sit at their desks with the contracts of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences on one hand and the Equity contracts on the other, trying to decide just what is the right course. One subject in Equity that has not been touched upon is the screen angle. What is going to happen to Clive Brook, Ronald Colman, Ivy Dan na Greta Garbo and other of others who have never been "one American items"?

The stage Equity contract forbids one foot in player to appear in motion pictures without [illegible] interesting. That is the very reason in the picture business with the number of [illegible] produced.

It is believed that Equity will agree to arbitrate the foreign matter by regulating it to suit the screen's exigencies.

CONSTANCE COLLIER had her bags packed, her reservations made and her plans to spend the summer motoring in Europe all made when an urgent message from Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford sent her hurrying to Hollywood. She is here to coach Mary in the intricate lines of Shakespeare, train Douglas in the proper way to speak his dialogue. And who else should know better than Miss Collier whose work on the dramatic stage is recognized all over the world.

On Wednesday, Harry Greene gave a small luncheon for Miss Collier at the Montmartre. His other guests were Doris Keane, Zoe Akins and Gladys Unger and George Bancroft. Miss Keane was frankly interested in the Montmartre and the crowds waiting to crash the gates. She thought it surprising that the film folk all went to one place. In New York, she said, the crowds are so much more diversified.

GOV. ALLEN AND 'BOSSY' WATCH BOY SOLONS

Fifty students of Revere high school took over the government of that city today and received visits from Gov. Frank G. Allen and Bossy Gillis, Mayor of Newburyport. Miss Ethel Pusher, as chairman of the reception committee, officially received the visitors.

The students remained all day in the offices of the officials to whose places they had been "elected" by their schoolmates.

Nineteen-year-old John P. Johnson, who was elected "mayor," appointed Lee D'Orlando as chief of police and Henry Ruseman chief of the fire department. Mildred Twomey was secretary to His Honor.

Other appointments were Antonny Mastronardi, deputy fire chief; Henry Kaplan, fire commissioner, Albert DelMonte, city collector; Bernice Allman, commissioner of public welfare.

Those who held office by virtue of their election were Robert N. Sheppard, city treasurer; Hyman Steinberg, tax collector.

Polish Province Suffers From Famine

Vilno, Poland, June 7 (FAP)—The entire province of Vilno is suffering from famine in consequence of the unusually cold winter, especially the districts of Dzisna and Glembokie, situated in the northern part of the province. The misfortunes of these two districts started last year after a bad harvest of flax, which is the country's principal product. The population of these districts has been always poor and lived on potatoes and bread.

The Newport Girl by Gilbert Rogers

A SIX-DAY STORY

Thrilling Six-Day Novel by a Noted Author

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Felicity Strake, nineteen and beautiful, the Newport Girl, born to riches in ultra exclusive society circles, is the pawn in a scheming mother's plan to marry her to someone of family and riches. Nick Trenchard, one of the eligible suitors, names Felicity. Preston, her brother, is being sued by Zoe Gale, a chorus girl. Mrs. Strake goes to her husband to force him to settle with the girl, and he tells her they are penniless. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER 5

THE next day Mrs. Strake remained in her own room almost apathetically.

Frank Strake had spared her nothing in the way of details. He had gambled like a madman, and somehow Cozzens and Company had smelt a rat. They had taken him by surprise, before he could recover, he had been wiped in the one of the biggest individual failures in the Street in years.

Mrs. Strake locked herself in a room and tried to think of a way out. Once the memory of Preston and his predicament rose to her mind and she shivered a little.

It was in the middle of the afternoon that she learned she had a caller. It was Jacob Gram.

He said very quietly: "Mrs. Strake, I am from the continent. You understand the world. I wish to be very frank. I am now a rich man—richer than even your husband knows—richer than I myself know. I could give your husband back his fortune—three times his fortune—and not feel it.

"For some time I have wished to mingle with the best people. My ancestors were peasants. I wish to change all that. I wish my children to be aristocrats. Mrs. Strake, with money, your position would still be unquestioned. I have money, and you . . . have a very beautiful daughter."

"You must be mad," she cried.

He rose, "I came to say only this. If you will think it over, you will see it is very simple. You can return to Newport with Prince

RACE ISSUE PUTS JR. PROM IN STIR

Evanston, Ill., June 7 (AP)—The junior prom of the Evanston Township high school's commencement was threatened today because of a difference of opinion as to whether 15 negro students should be permitted to attend.

Thomas Lord, president of the Evanston Country Club where the prom was to be given June 14, informed authorities the clubhouse would not be available to negroes.

The two classes, school officials and Mrs. Julian Goodhue, president of the Parent-Teachers' Association, urged the negro students not to insist on attending. Mrs. Goodhue told them an affair exclusively for them would be arranged.

WIFE REVEALS SCARS OF DOBBINS' ATTACK

SENTENCES HANNON TO 2 YEARS

Joseph C. Hannon, former associate justice of Waltham Court was sentenced to two years in the House of Correction today in Superior Court.

Some months ago the ex-judge pleaded guilty to an indictment charging 32 counts of larceny from two estates in the total sum of approximately $29,000.

In passing sentence, Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall suggested that the Bar Association take steps toward disbarment of Hannon, and said:

"Here is a man who, knowing he was doing wrong, should have resigned his office much earlier. I am inclined to send him to state prison, but I will give him the maximum in the House of Correction."

The estates from which the alleged thefts were made were those of Catherine Forbes and Shamiram Hounanian. From the former, $21,000 were taken, and from the latter $9000.

TUFTS PROFESSOR TURNED DOWN

Providence, June 7 — How a Tufts professor had been refused permission to read a paper before the Providence Medical Society on May 6, last, has been revealed here.

The professor was Dr. William R. P. Emerson, professor at Tufts College Medical school, a nationally-known authority on children's diseases and health director of the local national health bureau, and he was turned down because the health bureau was declared to be a commercial project.

MEN OF MANCHESTER AND A FEW OF THEIR HOBBIES

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

THE worst thing about an artist is that he has a weakness for scenes of natural beauty. And so the Boston Evening American reporter had to tug the sleeve of Tex Masterson, his artist companion, many times in order that he might interview some of the residents of Manchester, N. H.—the beautiful mill town resting on the banks of the Merrimack river.

After walking leisurely along streets shaded by arching elms, we came to a building on the lower windows of which stood gold letters, announcing that within was the office of the mayor. No better place than this, we decided, to meet the city's leading figures.

Arthur E. Moreau is the mayor of Manchester, and is now serving the final year of his second two-year term. The mayor is a business man, owning a large hardware store.

He has given the city an efficient administration, and has lowered the tax rate two dollars. Pressure is being brought to bear on Mayor Moreau to be a candidate for a third term. He is married and has three children. His hobbies? He is so busy between administering city affairs and conducting his own business that he has little time for relaxation. He likes to steal away occasionally for a fishing trip, and is keenly interested in aviation. It seems that all wide-awake mayors are.

OUTSIDE of the Amoskeag Mills, which employ 16,000 hands in the busy season, the R. G. Sullivan 1-20-4 cigar factory is perhaps the largest employer in the city at present.

It is hard to talk about Manchester without mentioning R. G. Sullivan. Although he has passed on, the people of Manchester talk of him as though he were still living. He is enshrined in the memory of all who knew him as a man whose charity knew no bounds, and whose business dealings were as honest as his heart was big.

His business is carried on today by his widow and her two sons-in-law, Joseph W. Eppby and James G. Driscoll. Eppby and Driscoll are vice-presidents of the company and share the management.

When Driscoll was being interviewed, Eppby answered all the questions. And Driscoll spoke for Eppby. But since they were both present, and neither objected very violently, their appraisal of each other must be accepted.

"Mr. Driscoll is married and has three children," said Eppby. "He plays golf, fishes, and—even his best friends may not know this—he is one of the few coon hunters in the State. He is an old-time ball player, and was on the Dartmouth varsity nine back in 1905. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary and Kiwanis."

"That's enough," interrupted Driscoll. "Now I'll tell you about Mr. Eppby. He has six children and is a great golfer. He is president of the Manchester Country Club and director of the Amoskeag National Bank. He is an amateur boxer, and has not missed the national amateur boxing contests in 12 years. He is also an amateur photographer of merit."

Before they got to telling any intimate stories about each other, we all lit cigars and stepped out to have a soda.

Leon F. Morin, proprietor of the drug store one of the largest in the city, set up the drinks. He began as a bottle washer in the store he now owns. He never had another job. During the war he served overseas in the 90th Division as an artillery man. He is married and has one child. Whenever he gets a chance, he goes fishing.

It has often puzzled this reporter why drug stores carried every kind of merchandise except, perhaps, locomotives. Mr. Morin explained it all.

"I have $15,000 in drug stock on

Realty Dealer Gets Suspended Term of 3 Months

Scars on both wrists were displayed to Judge Charles T. Carr today in municipal court by Mrs. Agnes W. Dobbins in support of her allegations of assault and battery against her husband, Robert M. Dobbins, prominent Beacon st. realty dealer.

Dobbins, who was arrested in Back Bay police for drunkenness at his Beacon st. residence Saturday night, was found guilty of assault and battery, given a suspended sentence of three months and placed on probation.

Mrs. Dobbins declared he came home intoxicated and late for dinner Saturday, reproached her for having telephoned at the home of friends and advanced threateningly toward her when she mentioned cooking lobsters for the evening meal.

FINALLY CALLS AID.

She asserted he caught her by both wrists, wrested from her a poker she held for self-defence, "smacked" her down on the floor and sat on her.

She declared she screamed at the top of her voice to attract passers-by to her assistance and was finally successful in breaking away from her husband to notify two boys in Beacon st to summon police.

Mrs. Dobbins testified the attack was one of many similar episodes which had occurred in her home and declared she had been under medical care for some months for nervous and physical exhaustion.

Dr. James T. Thornton, who testified in behalf of Mrs. Dobbins described the injuries she sustained in the attack, and Patrolman Joseph W. Kelley of Back Bay station also gave a description of the marks on her head and face.

DOBBINS IN DENIAL.

Dobbins, in self-defence, admitted he had had three drinks of gin on the day in question, confessed he remembered very little of what happened, but vigorously denied striking his wife. He stated he caught the odor of gin on his wife's breath when he came home for dinner and he said both were very high-strung and nervous because of recent financial reverses.

He testified his wife struck him a heavy blow on the head with the poker and admitted he might have accidentally "pushed" her in attempting to get the poker out of her hands.

Dr. Thornton and Patrolman Kelley, called in rebuttal, denied having seen any evidences of liquor on Mrs. Dobbins.

Hoover Will Open Ohio Lock System

Washington, June 7—President Hoover will attend the celebration marking the completion and opening of the great lock system on the Ohio river extending from Pittsburgh to Cairo, and forming a part of the inland waterway system.

The ceremony, which will continue over three days, will be held this fall at a time convenient to the President. It probably will be in October at which time the chief executive hopes to be able to visit other places in the country including Texas and the Mississippi river flood district.

LYNN FANS BACKING JAKE

Diamond and Moore Signed for Semifinal at Fenway Park Show

By JACK CONWAY

JAKE ZERAMBY, classy Lynn featherweight, has entrenched at Wamesit where he is getting ready for his New England featherweight championship battle with Sammy Fuller which will be staged at Fenway Park on next Thursday night under the direction of the Arena Club.

Manager Dick Russell announced today that he has secured Al Lacey, manager of Jack Sharkey, to direct Jake in his training stunts. Lacey will be on the job today.

Jack Conway

Zeramby, a youth of 19, is one of the most sensational southpaws in the country. Boxing in south paw style, he has waded through all kinds of tough opposition in his last ten Boston starts, he has defeated Johnny Farr of Cleveland and Eddie Anderson of Chicago.

The Lynn warrior is confident his southpaw style will puzzle Fuller. He points to the fact Honeyboy Finnegan outscored the American Pancho Villa by a wide margin last summer.

FULLER has been training at Kelley & Hayes' Gym. He is once more working out under the direction of Harry Kelley. The latter points to Fuller's four recent knockout victories, the last one being scored over Chick Su... Kelley and Rip Valenti are of the opinion Sammy carries too much fire for Zeramby.

In the event Fuller wins, he will demand a bout with Kid Chocolate.

IT was announced yesterday from the Arena A. C. office that the same popular prices which prevailed during the winter season will be kept in vogue. There will be 10,000 seats at 50 cents in the first and third base bleachers, and the top price for all the Fenway Park boxing attractions will be $1.

TWOGOOD VERY GOOD

FORREST TWOGOOD

Twogood, great left-handed pitcher of the U. of Iowa, faces the Holy Cross nine today at Fitton Field, Worcester. He lives up to his name, for he is the strikeout king of the Big Ten Conference.

Iowans Tell Story of Conference War

By JOHN GILLOOLY

FORREST TWOGOOD, University of Iowa's great strikeout king, will be on exhibition at Worcester this afternoon, facing Boots Nekola, Holy Cross mound wizard, in a ball game in which the best in the East tackles the best from the West.

Coach Otto Vogel of the Iowans denied all reports that Twogood was through for the season because he had signed a contract to pitch for the Rochester team of the International League.

The rules of the conference do not permit a pitcher, who has affixed his name to a big league contract, to continue on the college team. And Iowa, with their conference championship in jeopardy, would be quick to put Twogood off the baseball squad.

COACH VOGEL, whose team was trounced by R. C. by a score of 11 to 1, stated that the big Iowan, who is almost as good a big league prospect as Nekola, has some sort of a verbal agreement with the Rochester management, but absolutely had signed no contract.

Vogel used three pitchers against R. C. but Twogood was kept on the bench. For the second season in succession he has topped the pitchers in the conference in number of strikeouts. Iowa, now that it has culminated hopes to defeat Holy Cross today with its star on the hill.

The Iowa coach knew nothing about the outcome of the rumpus in the conference owing to charges of proselyting hurled against his college. The ball team from that University has been on the road since a week ago yesterday and are following the newspapers for their reports of the meetings of the conference boards.

THE story is, according to Vogel, that a deposed athletic manager of Iowa took offense at his being removed from his position, so "squealed" to the conference authorities and produced facts and records to show the truth of his statements.

Iowa alumni had established a fund, from which any athlete of note in the school could borrow money. All the athlete had to do was to sign a note. There was a limit to the borrowings according to the capabilities of the athlete.

This fund was also used in getting promising youngsters to attend the college. When a young find was discovered he was given a loan from the fund to help him enter Iowa and pay his way through college.

In this way the athletes were induced to enter Iowa and were kept financially O. K. while matriculating there. It is no secret that all the other conference members and probably all the big colleges in the West employed this or similar means to keep their athletes up with the best.

But the anger of a graduate manager made Iowa more or less the "goat" and it is now up before the jury. The outcome is uncertain, but Iowa athletic authorities are striving hard to keep in the conference.

If the athletes now at Iowa or those who intend to go there are deprived of all financial aid it is only reasonable that Iowa is going to lose most of its best athletes. For many of the boys who soar on the field of sport haven't the means to go to college without some assistance.

It is quite a squabble and Iowa seems to be getting a bad break. Iowa will suffer while the other conference members, neither under suspension or on trial, will continue to produce great teams, no matter how they get them.

Chappie Shows That They Do Come Back

THEY do come back in sports. Or at least that applies to the bike game, where George Chapman, former American champion and veteran of many years, is probably the outstanding rider of the year, and riding so well that some fans are backing him to win the title again.

Last year Chapman was considered all done. Yet he had a good season, but was far behind George Gei for the championship laurels. This year was to be his last, said the wise ones, but Chappie has fooled them all, and thus far in two races at Revere, has come through with two victories.

Saturday night he will be favored to break George Wiley's record for one hour at the seashore oval. Against him will ride Jack Dunberg, the sensational German Frankie Keenan, the Revere boy; Francesco Zucchetti, the Italian who is living this year, and Victor Hopkins of Iowa, a former champion.

Tilden Defeats Grandguillot, 6-0, 6-0

Zurich, Switzerland, June 7 (AP) Bill Tilden defeated Rogert Grandguillot, 6 0, 6 -0, today in the Swiss tennis championships, thereby taking revenge on the Egyptian Davis Cup star who paired with Mlle. Annette Rachier eliminated Bill and Mrs. Mary Sutton Bundy in the mixed doubles at Paris 10 days ago.

Grandguillot incidentally carried Cochet to five sets in the singles quarter-finals at the Roland Garros Stadium.

Hartford Player Defeats Jap Star

Hartford, Conn., June 7—H. H. Hyde of Hartford turned the surprise of the fourth day of the New England tennis championship by decisively defeating Tamio Abe, Japanese Davis cup team captain, in the fourth round, winning in straight sets, 6—2, 6—2. Hydes victory placed him in the semifinal round and against Julius Seligson, intercollegiate champion of New York, who today eliminated Lee Wiley of Hartford, 5—7, 6—4, 6—2.

BOWSER SIGNS LEWIS FOR SONNY

Paul Bowser has stepped into the heavyweight wrestling picture with the announcement that he has signed Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former champion of the world, to wrestle Gus Sonnenberg for the championship.

Under the terms of the agreement, Lewis is to receive a guarantee of $25,000, but the contract is to be null and void unless Bowser can get Sonnenberg's consent to the match.

The champion is leaving for Canada today, to fill a few dates and take a rest in the north woods. He talks of accepting a vaudeville engagement, of taking a trip to Europe, of retiring, of having an operation on his injured ear and of going into the movies.

Bowser does not state how much he is prepared to offer Sonnenberg.

"I have enough money to swing this match for Boston," Bowser says, "and I have backing which is almost limitless. The match would break all attendance and receipts records in the history of the game. Naturally I want to drive a bargain with Gus, so I'm not prepared to say how high I would bid for the match. I'm out for it, though, and hopeful of getting it."

Maloney Gets Ready for Risko Bout

JIMMY MALONEY, South Boston heavyweight contender, will move his training base to his open air quarters at Wamesit today to complete his work for his approaching conflict with Johnny Risko of Cleveland, which will mark the opening of outdoor boxing at Braves Field, Monday night, June 17.

Maloney, who has been training in a local gym, is anxious to get away from the crowds in order that he can put his mind into his work, and for this reason, he is transfering to Wamesit, where he has trained for all his important bouts. Maloney will remain at Wamesit for the next 10 days and expects to be in the best condition of his career when he meets Risko in their return bout.

The South Boston idol accepted the proposition of Promoter Eddie Mack to meet Riccardo Bartagnolo, Italian champion, for a second time if he is victorious over Risko. The Cleveland baker boy has accepted the same offer, and it is expected that the Italian, who thus far has not signed for the match, will come to terms with the Hub promoter today.

Fifty rounds of boxing at a penny a round will feature all open air shows at Braves Field and 10,000 seats in the third base bleachers will be thrown open to the 50-cent fans, when Maloney and Risko clash. The first base section, with 10,000 seats, will be for the $1 customers, while 18,000 seats in the grandstand will be reserved for the holders of $1, $1.50, $2 and $3 tickets. There will be 4000 ringside seats at $4.40.

Risko will arrive in Boston on Sunday to complete his training for the bout and he will be accompanied by his own sparring partners. Risko is one of the outstanding present day fighters, who does not drift into town a few hours before he is scheduled to step into the ring.

Harvard and Holy Cross Nines Tilt at Soldiers' Field

SECOND GO OF SERIES TOMORROW

By TED LYNCH

HARVARD is relying on one of its rookie hurlers, Lefty Page, or Red McHale to set back Holy Cross in the second game of the series between these two rivals at Soldiers Field tomorrow afternoon.

With Howie Whitmore, Harvard's best hurler, out of the picture, due to the rough treatment handed him at Worcester on Saturday, Coach Mitchell has simmered the selections down to these green hurlers.

Red MacHale probably will be the final selection to face Gene Hebert, the Crusader speedball hurler. MacHale is a right hander, pitching his first year in college baseball.

After a bad start the red headed flinger has gradually reached his stride and already has two victories over Brown.

Page, the other possible Harvard entrant, is a portsider. Mitchell discovered him with the track men early this spring and has been working on him all season. A week ago Mitchell gave his "find" his chance against Georgetown and the wild left-hander carried on well. His other game came on Saturday when he held Holy Cross scoreless in the last two innings of that Harvard massacre.

Coach Jack Barry of the Purple sends word down from Worcester that he is standing pat on his first game lineup. This calls for Gene Hebert to face Harvard for the second time. Hebert is a fast ball hurler and let the Crimson down with five hits in the first game.

SCHOOL STAR RAPS RULING

Resenting being classed with "slackers, flunkers and loafers," Kenneth MacInnes, all-around star athlete, has resigned as captain-elect of the Classical high football team and states that he will enter some academy to prepare for college. His resignation has been sent to the student council of the school.

The action was taken as a result of the recent ruling the Massachusetts High School Headmasters Association, barring high school students from taking part in athletics more years than the school course provides.

MacInnes' statement follows:

"It has been my great honor to have been selected by my teammates to lead them as captain of 1928. This honor bestowed upon me will be an everlasting pleasant memory of them, and I thank them for the honor. But the privilege of leading them has been denied me.

"During the past few weeks much has been said regarding the boys who took advantage of spreading the (three-year) course at high school over a period of four years, something that we were advised to do to better our scholastic standing for a college career and advised by our own school officials to do. Now we have been penalized for doing this by being barred from participating in athletics during our fourth year. We learn that we are flunkers, slackers and loafers for doing something we were advised to do.

"I will not return to school, but will enter some academy and prepare for college.

"It has been a great pleasure to have played and to have been coached by Mr. Joyce and I will always remember the spirit of 'play hard be clean' that he has taught us."

Singer Puts Roy Away in 1st Round

New York, June 7—Al Singer, Bronx featherweight idol, jumped back into the hearts of the home faithful by scoring a rapid-fire knockout over Lee Kid Roy, Montreal veteran, in the first round of a feature 10-round match in Jess McMahon's coliseum.

Roy went down twice and lasted only 2 minutes 41 seconds of the round.

Five-Team Race Big Help to League, Says Heydler

Cincinnati, June 6 (AP)—The five-team race in the National League is due to the strengthening the weaker teams and has done the circuit a world of good, President John A. Heydler said here today at the opening of the annual June meeting of League club owners.

The rise of the Giants to a fighting position for first place, and the improved playing of the Philadelphia team he cited as a result of the action. He declared interested interest among the fans had been gained thereby.

Brookline to Establish Public Links

ACTION IS EXAMPLE TO HUB

By BILL GRIMES

REALIZING the growing popularity of golf, the town of Brookline is to construct a public course for its citizens. Up the ... has produced many champions, all of whom acquired their prowess while caddying.

Due to the abnormal interest in golf among the younger generation in Brookline, it is a safe prediction that many more champions will be developed with a public course available.

Few of the Brookline topnotch golfers were born with silver spoons in their mouths and for this reason, most of them were obliged to drop the game after reaching the caddy age limit, unless they took up the game professionally. With a public course, Brookline should again take its place among the leading golf champion producing towns.

Any sceptic, who is of the opinion that Franklin Park is ample to care for the needs of the public links players, should stroll out to the West Roxbury layout tomorrow or Sunday and watch the ten, not only at the first tee but all over the course.

The overcrowded conditions at Franklin Park rob the game of most of its pleasure. There is no fun dodging golf balls, but to beginners who have no idea of how far and how fast a ball can travel. Golf at Franklin Park is a dangerous sport and should be rectified.

As players realize the likelihood of being hit at the park, little attention is paid to minor accidents, but it would prove interesting reading if an accurate account could be kept of the number of players injured during a season.

Due to the fact that "hit-and-run" golf is necessary on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, the good players absent themselves when the course is crowded.

INVESTIGATES 'CURVED SPACE'

Jockey Klenck, familar to the frequenters of the Belmont Park race course, was converted to the Einstein idea of curved space when tossed during the steeplechase. Klenck managed to stay aboard his mount. Volunteer, until the final barrier was reached and then flew off in such a complicated spiral that he became convinced space, after all, was bent in several directions. Golfers Advised to Hit Down on Ball

By JOHNNY FARRELL
American Open Golf Champion

I KNOW of no better cure for body lifting, which is a common fault among the duffers, than to develop a habit of hitting DOWN through the ball. Most of the poorer players hit the ball on the ascending stroke which leads them into difficulties very often.

Hitting down and through the ball is one of the secrets of golfing success. It is the one thing that the professionals do and it is perhaps the one reason why they are able to play golf so well.

In iron play, hitting down through the ball is very pronounced. It is such hitting that produces the divot. You will [illegible] among the duffers because their bodies are not kept down until the shot has been completed. Hitting down at the ball, therefore, should be vastly beneficial in aiding the poorer players to keep their bodies down.

THE DOWNWARD hit also has this to recommend it. It produces back-spin which works against gravity, causing the ball, when it falls, to stop almost dead. The back-spin keeps the ball straighter in the air.

Hitting down and through the ball also enables the player to maintain his balance better and he will find it less difficult when getting the ball out of those little depressions into which it so often strays.

Hub May Contest in City Golf Tournament

It is confidently expected that Boston will be officially represented at the national municipal golf championship this year for the first time. This year the event will be held at Forest Park, St. Louis, the first week in August.

A committee of three has been appointed—Ronald F. Wait, United States Golf Association, sectional representative; David F. McCallum, a New England public links official, and Fred J. Hannon, to confer with Chairman William F. Long of the park department in regard to sending a team to the tournament.

Dawson had a great difficulty with his tee shots. He took 56 strokes for the first nine, taking three putts at the first with his tee shots all on the 150-yard green.

FINE RACE CARD AT CLYDE PARK

Nearly 100 of the finest racing thoroughbreds of the American turf, worth all of half a million dollars and perhaps much more, come to Boston next week and for what promises to be the greatest horse race meet in the history of New England. The season will be the 39th meeting of The Country Club, two days of racing June 15 and 17 under the management of the Eastern Horse Club. Entries closed with a record of 230 nominations for the 12 races to be run, six each day.

This meeting has become national in scope, drawing entries of all the best steeplechase horses that have run at Pimlico in Maryland, at Belmont park and Saratoga in New York and at Woodbine in Canada.

Four of the steeplechases will be run on the first day of the meeting, a week from tomorrow, and the remaining three on the following Monday, Bunker Hill Day. The program each day will be filled out with flat races around the half-mile track in the heart of The Country Club golf course.

PAUL WHITEMAN—conducting
The OLD GOLD-PAUL WHITEMAN HOUR . . . Over Columbia network, every Tuesday night, 9 to 10 P. M. . . . Eastern Day-Light Saving Time. (TED HUSING, announcing).

Part of Paul Whiteman's own 33-piece orchestra which The hour of Jazz leads in every OLD GOLD Hour

Over the radio . . . Old Gold asks Nation to compare the 4 leading Cigarettes

Here are the first returns, just as received— and as audited by certified public accountants

Every Tuesday night, over the Columbia network, Paul Whiteman's orchestra thrills the radio world with dance music, played as only Whiteman can play it.

OLD GOLD sponsors this radio hour. But strangely enough, not once during the hour has the claim ever been made that OLD GOLD is the best of all cigarettes!

Instead, just a moment is borrowed from Whiteman's music to ask smokers to find out for themselves which cigarette is best, by making the "concealed name" test, in their own homes.

To date, through the courtesy of radio fans, reports have been received on the verdicts of 17,972 smokers who have made this test.

Certified Public Accountants' Statement
How 17,972 smokers voted
We hereby certify that we have audited the reports received from radio fans, showing how 17,972 smokers voted in comparing the leading cigarette brands, with brand names masked.
The following is a complete and accurate tabulation of this vote.

	FIRST CHOICES	RESULT
OLD GOLD	8812	49%
Brand X	3879	22%
Brand Y	3103	17%
Brand Z	2178	12%
TOTAL	17,972	100%

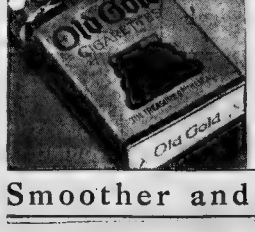
42 Broadway, New York City



Did OLD GOLD win in all cases? Assuredly not! Brands X, Y & Z, the long-established trio, made a good showing. They're good cigarettes. But once again, OLD GOLD, the two-year old, proved that this is the day of the new and better thing!

No cigarette-maker can justifiably say that his cigarette is the best for everyone. Tastes differ. Why not let your taste decide which cigarette you like best . . . with all brand prejudice removed?

That's what these 17,972 radio fans did. At left is the box score of their vote . . . as audited by a firm of certified public accountants.

B. & N. Crew's Trip Abroad Sponsored by N. Y. Woman

CAMBRIDGE CREW OFF TONIGHT

NEW YORK, June 7—At midnight the eight-oared Browne & Nichols schoolboy crew from Boston will be aboard the Carmania and bound for England and the Royal Henley regatta, to be held on the Thames July 3. The trip, the second of its kind in the history of rowing, is sponsored by the Brooks-Bright Foundation.

In their wake the Browne & Nichols boys, averaging 171 pounds and coached by Jim Manning, leave a record of victories unparalleled in schoolboy rowing. In the annual classic on the Charles river basin last week they defeated their closest rival by more than a length.

Florence Brooks-Aten, noted sportswoman of New York, made the American invasion of the Thames possible with a gift of $2000 for expense money. The foundation which she inaugurated is officially sponsoring the rowing expedition and has arranged entertainment for the boys abroad through Sir John Headlam, British head of Brooks-Bright work.

THE BOYS making the trans-Atlantic journey are: Harold Pearson of Newton, bow; George Blevin of West Roxbury, No. 7; Charles Campbell of Cambridge, No. 3; Henry David of Arlington, No. 4; Robert McGuire of Newton, No. 5, Capt. George Kakas of Medford, No. 6; Malcolm Bancroft of Cambridge, No. 7; Loren Talbot of Watertown, stroke; Edward White of Cambridge, coxswain, and Stowell Johnson of Weston, Leonard Baldwin of Newton, Myron Tenney of Cambridge and John Coon of Wakefield, reserves.

Coach James J. Manning will travel with the crew as rigger, since the Henley regatta regulations forbid a crew having a professional coach a month before the race.

Arnold Greenhalge of M. I. T. will act as amateur coach of the crew during its stay on the other side.

The crew will arrive in England on Sunday, June 16, and will spend the following week in taking college entrance examinations. The boys will then be given a chance to become acclimated and will have light workouts in English waters.

SEEK ROWING HONORS ABROAD

Edward White of Cambridge, coxswain of the Browne and Nichols School crew which sails from New York tonight to take part in the Henley regatta, July 3. At right, Edward Kakas of Medford, captain of the crew.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

WALTER ST. DENIS, director of publicity for Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's Milk Fund show at the Yankee Stadium, New York, on June 27, has sent Mr. Boston some interesting sidelights on Paulino who clashes with Max Schmeling in the feature bout of 15 rounds.

St. Denis, one of the most able sports experts in the country, writes:

"PAULINO UZCUDUN took an excursion the other day, according to advices from his training camp at Newark Falls, N. Y. It was a motor boat ride he enjoyed right up to old Tom Luther's place at Saratoga. He had a motive in so doing. He said that he intends preparing there for his September bout with Jack Sharkey, meaning that he will beat Max Schmeling in the Milk Fund bouts.

"A bold, bold warrior is Paulino, who just regards this bout this month as a step to the place where he may have his name inscribed on the Muldoon-Tunney trophy.

"PAULINO has started in the real hard work at Hoosick Falls. He started his boxing with only three rounds with Jack DeMave, who has been in camp for several days now and warming up for the bludgeon-like fists of the Basque.

"Paulino intends doing the same work on Friday, and then on Saturday will extend his boxing drills, adding Benny Touchstone to his sparring list. Later on he hopes to have Napoleon Dorval on hand, as well as Buddy Howard, the converted amateur.

"GEORGES CARPENTIER has been asked his opinion of the outcome of the Paulino-Schmeling fight, but at this time he refrains from making a guess. He says he wants to see both men work out. And he intends doing it. He is going down to Lakewood to Schmeling's camp and box a couple of rounds with Max, either Tuesday or Wednesday, and will pay Paulino a visit later on next week.

"JIMMY BRADDOCK is another who wants the chance to measure arms with the two men before he ventures a guess on the result. Jim will probably hop with Schmeling on Friday and then later on, probably about Tuesday or Wednesday, will go to Hoosick Falls and try out Paulino.

"SO far the betting favors Paulino, but the odds are not long. They are about 6 or 7 to 5, but the big bettors are laying off for a little while, or until ring time comes closer before putting up their coin.

"BUT the ticket-buyers are not that way. They are buying now, and in blocks. As usual, it's the high-priced seats which are going the fastest, but Germans and those of the Latin race are buying up the cheaper ones to continue to indicate to Joe Boynton, the chief of the box office, that the attendance on June 27 will be fully 50 per cent of the foreign element.

"A BOUT 400 newspaper men will sit at the ringside to report the fight, some coming from as far away as California."

"Thanks for your contribution, Walter," said Mr. Boston.

PLAN 10-MILE ROAD RACE

The Ward Six Patriotic Society of Atlantic departs this year from its usual program and will stage a 10-mile road race July 4. The prizes, in the main, will be 15 and 15-jewelled gold watches, given to the cause by various Quincy and Greater Boston notables, such as congressmen, mayors and leading citizens.

Gov. Allen already has donated a handsome cup as first place trophy and it is on exhibition at Atlantic. The start will be at the junior high school in North Quincy, near Squantum and Hancock sts. Thence the course goes out into East Milton, West Quincy and swings back to the starting point, which also is to be the finish.

Watertown Post Holds Road Race on July 4

The American Legion Post 98 of Watertown, Mass., is holding a five-mile road race in conjunction with their annual sports carnival which is to be held at Victory Field July 4. The race is open to all runners living in Belmont, Arlington, Winchester, Woburn, Melrose and Watertown.

It has been sanctioned by the A. A. U. The prizes are silver cups for the first three runners to finish, and gold, silver and bronze medals to the next three to finish, with a silver cup to the first Watertown schoolboy to finish.

The race is a scratch event, starting and finishing at Victory Field. Entries are free, and positively close Saturday, June 29, with Wm. J. Gover, 153 Palfrey st., Watertown, Mass. Entry blanks will be forwarded upon application to the above address.

FEW GAMES ON SCHOOL LIST TODAY

By DICK McSWEENEY

There is only a light sprinkling of baseball games today, the most important contests being [illegible] tomorrow.

Today Tufts takes Chelsea to Worthington Park; Weymouth to Quincy, Boston College plays Mount Pleasant, Immaculate Conception vs. St. Mary's of the Lake, St. Clement's vs. Malden, St. Thomas vs. St. John and Methuen to Rockport.

Winthrop should turn back Chelsea. It is just a case of a strong club with good pitching, opposing a club lacking material.

Plenty of activity is carded in the Catholic Inter-Parish League. The Church of Cambridge is out to retain its grip on the league lead with all the other clubs in the race trying to pace its ambition.

Tomorrow marks the closing of the [illegible] of the suburban area all of which are anxious to wind up affairs with a win.

Arlington and Exeter hitter sport a game or some meet at Exeter. Boston English confidently expects a diamond warfare with Newton. Newton Nashua seeks to trample Medford at the Fulton at Arlington. Melrose meets Somerville in a traditional battle at Dilboy Field. More traditional rivalry is to be [illegible] upon at Norwood where Dedham [illegible] victory.

Malden breakes itself to Haverhill, still feeling the effects of the Winthrop drubbing.

Lexington goes to Belmont, Amesbury goes to Stoneham, Phillips Andover Hill pays at Brighton Academy, Clark School vs. Cushing, Westford Academy is entertained at Lawrence Academy. That completes the [illegible]

B. C. TO BATTLE VERMONT

Boston College leaves tonight for Burlington, Vt., where they will play the University of Vermont tomorrow afternoon. Coach Hugh Duffy is taking a squad of 14 to the Green Mountain State.

Weston, Creedon, O'Day, Spognardi, Shea, Gibson, Herman, Colbert, Smith, McNulty, O'Connor, Dixon, Donovan and Murphy will make up the squad.

Pete Herman, big right hander, will probably be brought in from left field tomorrow to pitch against Vermont. Herman in his last start, pitched a one-sided victory over Georgetown.

ALTER NAHANT SWIM PLANS

The proposed contest for the distance swimmers which was to be held August 31 between Nahant and Revere Beach, although not definitely postponed, will not take place as previously planned.

Ed. Hopkins, former holder of the record for the swim from Nahant to Revere Beach previous to the record established last September of two hours flat by Alfred Ray Mitchell, will not compete with the latter, as announcement first stated.

The stake had been set for $1500 and much interest had been aroused, due to the fact that both swimmers were members of the Olympic team in 1912.

As the facts stand now, Mitchell will make the four-mile swim without Hopkins, and the former will attempt to break his own record of the previous year.

Gus Sonnenberg Defeats Koloff

Worcester, June 7—Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg, world champion defended his crown at the Four Grounds before the largest indoor crowd to ever attend a wrestling event in this city, defeating Dan Koloff, Balkan Lion, in straight falls.

The first came after a struggle of 37 minutes, Sonnenberg, after a series of headlocks, but Koloff three times with his flying tackle the third keeping Koloff down. The second fall came in five minutes with a flying arm hold.

Joe Shimkus, Worcester, and Stanley Pinto, Bellingham, went 30 minutes to a draw in one preliminary bout, while Stanley Stasiuk, Polish Lion, beat Al Thurian, Boston, in 15 minutes.

MIAMI IS TO BE WINTER SPORT CAPITAL

New York, June 7—[illegible] Miami, Fla., will become a winter sports center under plans [illegible] announced by William B. Dyer, president of the Madison Sq. Garden Corporation.

Dyer said agreement [illegible] the Garden organization will build a sport stadium seating 50,000, at Miami and put on an important hour there every February for the next 10 years. It is planned to celebrate the meets with a football game between the University of Florida and some eleven from another part of the country. Several members [illegible] and other sports [illegible] will be staged there.

After signing [illegible] Stribling for a bout in Miami [illegible] to arrange the details for a contract to put on a boxing [illegible] in Miami every February [illegible] and the project led them to make the 10 years instead of five.

Dyer said he would like to stage a fight at the new [illegible] between Jack Dempsey and [illegible] one of the present champion [illegible] ment if the former champion can be induced to attempt a comeback.

No Charges Made Against Purdue

Chicago, June 6 (AP)—Expected revelations regarding recruiting of athletes by Big Ten conference schools failed to materialize at a conference here tonight between Everett Case, athletic director of the Frankfort, Ind., high school, and Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner.

After a [illegible] closed conference, Maj. Griffith announced [illegible] to charges [illegible] Purdue [illegible] Case [illegible] came to Chicago to have [illegible] and his name with [illegible] rather than to accuse any Big Ten school athletic [illegible]

American Sport Cost $31,500,000

New York, June 7—The American outlay for public recreation last year totaled more than $31,500,000, declares the new year book issued by the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

That figure was $11,000,000 greater than the sum [illegible] spent in 1924. The report [illegible] applies to [illegible] golf [illegible] tennis courts, [illegible] and other [illegible]

Ed Morris' Bad Thursday Dooms Sox to Remain in Cellar

RAIN HALTS TODAY'S GAME

By NICK FLATLEY
The Red Sox, forced by fate

[illegible] hope of immediate [illegible] cellar, take up the [illegible] Thursday for Ed Morris [illegible] that.

Now the natives must be content to keep plugging and forget the [illegible] Tumbling Athletics for a series [illegible] town. Picking up percentage points while the Tigers are opposed hasn't become a baseball habit this year, anywhere.

Jack Russell will do the Cerberus hurling tomorrow, with Tavona working for Luna Blackburne. Ted is the year's hard luck hurler. He has been pitching a lot of great baseball, but it hasn't been winning for him.

He was the loser in the famous opening ball game against George Pipp. He took the short end of a six score Thirteen inning affair a week ago. With a club playing behind him that could never lose Ted would never lose. Even with the lattery White Sox, he looks like a champion.

MANAGER LYONS is the most likable member of the invading Sox, but he isn't the most picturesque. Art Shires, sensational first baseman, holds the hot spot by a few million miles. He is one of those eye-on-the-picture players, who just has to catch the eye.

There is a widespread notion that Art and Manager Lena do not get along, but that's all sour. Art did do some funny stuff in the South, but it wasn't because he had any personal animosities. He was just feeling that way when he blurted out an incautious interview.

He's a hustling ball player who can smack the apple and will be a real star before he's many years older. He rode the Pipp bandwagon era, who fought and played for the joy of it. There are too many business men in the pastime now to suit the old fans.

SHIRES, who hasn't been in the league a year yet, has already a national reputation as a fast conversationalist. He stops all the wise crackers dead and he does it without offending. He has a great voice for it, too.

Len Durochee, the talkative Yankee, tried to razz Art in the recent series at the Yank Stadium. The word barrage didn't worry the Sox rookie, so Huggins chirped in with a few shots. That caused Shires to turn to the Yank bench, and yell:

"So you're Huggins. Say, they could put a dozen of you and six Durochees in a tin can, and you'd all rattle."

Later he hit a soft foul fly and Durochee gave him the noise [illegible]

"Yeah," remarked Shires to no one in particular, "I can't looked like [illegible] but one."

As to Y[illegible] he's top hat a habit of [illegible] with up he was [illegible]

THE White Sox are being pursued [illegible] Shires [illegible] Manager Lena [illegible] Thursday [illegible] a few [illegible] Alfonso Thomas, [illegible] pitcher, contributed of a sore side when he warmed up for the opening game. He was knocked out after a few innings, and then was discovered that he had a badly torn rib muscle. It will be ten days before he can [illegible] work again.

Hal Rhyne, the only serious Red Sox hospital case, is due to join the club once more, but he hasn't a chance of going back to short while Bill Narlesky keeps hitting. Hal never was a great clubber and Bill is leading the team that way.

Narlesky isn't a great shortstop yet, but doesn't get a lump on the ball. He's fearless and hustling, and it may be that third base is his spot. He will get a trial there if anything happens to Bob Barrett. But thus far, Bob has been doing a good job on the hot corner. And he can hit that ball too.

Carlisles Blanked

Waltham Pals made it six wins in eight starts by shutting out Somerville Carlisles, 13 to 0, at Waltham. Burke held the losers hitless until two were out in the final inning. Gumbert hit three singles and a double in four trips to the plate for the Pals.

Tad Tells How Tommy Murphy of Harlem Put It All Over Chick Tucker in Their Six-Round Bout

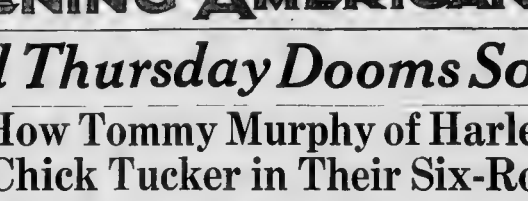
By TAD

Tommy Murphy of Harlem [illegible] Chick Tucker [illegible] Philadelphia on the afternoon of [illegible] Monday, 1925. He [illegible] bout, not generalled and our biggest [illegible] pride of the Avon A. Athletic Club, and had the fight gone another round the chances are that F. Murphy of Harlem would have ended the go with a knockout.

Chick won't had at that. Nay nay! He kept Murphy busy all the time, but he was shy on stature, shy on reach and shy on footwork. It seemed as though Chick had a pair of putty shoes on and couldn't get out of the way. In the clinches he was slow and allowed Murphy to uppercut and cross him as he pleased.

When the boys stepped to the center in the first round Tucker was spry and had his wicked punch with him. He started at Murphy as soon as they settled their ball and with that and his [illegible] rammed the pride of Harlem [illegible] the hall [illegible] Murphy [illegible] and got busy. There [illegible] Avon A Club did [illegible] Chick [illegible] though he would crush his man in a round or so.

Right at the start it looked that way. But as the round wore on [illegible] when they started the slug fest, the dope went bad. It could be seen then that Murphy, one I.Q. punch [illegible] opponent's body at close quarters, but he was either blocked or punched away in the attempt.



IN THE LAST ROUND BOTH SWUNG RIGHTS BUT MURPHY'S LANDED FIRST AND ALMOST ENDED THE BATTLE—TUCKER STAGGERED AROUND AFTER THAT.

The third round was the beginning of Tucker's end. He seemed to lose stamina and speed here, and Murphy's jabs went straight to his mark every time without a miss. He drew blood from Chick's nose and mouth and had the West Chester upper blinking all the time. He wasted no time feeling out Chick but went to work at once, fighting around. It was bing bang all the way. Occasionally one would stagger and then the other would get weak in the knees, but always as they were there was never any let up, and at the end of the round Tucker began to show signs of his pace.

In the fourth Tucker began to upset Murphy's rushes, and as the latter rushed with his right missed Chick and fell headlong to the floor. There was a merry snap of cheers when he got up and then Tucker began to swing the wild ones over, taking a chance on a knockout. He let fly a right, missing Murphy two feet, and fell on his face. Some thought that Murphy had dropped him and began to yell like mad, but Tucker was right up and into the fray again.

As far as winning the fight on points went he was out of it now. Murphy contented himself with jabbing Tucker's head back with the left and occasionally crossing him with the right. There was much mixing in the breaks in this round, and the crowd yelled for them to break. Tucker tried to fight close, but was slower than an old lady, and usually stopped five or six on the body and jaw before he got away again. This was supposed to be Tucker's game, but Murphy made him look like a novice and did his best work in close.

The fifth was a slugging match, much after the style of the earlier rounds, and both boys were covered with blood. Tucker caught his man on the nose, cutting it, and Murphy retaliated by copping Chick on the mouth and nose, drawing the paint from both.

Tucker seemed to be at sea with that left of Tommy's sticking him in the face all the time, and couldn't get in at all. His best chances seemed to be in the wild mix-ups, and two or three times staggered Murphy, but could not follow up. Murphy copped Chick on the jaw as the bell rang in this round, and they shook hands, squaring things before going to their corners.

In the last round there were wild cheering and yells from all quarters of the house. Both sides wanted their man to go in and finish the other, and they started off as though they intended to do so. Murphy took a big lead early in the round, however, and had Tucker bad all the way, staggering him, putting him through the ropes and forcing him to cover up. Chick was in for fair and reeled around the ring, ready to drop just as the bell came to his rescue.

After the fight Murphy was surrounded by friends congratulating him on his great fight. He said he hurt his right hand in the third round punching Tucker on the head, and that it was a handicap to him from then on. He did not intend to knock Tucker out—his plan was to outbox him the first five rounds and finish him in the sixth.

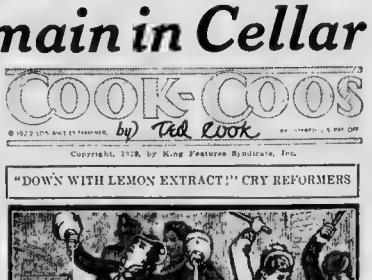
"DOWN WITH LEMON EXTRACT!" CRY REFORMERS



DO you realize that the flavoring extracts used in ice cream sodas contain alcohol? It is a fact. And druggists complain of scenes like the above—when patrons come in, sip off the carbonated water through a straw, and then actually drink the intoxicating syrup. For shame! The Retail Druggists' Association has rightly demanded legislation making it unlawful to supply free straws. Hereafter a small charge will be made for straws, in accordance with the Jones law.

BRAVES BATTLE PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, June 7—Bobby Smith of Atlanta and the Braves, who has been a thorn in the side of the Pittsburgh team on many occasions, is elected to do the chucking for the Braves at Forbes Field this afternoon. When Bobby is keeping them high and shooting 'em low he's about as effective a pitcher as [illegible] the Pirates can [illegible] connected. When he isn't [illegible]

Opposing Robert will be one Larry French youthful southpaw held in much esteem by Manager Donie Bush. French will do his best to keep the Pirates in their place as league pacemakers. The present lead over the Cardinals, apparently the Pittsburghers' most formidable rivals, is slender enough, being based on [illegible] less [illegible] and two less victories.

Half a game as the dopesters figure it, or three games as the players work it out. Baseball's [illegible] men have a way of basing their calculations on the games-won column, claiming a game not played is a game that can be won while a game that has been played and lost is a game gone forever. That's something to the way the performances season, at that.

The initial tilt between the two teams was all jammed up in the second inning, from the Braves' point of view. When Lance Richbourg [illegible] out to the [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible] was would have [illegible] been a put out to become a two-base blow.

This unsettled Harry Seibold and before the Braves' chucker came down to terra firma, the Pirates had accumulated four markers—and the game was gone in the third inning. The Braves kept trying per Ray Kremer was pinpoint [illegible] offensive and the Hub club could only [illegible] two runs from six hits.

Ruth Very Sick; May Be Out for Year

each night. The exact nature of the illness will not be known for a few days or until Dr. King, the Yankees' physician, turns in his report to the club management.

Until the report of the physician is forthcoming, adds the paper, no definite statement will be made as to the Babe's condition. Long automobile rides into the open country are the medicine prescribed to help bring the Yankee ace back to complete health.

Newspaper men and most of the visitors are refused interviews and social calls at Ruth's Riverside apartment, partly because of the excitement and partly because of a desire to keep his present condition secret.

Mrs. Ruth, a bride of two months, is in constant attendance and does her share in seeing that Babe obeys the orders of his physician.

It is almost a week since Ruth appeared in the Yankee line-up. Last Saturday he slammed out the 30th home run of the season and then went to the showers. On Monday it was announced he would be unable to play on account of a heavy cold.

Mrs. Ruth was reached over the telephone in the apartment building, where the Ruths occupy a large suite on the seventh floor. She declined to see interviewers or to go into any detail about the Babe's illness. She said Ruth was sleeping and refused to disturb him.

'Any comment as to his condition will have to come from Dr. King, the attending physician," Mrs. Ruth said.

At the office of the Yankees it was declared no report had been made by Dr. King and that nothing was known about the seriousness of the Babe's condition. According to the Evening World, Ruth is suffering from a stubborn lung condition and has overtaxed his heart.

The apartment was closely guarded, nobody being permitted to go near the Ruth suite.

What Babe Needs Is More Exercise, Says His Trainer

New York, June 7 (AP)—Artie McGovern, physical education instructor who was Babe Ruth's personal trainer in preparing him for his campaigns against the home run records of the game in the last four years, thinks all the big baseball player needs is more exercise. Playing a game of baseball a day does not give him enough work in the opinion of the expert.

"Sure Ruth's heart is bad," said McGovern, "and so is yours," referring to the interviewer's motor power.

"I doubt if his heart's very bad, however. Any man built like Ruth is apt to have a heart murmur if he doesn't take plenty of the right kind of exercise."

G.O.P. ELEPHANT TO WAVE BANNER AT JUBILEE

Ripon, Wis., June 7 (AP)—Ripon today was setting for a diamond jubilee—the celebration to commemorate the founding here 75 years ago of the Republican party. The first of 2000 visitors began arriving yesterday.

"Mr. Herbert," a giant elephant will arrive tomorrow, the day of the official ceremonies from West Chester, Pa., in time to carry a G. O. P. birthplace March 20, 1854, banner in a three-mile parade.

While band concerts will be the feature attraction for the delegations Saturday morning, Wisconsin Republican women will meet under the eaves of the little white schoolhouse, the birthplace of the Republican party, to form a state organization.

James W. Good, Secretary of War, and Governor Walter J. Kohler early in the afternoon will be escorted with the principal thoroughfares to the grounds from where the three-mile parade will march in the Ripon College campus where the program will center around the time we re-lived house.

A number of pageants will be held as Secretary Good, the principal speaker, and Governor Kohler arrive at the speakers' stand. The address of welcome will be given by Silas Evans, president of Ripon College and chairman of the celebration.

$720,000 GIFTS TO SCHOOL

Concord, N. H., June 7—Hurgate Hall, the latest addition to St. Paul's School was dedicated as a part of the exercises of the 73d anniversary week of the school. The hall is the gift of Henry Chalfante of Pittsburgh and represents an expenditure of $720,000.

At the luncheon following the chapel exercises the Rev. Dr. Samuel S. Drury, headmaster presented an informal report showing an excess of gifts for the year of $721,000, besides an addition to the endowment, a memorial and a "friendship fund."

The principal address at the luncheon was given by President James Rowland Angell of Yale, who discussed the place of the scholar in the civilization of today and declared that it was "peculiarly crucial and significant."

New England Folk to Become Musical-Minded, Woman Says

THE musical millennium for New England is a-comin' some day, Mrs. Edgar Stillman Kelley, national president of the Federation of Music Clubs said so in an address yesterday.

She ought to know. She has been musical president of the federation's 500,000 members for four years and is a musician of note.

The pent up emotions of austere New England are to burst forth she said. They are to burst forth in song and melody as has every other country.

The traditions of Puritanism are to fade into dim oblivion and in its wake will stalk high and mighty the King of Song. Away with traditional prejudice! On with the song!

New England is to become musical-minded because music is universal and it is human to be musical.

We have cradle songs and wedding dances. Isn't that proof enough? Human instincts are naturally musical and New Englanders are human.

The pent up emotions of New England despite its traditional prejudices against music in general and its organs in particular, by means [illegible] of the Puritan conscience and [illegible] were pointed in praise of God are set to burst forth in as lusty an expression as [illegible] in any country.

JAZZING THE CLASSICS

But that isn't the end of it. The national president pronounces it.

It is the step-child one injured ego.

If there must be jazz there must be.

[illegible] Nothing could be worse. Not even the jazz itself.

Arriving a few days before the opening of the 16th biennial session and festival of the National Federation of Music Clubs tomorrow, Mrs. Stillman Kelley in an interview in her Hotel Statler suite, stated that the federation at their December board meeting in New York went on record in a resolution as disfavoring the jazzing of the classics.

"Nothing can be done about it of course," she said. "We must simply let it die a natural death. When it ceases to be modern to jazz the classics then such desecration will fade away too.

"If there must be jazz of an appeal to the music-loving [illegible] people then these should be musical expressions. Rich [illegible] who [illegible] are [illegible] famed as a [illegible]."

TRAINING BOYS

"Jazzing Schubert, Chopin or Liszt is in the same class as entertaining St. Paul in the morning papers. The argument that it quickly acquaints the youth of the [illegible] and unmetrical. But that can be remedied. In the early years of Germany's operatic activity the Germans were also opposed to their own tongue but had they continued to hold that opinion the Wagner music dramas might never have come into existence. We must therefore stimulate the lay and high minds of the country in opera in English. It is sure to come. We cannot fail.

Late this afternoon, over 100 young artists from every part of the country will gather at the New England Conservatory of Music for final instructions before the national contests take place tomorrow.

Six $500 prizes are to be awarded the winners, which includes voice, piano and violin.

Tomorrow afternoon Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, honorary member of the national organization, will entertain at a reception and tea in her Beacon st. home, the national board members.

ST. JOSEPH'S GUILD

The reception and festival begins tomorrow and ends a week from next Tuesday.

This is the first time in 229 years that Boston is to so thunder-[illegible] speech in song and music. Mrs. William Arms Fisher, national vice president, is chairman of the local biennial board and heads an enlarged committee of ardent workers.

The final party of the season takes place tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. at the League House, 1 Arlington st., proceeds to be devoted to the Home for Aged Women, maintained by the guild. Mrs. William Sheilds and Mrs. Katherine McDonald are to be the hostesses.

GENERAL FEDERATION

Three more States and their fine achievements in community service, as reported by directors at the biennial council, showing the busy activity of the nation's clubwomen:

NEW HAMPSHIRE—The women worked frantically for the passage of a bill in the Legislature to make it economically possible not only to hold, but to grow timber, of which the State is fast being depleted. Mrs. LaFell Dickinson of Keene sadly related. While the women failed to carry through the issue, they mean to renew their efforts next year in another determined attempt.

Savin Hill Beach Work Soon Starts

Mayor Nichols will send the recent bill passed by the Legislature enabling the city of Boston to borrow $450,000 outside the debt limit to relieve Savin Hill beach of pollution caused by the construction of the Old Colony boulevard, to the city council, for ratification on Monday, and work will be commenced at once by Commissioner Sullivan.

Somerville Girls 'Down on the Farm?'

Manchester, N. H., June 7—Margaret Walsh and Mary Cobell both of Somerville, Mass., reported missing from home, are believed to be in New Hampshire. Miss Cobell wrote her mother that she had fallen and broke an arm and hip and gave a Bennington, N. H., address, stating she was on a farm not far from the postoffice. No trace of the girls has been found in Bennington, and relatives from Somerville are in New Hampshire seeking them.

'Gas' Stove Blast Kills R. I. Foreman

Providence, June 7—Harry Whitehead of Cowesett, 26, a foreman in the employ of the State Board of Public Roads, died at the Rhode Island Hospital from burns suffered when a gasoline stove exploded in the basement of his home.

The flames set fire to his clothing, and also spread through the house, doing considerable damage.

NEW BIG WAREHOUSE

Photo shows Warehouse Furniture Outlet, Inc., newly acquired plant on Massachusetts ave., said to be the largest warehouse selling furniture in New England.

An innovation in furniture merchandising in Greater Boston is the system operated by the Warehouse Furniture Outlet, Inc., in their newly acquired buildings in Massachusetts ave., a short distance from Southampton st.

The Warehouse Furniture Outlet Inc. now has what is claimed to be the largest warehouse selling household furniture in New England.

The building was built for a piano manufacturer and is equipped with spacious and well lighted floors and themselves very readily to easy use of furniture without crowding and without the use of costly fixtures.

The Warehouse plan initiated buying in carload lots and shipments direct to the Massachusetts ave. plant where spur track facilities permit unloading directly into the warehouse. This of course eliminates all trucking any hauling, and does away with one of the heavy costs of the normal furniture business.

FAST MOTORS A BIG BOOST TO BOATING

There are more outboard motors skipping the surface waters this year off New England beaches than ever before, a survey of a nautical reporter disclosed today.

Although the volume of the sur boards has been increasing in pace with each succeeding year during the last five, the season apparent it has even gone above the surge of the previous motorboat series according to the survey.

The summer spurt, which incidentally is not confined to the resort, is exceedingly popular on inland waterways and has now reached the stage where a number of yachtsmen have come almost exclusively to the use of the swift motorboat.

The outboard motor boat industry is one of the fastest growing industries in the country in the past 12 years it has gained 100 per cent each year and the future is not dimming.

Sailing is a boon to fishermen as the boating was lethargic a business and a sport for several years. Then someone discovered that the motors properly developed could be speeded up and the sailing, and fast ride would be on.

The as and sailing in its turn is enjoying a fresh lease on life and is second step in our board motor boating. A few sports in each locality in the early leaders and development of faster boats naturally followed.

Now, there are approximately 5,000 outboard motor boats in use around Greater Boston and a large majority of them are in use as family boats.

Manchester Nestles Its Mills in Beauty

my shelves. I would starve if I depended on the sale of medicine alone. We druggists must depend on other sales in order to carry a full line of drugs and medicines."

Now you know why druggists sell sandwiches, too.

Things run smoothly in Manchester, and William Scott supplies the oil. As agent for one of the biggest oil companies in the country Scott supplies gas and oil for nearly the entire state. Scott is another who started on a small scale, on a tire to be exact, and rolled along to the ownership of the Scott Oil Co.

Aviation is Scott's principal hobby. He dashes over the Manchester airport whenever business permits, and enjoys nothing better than a dip in the clouds in a two seater. He is also a baseball fan and is vice-president of the Manchester Club of the New England League.

MANCHESTER has furnished the New England member of the Federal Reserve advisory committee in the person of Arthur M. Heard, president of the Amoskeag Manufacturing. Heard is a graduate of Amherst, and a personal friend of Calvin Coolidge. He has one hobby, golf, but insists that he only plays "at it."

ONE of the most remarkable young ladies in Manchester is Miss Margaret Sheehan. She is a graduate of Trinity College, and holds A.M. and B.L. degrees. She studied law at the Portia Law School, and is a member of the New Hampshire bar. She conducts two restaurants, a dance hall, runs her father's insurance business, a potato chip factory and is an author. She was the first woman to make a transcontinental trip by airplane and can pilot her own plane. She is interested in all branches of sport, and was once a basketball coach. Her hobbies are horse back riding, fencing, golf and swimming and making angel cake.

Another young lawyer who is making his mark in Manchester is John L. Sullivan, 29-year-old solicitor for Hillsborough County. A graduate of Dartmouth and Harvard, he now holds the position held by his father from 1913 to 1919.

MICHAEL J. HEALY, one of Manchester's greatest boosters and the Hedgehog much of his time is the cause of jokes everywhere he goes, but the people of Manchester have prospered under his guidance.

Although he is 52 years old, Healy retires at the stroke of 9 every evening at 8:30 o'clock to study courses before 6 p.m. Professor Charles R. Brown, dean of Yale Divinity School, is also a lecturer before coming the police force he practiced for ten years.

"LIKE father, like son" is the case in Manchester. Robert M. Stone, son of Hiram Stone, Democratic boss of Hillsborough county, is the youngest member of the Board of Aldermen after serving one term in the lower house of the legislature. He was elected.

O'Dowd senior is a Democrat, but when he left town to go to fire he was nominated by both parties, a fine tribute to the humane supervision of the county jail. The prisoners also paid tribute to O'Dowd on his retirement.

Bringing in the newspapers in Manchester was once a very exacting business. William H. Gilbert, 82 year old resident used to transport papers from Boston by sleigh, making a round trip every Sunday of nearly 120 miles.

He has no trouble today in getting papers. This one will reach him a few hours after it is printed.

Washington, June 7—It was announced that the Chilean embassy had decided to do without wines. THOMPSON IS CHEERFUL ON OUTLOOK

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

President A. P. Thompson, Jr., of the William L. Gilbert Clock Co., of Winsted, Ct., tells me in spite of the fact that this is our quiet season, our sales are continuing in a very satisfactory manner. Possibly an important factor in this is the new Three-Tone Chime Clock we are now recently brought out, which strikes in a very cheerful way the three notes of a major call. This has proved very popular wherever we have been able to make deliveries and added to our normal business has helped us considerably. All indications point to a very material increase in business during the balance of the year which is normally our best season annual. Certainly, we are optimistic up here.

A gavel made from New England white pine that has served for 112 years as the gavel of the White House at Washington will be presented to the New England Council at its meeting in Manchester, Vt., Saturday. The gavel is the gift of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

If the intention is to show the durability of New England woods, very much older examples could be had. They might be secured from scores of early timbered farms and towns. When George Washington rode over the Newburyport Turnpike just after it was built, south, N. H., he wrote in his diary the observation that houses newly all of wood he was surprised by the fact that brick and stone were ignored in Washington's day. brick and stone houses were said to be damp in our climate, but mod ern building genius has overcome that handicap.

New records for pneumatic tire production are indicated for 1929, according to a statistical study made for the Ballard Co., manufacturers of machinery now employed in the tire industry. While it is reasonable to expect seasonal variations in the present rate of tire production with wide increases in August and September, the Ballard study indicates that production this year will approach 80,000,000 new tires. The increased production has made necessary large additions of automobiles and a very considerable increase in exports.

STOCKS EASIER IN AFTERNOON IN WALL ST.

By W. S. COLMAN

New York, June 7 Outside of the utility stocks and a few of the oils and specialties the stock market made little progress along the line of recovery today.

Under the promise of an improvement in the money market, bulls in Erie, New Haven and other popular railroad stocks pushed prices to another high level, but the Treasury Department's action in naming a 3½ per cent rate on its new nine-months certificates offering the highest in eight years took the edge off the enthusiasm of the bulls. Then the bears started in on various issues and other favorites in the week's multiple records and once more a record pace was set.

New Haven sold at 109⅞, the highest in 16 years and 100 per cent above the low point of 1921. Erie was pushed along to a record high price of 81¾, but both of these records were made at the opening of the market, when the day was young.

From that time until the early afternoon there was plenty of railroad stock for sale at a point or so below the opening price range.

American Waterworks, at the head of the utilities, rushed up 11 points to a new high at 172. American Foreign Power was up 2; Public Service up 1¾, and Columbia Gas up 1.

Stocks worked lower in late trading. The break in Commonwealth Power, which recently scored a spectacular advance to a record high level, disturbed speculative sentiment. The stock, which regis tered a new high at 218½ yesterday and closed at 212, broke from an early high of 213 today to 195¼.

Fresh liquidation developed in Radio Corporation on reports of a rather poor second quarter report

PROFIT-TAKING IN COTTON

New York, June 7 (AP) The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 1 to 7 points in response to rather easy Liverpool cables and a favorable view of early weather reports. There was uneasiness on bullish reports from Texas, including reports of heavy weevil emergence. While offers were here and there pressed up in early buying, July advanced to 18.74 and December to 19.03, or about 5 to 10 points higher. This bulge met some realizing.

There was a little more selling after the publication of the early weather map which evidently made a favorable impression on sentiment. By the middle of the forenoon July was selling around 18.60 and December 19.00 or a few points off from their best.

Private cables reported Bombay buying and trade calling supplied before reaching the Liverpool market. Some American selling in that market also was reported.

WHEAT PRICES AT NEW TOPS

Chicago, June 7 (AP) With farm relief prospects the dominating factor, wheat prices scored a lively fresh advance today, over topping all recent upturns.

Buying was on a large scale, with the market fluctuating rapidly, and with unwelcome rainy weather southwest continuing as an influence against sellers.

Opening 3 to 4½c up, Wheat prices worked still higher further, but then reacted somewhat.

Corn, oats and provisions also were carried to new high records, and in the case of provisions closed at the top or higher and subsequently showing additional gains

Dividends Ordered for B. & M. Issues

Regular quarterly dividends on Boston & Maine 6% preferred, preference, first preferred, and preferred stock, payable July 1 on stock of record June 15, have been declared by the directors, it is announced. eral Motors Corp., President Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., commenting on the Delco-Light Co., a subsidiary of General Motors, explained that there is no conflict of interests between Delco-Light and the great central power projects now under way in Illinois. Sloan the two have interests closely allied and are working in complete harmony. Many of the large public utility companies throughout the country are purchasing Delco-Light products, now selling D.-L. water systems.

The most important products of the Delco-Light Co are farm electric plants and water systems. Over 6,000,000 farms in the United States, Mr. Sloan says, only about 10 per cent are now electrified. He estimates that there are over 2,500,000 farms which registered the logical field for immediate expansion of rural electrification through the installation of individual plants. Over 325,000 Delco-Light plants have already been sold and this number exceeds combined sales of all individual electric plants of other makes.

INVESTMENT TRUSTS GIVEN LISTING O. K.

The committee on stock list of New York Stock Exchange is prepared to receive applications to list the securities of certain types of companies commonly described as investment trusts.

The committee will consider each application on its merits.

The committee regards as falling within this description such companies as are engaged primarily in the business of investing and reinvesting in the securities of other corporations for the purpose of investment and for profit and not in general for exercising control.

Companies coming within the purview shall publish with the annual report a statement showing the value of securities held either directly or indirectly at the close of each period covered by the report, valuation of securities for this statement shall be based upon the market price of all securities listed on recognized stock exchanges and upon a fair appraisal of other securities, there must be contained in the report a complete list of all holdings of the company showing name and quantity of each security and no one item more than an amount of 10 per cent of the company's aggregate capital and surplus, or 10 per cent of the cost of securities held, whichever may be less, may be covered under a heading "miscellaneous securities," provided that such securities have not been held for more than one year.

This list should disclose aggregate cost of the securities and their aggregate market value and in the case of holdings not listed on the New York Stock Exchange or New York Curb the price at which such holding have been inventoried for the purpose of determining aggregate market value must be clearly set forth with such supporting information as may seem desirable.

QUINCY MINING DESCRIBED

In his annual report, J. Parsons Todd, president of Quincy Mining Co., says: "Operations in 1928 were confined almost entirely to shaft sinking, drifting and recovery of No. 2 shaft, as closing of this shaft by fire in 1927 made further mining or crushing of underground workings, made it advisable to discontinue all operations in the mine in every effort to opening the mine as rapidly as possible for the retreating system of mining.

"Recovery of No. 2 shaft proved more difficult than had been expected owing to it having caved badly between the 45th and 54th levels, but was completed in January, 1929. No. 8 shaft, out of commission for six years, was reopened in August, 1928, and after extensive repairs was connected with No. 6 shaft through the 57th level to No. 2, 6 and 8 shafts are now in operation, and good progress is being made in opening the mine for the retreating system.

"Production was resumed in a small way in March, 1929, and will be increased as rapidly as new openings permit. During April 16,700 tons of copper rock were handled, and the company hopes to increase production to 50,000 tons a month by end of 1929. Housing capacity of the three shafts is over 50'000 tons a month when in full operation."

Many Dainty Recipes

THE latest news and sketches of fashions appear each day on the magazine page of the Boston Evening American. Also Martha Lee's helps on cooking and the menu. Recipes of the most approved chefs are among the many features appearing here and should be read by every woman.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

IF a child has made no effort to walk or talk by the end of the second year, it is high time that he be submitted to a thorough physical and mental examination. Wide variations, of course, exist, but better find out if something is wrong. All children should show signs by the second year.

Baby's First Solids

A TROUBLE point for the new mother is often when the time comes for the first solid foods in a child's meal. Up to this time she has been able to go by her physician's formulae, but all too often he leaves her to chart the solid-food course unguided.

Martha Lee

Cereals are among the first additional foods that the young child will have and should, of course, be cooked until so tender that the baby can easily digest them. One quarter cup of raw cereal gives 90 to make a cupful of cooked cereal. Only by trial can one readily determine the exact quantity she will need to use each day.

Cereals must be cooked fresh every 24 hours and stirred in a double boiler. Most "granulated cereals require at least two hours' cooking, while the whole grain cereals require four hours.

A good proportion is 4 cups of liquid to 1 cup of cereal, and just a word about that liquid. Today physicians suggest that hot cereals be often cooked in milk rather than in water. In order to increase the food value and to get more milk into the children's daily meal. If this is done heat the milk in the top of a double boiler, add the cereal and cook until it is done, then add the rest of the milk and heat thoroughly before serving. Cooking cereal in milk will not prevent the baby from getting enough milk in his daily diet, for he will get it in the form of cereal, custards, etc.

After the cereal is cooked, it is ready to be served with butter and salted lightly before serving. If butter is cooked with the cereal it becomes rancid when it is kept for any length of time, and cooking cereal over the heat is to avoid burning.

Then fill the lower part of the double boiler half full with boiling water, set the top of the boiler over it and allow it to cook at full heat for about 5 minutes. Then stir the cereal well over the heat to prevent lumping. When the cereal is cooked, remove the top part of the boiler, and serve with cream, milk or fruit juice.

Cooked cereals are usually served warm, but the child is at least two months old. After a stranger is used and the cereals put through with the back of a spoon into a covered dish. Then this is put into the refrigerator, where it will keep well and is ready for use.

In serving, reheat over slow heat or in the top of a double boiler, adding a pinch of salt and enough milk to make smooth and of the right consistency to handle with a spoon. For children over two, about a tablespoon of stewed raisins, chopped figs or dates, or a tender lettuce, may be added to a serving of cereal to give more food value to a heavy cereal.

Of course, the cereal particular about the source of supply of the milk that the baby children. As a universal rule the milk bottles should always be washed off upon arrival and wiped dry and the bottles stored on ice as quickly as possible.

I like the metal caps that can be purchased to screw and protect the entire top surface of the milk bottle. Never keep milk and cream in refrigerator with food than necessary. Keep the lids shut all times.

Fruit juices and fruit pulps are included in the child's diet quite early in life, as a matter of being among the first foods. These for very young children should be strained through a fine wire sieve into a bowl or the glass, and it is better to prepare the juice from each piece of fruit as it is half of a peach, orange, pineapple, the cut surface with waxed paper and keep in the refrigerator.

Tomato juice is first canned is recommended for children. If the fresh tomato is used, wash it, then put in a saucepan of boiling water and stem, cover it, supplying a boiling water. Then cut in pieces and put through a sieve to remove the seeds and skin. Cook the juice for a few minutes, very juicy, or take part of water may be added. Then press the cooked pulp through a fine wire strainer to help in the juice. Season to taste and serve.

When fresh tomatoes are not in season, they may be sliced, cut in pieces and pressed through a sieve without cooking to get the juice. Tinned tomatoes should be avoided necessary to strain the tomato as by cooking.

A June Romance

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

WHAT love-filled maiden does not know the legend of the rose? Who, that has ever sighed for romance, and having achieved it soared among the clouds, who has not heard the story of the unfolding of the rosebuds in June?

It is a tale of youth's enchantment, of a dormant love that needed but a gentle reminder of spring's end to flower into fulfilment. It is a tale of two roses, growing side by side, their heads turned from each other in arch-shyness. For months their fragrance intermingled and they longed to lift up their heads in mutual greeting. But rosebuds, like young lovers, are not bold. They waited for the intervention of Fate.

And Fate, in the person of a disguised Cupid, came. On a languid June morning a tiny bee dropped a single speck of pollen on the eyelids—that is, petals—of the first rosebud. Up came its head. And in the language of the flowers it sang a song of love's desire to the other rosebud.

The rest is known. Love's awakening, that glamorous first moment of mutual declaration, has been sung by poets and rhymsters down through the ages. Like the unfolding of June rosebuds, it makes fragrant the humid air and lends an aura of loveliness to a mundane atmosphere.

The story of the June roses is an old one. But it is the sweetest story of all time.

When Romance Is Wrecked by Idle Gossip

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX,
Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

AN amazing amount of heart-breaking trouble is caused by listening to hear-say evidence. It seems incredible that one who is supposedly fond of another, will believe all reports of that friend without the slightest hesitation and on the strength of such rumors will break up a friendship or love affair, yet this occurs constantly.

Fifth Ave. Fashions NEW YORK

Just today, the first letter I opened, signed Miss Seventeen, told of the breakup of her friendship with Mr. Twenty through hear-say and gossip.

After ten months of comradeship, Mr. Twenty stopped coming to see Miss Seventeen quite abruptly, without giving any reason whatever, he shunned her when they met. Naturally, Miss Seventeen was puzzled.

Finally, she learned that an acquaintance snarled by herself and Mr. Twenty, in order to "get even" because of a misunderstanding between herself and Miss Seventeen, had told Mr. Twenty "things that were untrue" about Miss Seventeen. Did Mr. Twenty deny these accusations? Did he announce good humoredly, but firmly, that he was not interested in talking about personalities and had perfect faith in his friend? He did not.

On the contrary, he listened credulously to all the evil reports regarding that friend and decided, in his self righteous indignation, to cut her acquaintance. Now if anyone should be shunned—absolutely ostracized and socially exiled under the circumstances—the person should be Miss Mischief-Maker who sweetly assured Mr. Twenty that something to tell you about Miss Seventeen which "I think you ought to know for your own good." For thanks to her a promising friendship, which might have led to happy marriage, came to the evil of gossip. And all in an untimely end.

We hear and read much regarding that is said and written in condemnation of gossip is true. The quiet whispering of scandal and supposed scandal is destructive and deadly. But scandal, gossip and unkind personal criticism would have no power to blight friendship and wreck love and marriage were it not for the listening ear.

No matter how subtle the insinuations against your friend, announce flatly that you are fond of that friend and will believe only the best regarding him or her. You can make this announcement decisive yet good-humored, then promptly change the subject to one more cheerful and impersonal. It is not necessary to offend by brusque rudeness. But if you make your stand clear, the scandal mongers and gossipers will soon decide you are an unsympathetic audience and cease disturbing you with their mental poison.

Were I Miss Seventeen, if Mr. Twenty persisted in avoiding me because of unfounded gossip detailed to him by Miss Mischief Maker, I would thank my lucky stars at losing so shallow a friend. Also, I would sing a little song of gratitude, all to myself, because the unkind things Miss Mischief Maker said were untrue. After that, I would proceed to forget the entire incident and go about with loyal friends.

You can judge your friends for yourself without the aid of the mischief maker and gossip purveyors. A friend is entitled to all your loyalty. A person you have found, through your own experience, unworthy of trust, is also unworthy of your friendship and should not be encouraged as an intimate comrade.

Should really serious reports reach you regarding a friend, find definitely whether they are true. Perhaps the best way is to take your father or older brother into your confidence, provided you can not get at the facts yourself. He will soon find out for instance, whether the young man who is so attentive to you, whom no one knows well is married and what his record is.

But if you condemn your friends on rumor and hear-say evidence, without proving the charges, you will soon find yourself miserable and friendless. Remain loyal to friends until they are proved unworthy. Even in that event you can afford to be kind to them in an impersonal way for the sake of what you once believed they were.

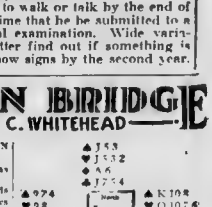
THROWING THE LEAD AS AN END PLAY

Auction Bidding: South bids one No Trump and all pass

Contract Bidding: South bids three No Trump. This bid shows a Probable Tricks inclusive of at least 4½ to 5 Quick Tricks distributed in four suits, all double stopped. This last, showing of all four suits doubly stopped, a requirement for a three No Trump bid, frequently enables partner of the bidder when holding high-card values to bid for a game with absolute confidence. Of course with his holding as above, North could not increase the bid.

The Play: West leads the Club 3. Fast playing the Club Q, and South winning with the Club A. South, before deciding upon his plan of play stops to count the positive tricks in the two hands. These consist of three Clubs, two Diamonds, two Heart and two Spade tricks, or nine in all; but in order to be assured of two Spade tricks, either the finesse of the Spade Q must win, or the Spade K must be driven out with either the Spade Q or the Spade J. As a Spade trick must inevitably be lost, whether or not the finesse of the Spade Q wins, South elects to lose it at once by leading the Spade Q from his own hand, rather than to take out his only possible re-entry in Dummy other than the Diamond A. East, now in the lead, with no sound shift to another suit, returns the Club 6, which South wins with the Club K. In the subsequent play of this hand, the details of which space does not permit, South makes 11 tricks by throwing West into the lead on the 11th trick, forcing him to lead a Diamond up to the King-Jack.

Tomorrow's article will show the bidding and play of another hand.



Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Address him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

What Is Nervousness?

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M. D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

NERVOUSNESS is one of the waste-basket terms into which a lot of nonsense is thrown. Or, to put it another way, the term nervousness covers up a great deal of ignorance.

Yet the nerves are exceedingly important structures and they may actually become disordered, either in their functioning or in their organic structure.

When a person feels ill at ease, or behaves somewhat excited, or suffers from sleeplessness or fears or doubts or whatnot, it is so easy to say, 'Oh, it's just merely a case of nerves," and let it go at that.

Yet there is no reason why people should become nervous even to the mild extent I have mentioned. Rather than that they should have a pain in the stomach.

To be sure, an occasional pain in the stomach is not a cause for alarm; it may be due to transitory causes, a temporary difficulty to digest the food, for instance. Likewise, that nervous feelings may have no special significance whatsoever.

Nevertheless, because we use the term nervousness in such a loose sense we have at the same time lost respect for it.

And sometimes it must be emphasized, these little nervous symptoms, coming on regularly, are the forerunners of more serious trouble.

There are many forms of nervousness.

Indeed, although physicians employ such terms as neurasthenia, psychasthenia, hysteria and the neuroses to specify the grouping in which the particular case under the consideration falls, no two cases of nervousness are exactly alike. Anywise no two cases of nerve malfunctioning require identical treatment.

Although this statement might apply to any disease, and the skill of the physician largely lies in this fact, in the case of nerves, individuality of study and treatment is of the very highest importance.

This probably accounts in large measure for the fact that these so-called nervous people visit one doctor after another without, apparently, finding relief. Often they do not give the doctor the opportunity of studying the case long enough or minutely enough.

Nervousness is caused by the badly working nerve structures. The malfunctioning may be due to the fact that wrong nerve messages are being sent along the nerves to the nerve tissues. It may also be due to actual changes in the nerves themselves. It may be due to organic diseases of organs other than the nerves.

Most nervousness, however—especially that which goes by the name—is a mind affair, rather than a body ailment.

The conscious and the subconscious minds seem to be out of harmony, causing conflict, and, as a result, nervousness.

Often the apparent reason for nervousness is a depletion of nerve energy. Yet nerve energy would not be wasted were the mind working in perfect harmony.

Nervousness should not be lightly held nor should it be a mystery.

Nervousness always has a cause which can and should be found.

The Newport Girl

by Gilbert Rogers

A SIX-DAY STORY

Love on Sands of Famous New England Resort

Karl. Things can go on as before. I will see to that. You need only give me my opportunity."

It was at this moment that Mrs. Nicholas Trenchard arrived at her mother's apartment.

But when she entered, and went to her mother's rooms, she was shocked at Mrs. Strake's face.

"Mother, darling, you—you look awfully different somehow. Has anything happened here?"

"Yes, a great deal." Mrs. Strake's voice was as sweet as she could make it. "We've lost our money, every penny of it. Your father—what he's done for the last ten years I don't know. He's never consulted me. And last night he came here to tell me he was ruined. Completely wiped out, Felicity. So everything is changed, so. And Felicity, you're my only hope. You've got to save us."

"I love to!"

"We've got to have money. I feel differently about Nick Trenchard now, you see. You'll have to make quite a rich marriage, Felicity, someone you care for, of course . . . you understand me, don't you, dearest?"

"I'm terribly, terribly sorry," she said, "but I've just been married to Nick. I love him absolutely."

Mrs. Strake's jaw dropped. Her eyes looked glazed.

I refuse to acknowledge this marriage," she said in a voice that rasped.

Felicity had flushed. "It doesn't matter whether you do or not, mother. The law acknowledges it."

"Give him up." Mrs. Strake cried. "You think you love him. What does it mean after all. And he's a little better than a drunkard—"

"He's never going to drink again," Felicity answered. Then all at once, she burst into tears. She fled from the room.

The cab had scarcely taken Felicity from the door, when another cab drove up, and Nick Trenchard was announced.

Nick entered with a nervous air.

"Nick, you are sweet. Well, I don't want you to breathe a word of this—you understand? Oh, it's something I wouldn't have Felicity know for the world. It's about her father, Preston. Preston has gotten himself tangled up with some terrible girl or other, and she's going to make a scandal. Of course, I can't see her myself, but if a man, a man of the world, say, went to see her, talked with her, got to make her understand—all very tactfully, of course—why the whole thing might be hushed up. While you're drinking I'll get the girl's address for you."

Presently he had gone, and Mrs. Strake searched a phone book until she found Nick Trenchard's address. Felicity had gone to his apartment.

A woman answered. Mrs. Strake said clearly:

"I'm phoning for Mr. Trenchard. If any one calls for him, say he is at the following address . . . Will you take it down, please?"

"A young lady's been here," the woman answered. "But she said she'd be back in a few minutes."

"Tell her she can find Mr. Trenchard at the address I gave you."

"Yes, ma'am."

Mrs. Strake rang off. Her face was strangely grim for a woman's.

Felicity wandered back to the apartment at last and the housekeeper gave her the telephone message with the address.

It was loaned to the address in West Fifties. A smiling Jap boy answered the door.

"Does Mr. Nick Trenchard here? I'm expected," she said.

She stepped inside. A girl with dark hair, dark eyes and a mouth that you looked at twice was sitting on a davenport. She leaned attractively against Nick Trenchard. Neither of them was very sober. Nick lurched to his feet, and rubbed his eyes at the sight of Felicity.

"Felicity, you mustn't come here. You mustn't, right now, see. I'm—I'm conducting very important, diplomatic—diplomatic wistyvocalism. You—you better go home."

For a moment she had been startled. Now she blazed into fury at even a sudden look of hurt and shock that penetrated to Nick's befuddled brain.

"You promised me you weren't going to drink any more," she said quietly. "And tonight we were going away. Oh, Nick, explain, explain. Please—I'll believe you—things can't be what they seem to be. What is it, Nick?"

Nick Trenchard caught the end of the davenport for support. He was thinking hard, trying to remember. Then it came back. This was a secret. Mrs. Strake had told Felicity, but must not know about Zoe Gale, her brother's scandal.

"Oh, that," drawled Eve lazily. "Why shouldn't I? I'm his wife."

"Why he ever let you get away from him is beyond me. You're too devilishly good looking, my dear, for a man to walk more than six feet from you. You'd get in mischief, I couldn't help it. Men won't leave you alone."

"So I notice," retorted Eve. "Particularly one Col. Drinkwater."

His arm had been sliding about her as they stood in the shadow of the boat deck.

"Oh, now, I say, my dear. What's a little hug between friends?"

"It doesn't mean a thing in my young life," said Eve, airily. "What about another dance? I've got itching feet tonight. And what else do you know about Don Carlos?"

"Well, now, er—r—r. I don't want to get mixed up in any family scandal."

"Don't worry. You won't. We're—er—ry friendly." Eve imitated a nonchalant attitude as successfully that the colonel decided to risk his indiscretion.

"I was going to say that they DO say down in the Islands that he owes all his success to some native woman. Anyway, rumor says she is."

"What's that?" asked Eve.

"Halifax-like," answered the colonel.

"Good Jord!" ejaculated Eve! There was laughter came to her and she added: "So the fastidious Don Carlos has fallen for local color! Tell me some more about this—this half-white woman." Eve suggested.

"You're a persistent little devil, aren't you?"

"What's the scandal about Don Carlos?"

"Dang these women." The colonel's irritation sobered him for a moment. "Once they set their hearts on something they won't moment you hear from her?"

Jacob Gram called again.

Mrs. Strake had begun to have an increasing respect for this quiet, unconscious man, with the patient eyes and unfaltering will.

She poured out the story in a rush. Felicity's marriage this very afternoon, her own prompt action, her insistence on a Paris divorce.

He sat now thoughtfully for so long a time that Mrs. Strake almost made the mistake of believing him stupid.

Then he said:

"I want you to give me the address of this person—this chorus girl. I think I shall go to see her."

"When?"

"Now, of course."

"But—she may not see you—she may—"

"She will see me," said Jacob Gram, almost gently.

With Zoe Gale's address on a card, he left the apartment, and Mrs. Strake continued to answer Nick's frantic phone calls.

That night Mrs. Strake really managed to sleep. So did Zoe Gale, though once she woke up to feel her own pillow and think of the little blue check she had hidden there was not something she had dreamed about. But she would be on to warn it and another one like it.

Only Nick and Felicity, in different parts of the city, remained awake in misery that could have been dispelled by a word.

Zoe Gale awoke next morning, and having dressed with care drove to Nick's apartment.

She looked at her blankly, and said nothing.

"Listen," she said, "I'm going to tell you why I'm here. After you last night I had a quarrel with my friend. He's through. I haven't a thing, and I didn't know you. I'm flat broke, and I'm—that's a fact. Thought maybe you'd let me hang around here until I could find my bearings."

"Sure," he said easily. "That's all right. Make yourself as comfortable as you can. The cigarettes are in that box over there."

"You're a good sport!" she exclaimed.

But Nick had no eyes to notice. Before the morning was out Nick departed for the Strake apartment.

Mrs. Strake received him coldly. Nick blurted out the whole miserable misunderstanding.

"And there I was, you see—and I couldn't tell her why! I was there—I remembered you asked me to say nothing about that. Then she went away."

"I wouldn't worry if I were you, Nick. Jim quite certain she's run down to Southampton to see some of her friends there. Felicity is very impulsive. You ought to know that. I'm going to Southampton this morning. If you cared to come along—"

He thanked her tremulously.

Meanwhile Felicity had had her coffee and orange juice at the Ritz.

Surely there'd be some explanation for last night, something to show that it was wrong she had been so doubt him!

She hurried to Nick's apartment and looked in.

"Come in!" said Zoe Gale.

Felicity went into Nick's apartment. She looked at the girl.

"I wanted to see my—my husband," Felicity faltered.

"He's gone, too. He won't be back for a while. He asked me to talk to you if you came around or called up."

Felicity looked at Zoe Gale as if for the first time.

Zoe insisted that that strange man Gram were here to see her. She would do the job thoroughly.

"Yes," she said slowly and cubtingly, she didn't have the nerve to tell you. He put it up to me. And I don't mind.

"Tell me? About what?" Felicity faltered.

"Jess," she said, "I want to hear what you have to say."

Zoe Gale's lip twitched. She felt contemptuous and savage in her desire to humble her.

He's gotten into more scrapes than you could count. He always comes to me. He tells me the truth—that's why I know I can hold him. When he told me he was married, and came to me in his right sense, asking how he was to get out of it last night, I was mad enough to give him up. But I guess I like him, because he likes me, you see. He's run out of town leaving me to face you and tell you. That all there is to it."

"No, no," Felicity cried. "This isn't—this can't be true. What are you to him anyway? How dare you talk to me as you have?"

Zoe Gale was enjoying herself. "Just think it over," she said without raising her own voice. "Nick and I have been living together for a long time."

Then a blinding mist came before Felicity's eyes. She went down the stairs and out into the street full.

She found a phone booth and called her father.

"Come and get me," she begged him. "Come and get me."

She told him where she was.

The next morning's newspaper reported that Mrs. Frank Strake had left for Newport with her royal guest, Prince Karl. Others of the party were Miss Felicity Strake, Mrs. Strake's debutante daughter, and Jacob Gram, the well-known financier.

CHAPTER 22.

EVE was having a wonderful time on the steamer going to Hawaii.

The voyage began with three days of fog and by that time acquaintances on shipboard were well under way. Various little cliques which make every ocean voyage interesting had been formed. There were the conservatives and those who threw convention to the wind. Eve soon found that life aboard ship was just as though a small village or city had been transplanted on deck. The same intimate gossip went on behind people's backs. It came quickly to her ears.

There were gay drinking parties, while away the lazy afternoons and evenings. And it was to this element that Eve directed her time when fat and 40; slightly bald and very florid.

"Not THE Don Carlos Whiting, the playwright?" Col. Drinkwater had remarked upon the receipt of his statement.

"The one and same. But why such an accent on the one and only Don Carlos? Has he become such a big fish in the small puddle of Honolulu?"

"Don't you know?" asked the colonel.

"Know what?" Eve didn't wish to appear too inquisitive. It might be easier to extract information if he didn't guess the scarcity of her news about Don Carlos.

"That is a very successful young playwright and author?" For a moment the colonel acted soberly. Married, was she? A pretty mixx. And a gay one.

He was attached to the barracks down at Schofield.

Eve and he had been performing some tipsy dances steps to the great amusement of those watching the dancers. They glided progressively down the floor of the improvised ballroom. The colonel was fat and 40; slightly bald and very florid.

"Not THE Don Carlos Whiting, the playwright?" Col. Drinkwater had remarked upon the receipt of his statement.

"The one and same. But why such an accent on the one and only Don Carlos? Has he become such a big fish in the small puddle of Honolulu?"

"Don't you know?" asked the colonel.

"Know what?" Eve didn't wish to appear too inquisitive. It might be easier to extract information if he didn't guess the scarcity of her news about Don Carlos.

"That is a very successful young playwright and author?" For a moment the colonel acted soberly. Married, was she? A pretty mixx. And a gay one.

"Give him up." Mrs. Strake cried. "You think you love him. What does it mean after all. And he's a little better than a drunkard—"

"He's never going to drink again," Felicity answered. Then all at once, she burst into tears. She fled from the room.

The cab had scarcely taken Felicity from the door, when another cab drove up, and Nick Trenchard was announced.

Nick entered with a nervous air.

"Nick, you are sweet. Well, I don't want you to breathe a word of this—you understand? Oh, it's something I wouldn't have Felicity know for the world. It's about her father, Preston. Preston has gotten himself tangled up with some terrible girl or other, and she's going to make a scandal. Of course, I can't see her myself, but if a man, a man of the world, say, went to see her, talked with her, got to make her understand—all very tactfully, of course—why the whole thing might be hushed up. While you're drinking I'll get the girl's address for you."

Presently he had gone, and Mrs. Strake searched a phone book until she found Nick Trenchard's address. Felicity had gone to his apartment.

A woman answered. Mrs. Strake said clearly:

"I'm phoning for Mr. Trenchard. If any one calls for him, say he is at the following address . . . Will you take it down, please?"

"A young lady's been here," the woman answered. "But she said she'd be back in a few minutes."

"Tell her she can find Mr. Trenchard at the address I gave you."

"Yes, ma'am."

Mrs. Strake rang off. Her face was strangely grim for a woman's.

Felicity wandered back to the apartment at last and the housekeeper gave her the telephone message with the address.

It was loaned to the address in West Fifties. A smiling Jap boy answered the door.

"Does Mr. Nick Trenchard here? I'm expected," she said.

She stepped inside. A girl with dark hair, dark eyes and a mouth that you looked at twice was sitting on a davenport. She leaned attractively against Nick Trenchard. Neither of them was very sober. Nick lurched to his feet, and rubbed his eyes at the sight of Felicity.

"Felicity, you mustn't come here. You mustn't, right now, see. I'm—I'm conducting very important, diplomatic—diplomatic wistyvocalism. You—you better go home."

For a moment she had been startled. Now she blazed into fury at even a sudden look of hurt and shock that penetrated to Nick's befuddled brain.

"You promised me you weren't going to drink any more," she said quietly. "And tonight we were going away. Oh, Nick, explain, explain. Please—I'll believe you—things can't be what they seem to be. What is it, Nick?"

Nick Trenchard caught the end of the davenport for support. He was thinking hard, trying to remember. Then it came back. This was a secret. Mrs. Strake had told Felicity, but must not know about Zoe Gale, her brother's scandal.

What Has Happened So Far

Don Carlos Whiting goes to Hawaii after he discovers that his wife, Eve, is carrying on an affair with George Phillips, a neighbor. On landing he is accosted by Chris Olsen, who offers him a home for the liveried Chinese boy. He meets Eugenie, Nahuli's white wife, and Selma Wilson, crippled mother of an unusual family, which includes a daughter, Ruth. The latter marries Al Harding, much to the disgust of her father, Big Tim Wilson. Nahuli orders Don to carry the black dog again. Eugenie invites him to her cottage. She tells him he has been delivering opium and warns him. Among revelations is that Nahuli forced her to marry him to save her father from prison. Don and Eugenie fall in love. On Chris's wedding day they are seen on a vacation. David learns of the affair between his wife and Don Carlos. But before he can bring about revenge he meets his death.

Blind Burke -:- An Interesting Short Story by Alfred I. Tooke

BLIND BURKE was well known in the city. Any day he might be seen tap-tap-tapping his way along Main st. to the restaurant where he got his three squares a day. He always paid cash for his meals—and for anything else he bought—from a small handful of change that he always had with him and that seemed to replenish itself with automatic regularity.

Nobody knew just where Blind Burke got that money. Nobody ever saw him earn any. He never entered the door of a bank. He lived in a little room just off Main st. and there were many sneak-thieves—those parasites of the underworld—who could assure you that Blind Burke had no hoard of wealth hidden away beneath the floor boards, or in the wall, or concealed anywhere else in that cubbyhole that he called home.

He seemed to have no friends—that is, no close friends whom he trusted to keep his money and dole it out to him as he required it. He had acquaintances—many of them—in the limited territory over which he tap-tapped his way from day to day, though he seldom called them by name.

There was Slim Smith. Slim had a little cough that had become a habit, and because it was a habit Slim did not notice it. But Blind Burke noticed it, and recognized Slim by it twenty feet away. There was Bull Johnson, whose heavy step was as easily recognized by Blind Burke as Bull's battered face was by the police.

There was "Shorty," who walked with a limp, and Sam Sellers, who walked with a light shuffle. And, of course, Blind Burke had a long time ago become adept at recognizing people by their voice.

And Blind Burke could give you a very distinct, definite description of any of his acquaintances. He knew their height by the level from which their voice came. He knew their weight by the way the floors creaked beneath them, and from their height and weight together, he knew their builds.

He had trained and developed his faculties until there were many things he could tell you about them—things that would have escaped the average eye, but did not escape the mental vision of Blind Burke.

But though Blind Burke knew his acquaintances as well as their closest pals knew them, he never presumed upon his acquaintance. He seldom spoke unless he was spoken to, and then he usually asked who was speaking to him.

Any day you might see Blind Burke tap-tapping his way down Main st. from the restaurant where he got his three squares a day. He would tap-tap his way along the sidewalks until he heard the familiar click of billiard balls, or until he smelt the warm, pungent air from certain tailor shops, or the odor of stale beer and hot dogs near a certain corner, or until he knew by this sign or that he had come to a place where he might rest for awhile.

If you and I had entered such places there would have been a sudden hush, and the subject of conversation would have changed until we had gone again, for when the click of the ivories was heard, there also might have been heard the curses of those who made their living in ways that the law-abiding populace frowned upon, or the boasting of those who followed their nefarious trade right under the nose of the law.

And if you had taken a pair of pants to be pressed, you would have found the tailor's shop just the same as any other tailor shop, and you would never have guessed that the tailor was a fence who disposed of stolen silks and satins and other goods.

But Blind Burke, tap-tapping his way about, could see nothing. He was just part of the scenery, and the conversation went on just the same when he was there as when he was not there.

The man at the cigar counter told Blind Burke about the mid-town robbery.

"Slim, he got killed!" he told Blind Burke. "Shot through the head. Sam's in the hospital, not expected to live. Bull's in jail—he'll get 20 years, easy! Seems they had it all planned to make a big haul, but somebody tipped off the bulls and they was waitin'. Hidden in the mail truck, they was, and opened fire before the gang had a chance. Somebody tipped off the bulls, all right!"

"Too bad! Too bad!" said Blind Burke, and draining his glass of near beer, he paid for it out of his inexhaustible handful of cash, and asked what time it was.

In Fifth st. and along Main st. he tap-tapped his way, until his sensitive ears detected familiar footsteps going along not far behind him.

Tap-tap-tap!" went his iron-shod stick on the hard pavement. "Tap-tap! Tap-tap-tap!" and as Capt. Flannigan in plain clothes followed, he listened closely to that tapping.

"Hear you cleaned up on my tip—got the gang. . . . I'll take 20 bucks on account. Leave it usual place. . . . I'll get it!" it spelt out.

"O. K." said Flannigan as he sprawled up and passed the tapping figure.

Correct Manners -:- By Mrs. Beeckman

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer your queries on etiquette.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a child was named after its father (Roger Smith, Jr.) and died when an infant, and there is another child, would it be proper and correct to call it Roger Smith Jr., or Roger Smith, 3d?

SENIOR.

IF you wish to give it the same name, it would have to be Roger Smith, Jr.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Now that the men have started wearing shirt waists, this question arises as to whether or not his friend should assist him when putting it on. Some of the girls think it is good form to assist him and I firmly believe it is act. Which is correct?

2. We also discussed street car manners for men. I know in these modern days that it is not necessary for a man to offer his seat to a lady in a bus or car, but I maintain if a man is a perfect gentleman he will do so. Doesn't it show breeding for a man not to offer his seat, providing, of course, that it does not cause a lot of commotion?

3. In talking over the telephone (in office) should you young lady say: "This is Miss Jones," "This is Mrs. Jones" or should she say: "This is Clara," "This is Rose"? I said she should say: "Miss—" and they nearly slaughtered me. We certainly have some life trying to live up to the rules and regulations of etiquette.

4. On entering a street car or bus (with a gentleman) is it proper for a young lady to wait until the man is seated or should she immediately walk down the aisle and be seated?

E. F. L.

YOU are right. Yes, ma'am, thoroughly right. It is not correct for a woman to help a man when he puts on his coat, and a manly man resents bitterly such so-called "assistance." I should think that he might be forgiven if he growled at this attention!

2. Yes—there are a few of them left, a few of these gallant and courteous and thoughtful gentlemen, who will offer their seats to a lady.

3. You are right again. Of course she should say: "This is Miss Jones," or "This is Mrs. Smith." And if they try to slaughter you again—just run to my co'umn, and I'll protect you!

4. It is not necessary for her to wait until the fare is paid. She goes and takes her seat in the car.

Malden Auditorium Opens With Talkies

The Auditorium Theater in Malden announces discontinuance of its stock season and conversion of the playhouse with a cooling system and the latest mechanical devices for a summer season of talkies. Through special arrangements with the Fox Film Corp., Manager Stanley James has booked a number of the latest talking motion pictures and will start the season Saturday with the Fox Movietone melodramatic success, "Speakeasy."

An excellent surrounding feature program will enable this playhouse to present a splendid bill. "Speakeasy" has a cast headed by Lola Lane, leading star of Fox Follies, and Paul Page, a newcomer, as the hero. Paul Page and Lola Lane are recruits from the legitimate stage. Also in the cast is the noted actor, Henry B. Walthall, of "Birth of a Nation" fame.

Varied Program at Pops Tonight

Alfredo Casella announces the following program for the Pop Concert in Symphony hall tonight: Overture to "Le Forze del Destino, Verdi
Largo from the "New World" Symphony, Dvorak
Dance from "Carmen" Bizet
Hungarian March, "Rakoczy" Berlioz
Ballet Suite, "Nutcracker" Tchaikowsky
Song, Without Words Tchaikowsky
Overture, "Semiramide" Rossini

Mexican Resorts Want Border Open

Washington, June 7.—Rep. Swing, Republican, of California, said that Ambassador Telles of Mexico had presented to the State Department a petition signed by resort owners in Tia Juana and Mexicali, Mexico, for reopening of the border on a 24-hour basis.

Senators Shortridge and Shortridge of California have been requested by Secretary Stimson for their views on the question and both have it under advisement.

Harvard Dean Better

LeBaron Russell Briggs, former-ly dean of Harvard college, who a few months ago underwent an operation, now is recuperating at Bournedale.

Bitten by Own Dog

Providence, June 7.—Attacked by their German police dog, Joseph Walsh, 31, and his four-year-old son Joseph W. Jr., are at City Hospital and will take the Pasteur treatment. The dog had rabies.

Fail Not to Fly 'Old Glory' June 14, Flag Day

Is your flag ready for the 14th?

One week from today will be observed as Flag Day, according to proclamation by Gov. Allen. In addition to the universal displaying of the Stars and Stripes, the Governor suggests that patriotic exercises be held in schools and churches.

Get out your flag in preparation for the day—and if you have no flag, get one now and have it on display on next Friday.

On this year's Flag Day the Stars and Stripes should be fluttering from every mast-head, from every staff, outside every building and outside every home.

"The flag," says Gov. Allen in his proclamation, "is the emblem of the very reason for our existence as a nation, the symbol of our unity and our strength. And as it is inconceivable that one can reverence the symbol and not the principle for which it stands, so it is impossible to love the flag and not the nation which it represents."

Get out your flag and fly it, not only on Flag Day, June 14, but on every other holiday whether local or universal.

The flag is the symbol of your freedom!

Have You a 'Pied a Terre'?

The French, most conservative of races, make frequent use of the expression that it is well to have a "pied a terre." The words, strictly translated, mean, to have "a foot on the earth." The idiomatic meaning is, "to have a place of refuge, a little place all one's own, to which one can go between wanderings and after strange places have begun to pall."

Every New Englander should have his "pied a terre," his little corner of the earth that is all his own. No man or woman, no wage-earning lad or lass is too poor to buy a little spot of land somewhere to which he or she can go once in a while to rest and relax and straighten out the tangled threads of busy living.

Massachusetts has thousands of acres of rolling hills and brook-ribboned valleys; Vermont and New Hampshire their rugged mountains and placid lakes; Maine her limitless forests. For a few dollars you can buy yourself a little plot of land, with its trees and bubbling spring. You will find a new thrill in life with the knowledge that you own a spot of earth, no matter how tiny or however remote.

Color in Winthrop Sq.

A row of bright red geranium blossoms and their many-tinted leaves catch the eye as one gazes from the windows of the Boston Evening American across the granite-paved expanse of Winthrop Square. The geraniums are growing in a row of window-boxes stretched along the otherwise monotonous front of one of Boston's oldest commercial blocks.

Perhaps these miniature gardens may be thought out of place amid the noise and dust and bustle of the busy metropolitan center. But perhaps again, they serve a real purpose. More and more are business executives appreciating the psychological value of brightness, color, harmony and beauty in the places where they spend so many hours of their day.

Office desks and chairs are getting away from rigid utilitarian lines and are becoming things of beauty in carved and grained woods. Comfort is thought of, for executive, for visitor and for employe.

A touch of beauty and comfort costs little, yet it adds amazingly to the happiness and the efficiency of all who are given these things.

Hub Has Greatest Fish Pier

Spend a couple of hours on Boston's great fish pier some pleasant day. If you have never visited this interesting spot, an absorbing experience awaits you. Watch the unloading of great cargoes of shimmering mackerel and cod and halibut. Peep over the side of the pier into the mysterious insides of the trawlers. Wander around and see the skilled workers deftly hook a huge cod and carve the cheeks in a couple of adroit motions.

Boston is the world's greatest fish port. Six hundred vessels run in and out of this port and Gloucester each week, to and from the Grand Banks.

You'll enjoy meeting the brawny and hearty fishermen and merchants who carry on this huge industry. They have no frills about them. You'll find the richest dealer of them all clad in overalls and hip boots, spattered with fish scales like a Triton. Here's a great New England industry that never gets out of touch with Mother Nature.

Consider Your Neighbor

With summer upon us, and windows thrown wide, it is time to give thought to that penetrating voice which comes out of the radio loud speaker. Listening to a program in a room, it is hard to realize how far-reaching is the tone of the modern amplifier.

The ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience should try to bear always in mind that their loud-squawking program may be annoying to neighbors for blocks around, or it may be preventing children and babies from sleeping. Try tuning in softly.

You will find that quality is improved and you will discover new enjoyment in your evening's radio music.

N.E. Workmen Lead World

New England skilled workmen lead the world in production. In their hands reposes a large measure of the future prosperity and happiness of their region. The Catholic Welfare Conference draws attention to the fact that the American wage-earner produces an average of 53.5 per cent more than he did nine years ago.

Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, declares that the annual output of the American worker is $8200, as against a European workman's average of $1500. This explains why American commerce and industry dominate the world, in spite of the fact that American workmen's wages are the highest known anywhere on the globe.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

FOUR women, all around 40, sat talking about the things that women talk about.

No, I don't mean about clothes and scandal and men—I mean about diet and rejuvenation. That's what most women talk about these days.

"Well," said the Beauty, "I should like to have a fresh face and lots of pep, if any doctor could guarantee them to me. But I would not be YOUNG again if you handed me my youth on a silver platter!

"The first peaceful day of a woman's life is that on which she stops trying to be a man-charmer and decides to let her hair go gray. The struggle to hold on to beauty, and the heartbreaks when you see it slipping are more than I could bear again.

"And I," said the Celebrity, "would not go back to the heartaches of twenty again if you promised me that I should set the world and all the rivers on fire!

"I love my work and take a real joy in it. But when I think of all the sacrifices I made, all the foolish mistakes, and all the wild dreams and bitter disappointments of those early years, I would not exchange my present placid contentment for the most thrilling career in the world!"

"I am no Faustina, either," declared the Romanticist. "I would not take youth as a gift! Diogenes had nothing on a girl who was looking for the Perfect Love and the Perfect Lover—even in my day. I was constantly burning candles before idols with feet of clay.

"Looking for a Prince Charming to match your illusions and fit into your dreams is just one long series of cold shocks and sad surprises. No human being could possibly fill the role. And the awakening from love's young dream is always more painful than coming out of ether after a major operation.

"But, at least, I was young in a day when men put a little passementerie on their love-making; and I had the thrilling illusion that I had found the Ideal Man every now and then. I shudder to think what I should suffer in this day of jazz and casual kissing. Ugh!"

"And I," said the Homely, "would not go back ten years if I could. Making a husband out of a mere man was a feat, even in my time. But, once you got him, you HAD him! Nowadays, getting a husband is a miracle—and after you get him some little flapper is apt to come along and ask you to tose pennies for him! No, thank you! Not for ME!"

And then they all decided to have a facial and a permanent and to start in on a new reducing diet. Because to look young and to feel young is good. But to BE young is not the happiest thing in the world.

Youth is a wonderful thing—to have HAD!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I HAVE little fear of the average cheat, swindler, faker, confidence man or other common trickster.

I have fraternized with such gentry sufficiently to know how to protect myself fairly well against their wiles.

But there's one bunkosteiszer who invariably gets the best of me. No, there's no use calling the police or notifying a detective bureau—there's nothing they can do to help me.

FOR THIS PRIZE CHEAT IS MYSELF.

I, myself, am the trickiest swindler of myself that I am forced to meet. And I, myself, can do more harm to myself than all the knaves' union.

I have often heard it said that, however great liars we may be to the world, we tell the truth to ourselves.

Piffle!

Somewhere there may be a man, a unique, amazing man, who may tell the truth to himself, but the vast majority of us bamboozle ourselves to a fare-ye-well.

In the first place, we can't help it. We don't know enough about anything—least of all about ourselves—to be really honest in our cogitations.

And in the second place, we don't want to tell ourselves the truth. We meet so much blame and ridicule from the rest of the world that we need large gobs of self-approval to maintain our complacency. And we can always manage to please ourselves and alibi all errors if we'll do a little artful dodging.

At which form of gymnastics I claim all medals.

For example, I'm always getting in jams. Sometimes with men, sometimes with God. So persistent is my bad luck that there must surely be a reason for it. But do I ever look for that reason within myself? Far from it! The first thing I do is to blame the other fellow and hand myself a lot of self-pity. I act the role of injured innocence to perfection.

But, in reality, I'm not innocent at all. Everything that has ever happened to me, barring certain unavoidable accidents, has been my own fault. All my misery—and I've had plenty—has been the logical result of my own sloppiness, greediness, selfishness, cowardice and conceit. I have no one to blame but myself. But on this point, as on dozens of others, I swindle myself constantly.

And, of course, the more I fool myself, the more I suffer. If I'd cut out my self-cheating and face the facts, I'd soon be rid of the cause of my misfortune. But instead, I kid myself along—

I'VE ALWAYS THOUGHT THAT THE CHEAPEST KIND OF A FAKER WAS THE FELLOW WHO'D CHEAT AT SOLITAIRE . . . YET THAT'S EXACTLY WHAT I'VE DONE WITH MYSELF ALL THE TIME.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

AT LAST, what are the memories most prized
When comes the set of sun?
Not mighty works by patient hands devised
Or splendid triumps won:
Not any task that taxed the groping mind
In quest of loveliness;
Not any deed by hope of fame assigned . . .
At last, these do not bless.

Instead, the memory clings to some brief joy
That childhood used to know.
Some folly of bright days, some idle toy
Youth cherished long ago.
At last these are the things it holds most dear
When comes the set of sun:
A smile, brief notes of laughter ringing clear,
Or some small kindness done.

New York Day by Day

By O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 7—Thoughts while strolling: Curtained chop houses with those tubby freshly barbered proprietors. Joseph Bickerton, the theatrical lawyer. Nobody seems to wear rubbers in New York.

The big muscle man who tears a deck of cards in two on a Broadway corner.

Eddie Cantor's snapping eyes. Like rain-washed berries. Whatever became of flag pole sitters? Marilyn Miller wearing her hair frizzed like Jeanne Eagles. Max Marcin who writes thrilling plays and resembles a small shopkeeper. Swarthy fellows who wear bright orange ties.

Charles Dana Gibson, a Roxbury, Mass., boy, who made good in the city. The blind piano tuner whose daughter is a talented actress. Elisabeth Marbury. And she doesn't like it spelled Elizabeth. Cafe sign: "Come in and eat before we both starve." No late news of Eugene O'Neal's Shanghai gesture.

The sleek and exclusive long-nosed cars that hide the occupants. New York is no place for a black-berry jam boy. Mrs. Diana Belais, who spends a fortune protecting dumb animals from vivisectors. Simile: "As banal as a cigarette ad." The contented look of pipe smoker Olin Chester Potter, who owns the Ship grills.

Two-dollar permanent waves. George M. Cohan's Japanese valet. Speakeasies in cool cretanne with doors wide open. And the hot rum places masking as cider shops. The good-natured Seabhams—so deadly in a fight. A new hotel named for Delmonico. Joe and Margaret Moore.

Morris Aleshire, the art editor. Ping-pong journamenia raging again. Paul Whiteman is an addict, and says it keeps off fat. Joe Laurie, Jr., the pint-sized comedian with the inevitable big black cigar. Insolent Five and Tens crowding the architectural splendor. Ed Swazey here from the coast.

Generally something interesting at Town Hall. They even had Swiss Bell Ringers. A talkie called "The Squall." A pun there somewhere. Boys with oily black hair who appear at sundown in fresh white shirts. And call up ladies at intervals to report.

Probably no overcoat of the new century has received as much publicity as the dress coat worn by Mayor Walker when he slicks up for a night out here and there. It won first prize at a men's style exhibit and was thus photographed from every angle. It is a one-button model with satin lapels, a satin collar and satin cuffs. Slightly corseted at the waist, it is particularly adapted to the mayor's slim figure.

New York has two distinct sartorial classifications—the Broadway and the Fifth avenue. Broadway is inclined to exaggerations in cuts, while the avenue clings to something a little more sedate. The mayor leans — or perhaps plunges is the word—toward the Broadway.

Charles G. MacArthur, the young playwright, is the peg for a hundred picturesque and ribald yarns. He is a combination of naive bewilderment, blushing shyness and a 10-minute egg. At times he gives the idea of being on his way for a poke of candy and must hurry back to Mama, and at other times has indulged in flattening two taxicab drivers and a nosey cop—all in good fun, of course. His rowdiness peeps through in his collaborative writing of "The Front Page." He was also responsible for the dinge smash, "Lulu Belle." His career began on a police run in Chicago where they use lysol as a chaser, and MacArthur was no "Hollo" among them. To his confreres he was known as "Bugs." Aside from being one of Broadway's merriest playboys, he is the husband of Helen Hayes, the actress, the lucky fellow.

A new cafe is running a contest to discover the worst annoyance in dining out. My vote is cast for the waiter who snatches the half-finished plate of soup. And second choice is the silly custom of lifting the lid on the meat dish for the host's inspection. Then, of course, there is the repeating one-topic drunk who sits uninvited at your table for the evening.

A means in Chicago spastes the following clipping on a post card: "It is small wonder the most colorful writing comes out of New York. Writers there have so much to think about."

And underneath it, he scribbles: "And so little to think with."

But a preposition, Mister, is a terrible thing to end a sentence with.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

WE cannot claim that the cochineal bug is responsible for the red flag of communism or that the invention of Chinese fireworks started the World War.

But we do know that gasoline is the father of a superiority complex which is making our luxurious landscape a shambles-and-a-half.

The justice in his tribunal, the lion in his den and the monarch on his throne are three bums compared to the chauffeur on the perch of his 10-ton truck.

When he swings that wheel and steps on the juice you had better do the same with him as the Pullman porter did with President Taft when Bill was in all the glory of his avoirdupois.

Give him a wide berth.

The driver of the 10-ton truck is the tyrant of traffic. Trying to compete with him is just as sensible as starting your daily dozen when the barber has his razor on your most important chin.

The truck engineer doesn't care any more for traffic rules than a chimney does for its smoke.

He starts with the red lights, stops with the green, and skids with the spectrum.

He knows that his licensed car of juggernaut has the weight and the power with it. When he smacks you between the fenders you have about as much chance as a soap bubble on a mandarin's finger nail.

Did you ever try cracking your delicate flivver up against the back of a monster truck? It is one time when the right-of-way is the path of doom.

We have seen many boulevard duels but we have yet to see the flivver towing away the truck.

The balance of power is with the man at the ponderous vehicle. And he knows it like a bee knows his buzzer.

It wouldn't be so bad if the drivers didn't think a truck was a pleasure car. It is their pleasure to sidewipe limousines and to ditch roadsters.

What is sauce for the goose is persimmon jelly for the gander. But don't try to prove it, the truck has no fenders to bend, no paint to be scratched or no doors to be twisted.

The turmoil and strife of war would have been more terrible if Napoleon had been the driver of a 10-ton truck.

If you don't believe it, how about 1918? Those tanks were merely 10-ton trucks that had enlisted for the duration.

When a 10-ton truck goes to war the duration is spasmodic. They won the war and now they are back again. But their paths lead not to peace nor do their detours smack of arbitration.

Avoid them, for they are the children of the jabberwock and the bandersnatch.

Boston American's Policies For Boston-New England

FOR BOSTON:

1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land, in order that Boston properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

FOR NEW ENGLAND:

1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.
